Two for a Miracle.
Not Much Gold.
Silver Eighty To One.
Reprisals Doubtful.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 19.

IT SAYS in the Nineteenth Psalm:

"A thousand years in Thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night."

That is true with the Almighty, but not with man. The last three short years have seemed a very long time to him and he repeats this year with especial fervor the lines in that same Psalm.

One more week, then Christmas. Another week, then the New Year, and end of 1932, good riddance, and another year begins.

Those that spend the next two weeks trying their best to do something worth while will make good use of the new year. Those that do not, will not.

CHRISTMAS RECALLS the age of miracles and this country seems to need miraculous assistance. There are miracles of intelligence as well as of religious power and faith.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., in the Philippines, talking through the air across the Pacific Ocean to Republican voters all over the United States, is a good enough miracle.

A miracle of intelligence, something that would release frozen money, something that would put courage into frightened "best minds," start wheels turning and men working, is what the nation wants.

BUT AS the able Mussolini has said, it takes two to make a miracle, one to perform the miracle, one other to believe it. Some man might come with the miracle-performing idea, a new invention, a new plan for international finance that would restore the circulation of money in the veins of commerce and industry, now frozen fast to a small inadequate lump of gold.

The difficulty probably would be lack of faith. New ideas are usually carried through by violence only, as in the French revolution, our own American revolution, the Civil War or the upheaval in Russia, which has at least distributed land among the peasants, taught every child and many old people to read and write, and replaced the autocratic brutality of czars with an autocracy less brutal.

GOLD, TO which high finance clings with desperate determination, may be the only hope, although England has abandoned it, and one thousand millions of the world's sixteen hundred million population have never known it.

There isn't much gold in the world. Government officials tell you that since Columbus discovered America in 1492 the whole world has produced only twenty-two thousand million dollars' worth of gold, its value calculated at the rate of $22.67 for one troy ounce of 480 grains.

Only twenty-two billions of gold in all the world, including that which is buried in the teeth of the dead, and Uncle Sam himself has outstanding in bonds, notes, and gold certificates promises to pay more than twenty-two billions of gold, which of course he could not do, except by using the same gold over and over.

ALL THE silver produced in the last three hundred years is worth much less than ten billions of dollars, the amount this country lent to Europe.

Production of silver, in prosperous times, with copper mines turning out quantities of it, as a by-product, is only THIRTEEN times as great, in ounces, as the production of gold. Yet gold sells at more than eighty times the price of silver per ounce. Perhaps something could wisely be done about that.

NEWS FROM Washington appears to confirm the suggestion made in this column concerning the French debt default, that France probably would reconsider and pay the trifling item of nineteen million dollars.

Many things this country might do to collect its due by indirection, increased tariffs, taxes on shipping, extra Panama Canal tolls, etc.

But it seems unlikely that, after mature reflection, any such measures will be adopted.

After the war everybody was determined to hang the Kaiser because he had violated Belgian neutrality. It wasn't done.

The governments in default may decide to pay if they can, and, of course France can, having billions of gold in her vaults, rather than establish a precedent upon which other public debtors might eagerly seize.

THERE IS to be "no beer for Christmas," and few will regret it. Christmas and beer do not go together.

The "wassail bowl," whatever that may have been, the more modern punch bowl, egg-nog, or Tom and Jerry, with nutmeg, fits the holiday season.

The Senate will talk about beer after the New Year.

If, as now seems probable, it comes without any change in the prohibition law, with no repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and without legalization of natural wines, the country will have beer and bootlegging mixed and no decrease in gangster power, which probably will take charge of the beer business by violence.

TROOPERS WANTED IN VOTE QUIZ

Humes Urges State Police Run Down Fraud Clues

The aid of state police investigators in tracing election frauds in Allegheny County will be asked by the elections committee representing the Bar Association, E. Lowry Humes, committee chairman, announced today.

Humes announced the committee's plan after conferring with United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and his first assistant, James I. Marsh, relative to the federal officials' intentions in pressing the vote fraud investigation. Humes said the government prosecutor showed a disposition to aid in the probe.

AFTER 'HIGHER UPS'

Humes said his committee would ask the state investigators be sent here to run down frauds in the November 8 election. He said he believes the presence of stat officers will greatly aid in "getting to the higher ups responsible for making this election the most crooked in years."

The local investigators, he said, can do very well in most cases in obtaining evidence in many districts where fraud is known to have been perpetrated, but state police investigators can act more efficiently in others.

BAR CO-OPERATING

The Bar Association Committee on election frauds is co-operating with the County Bureau of Elections and investigators representing the county government in obtaining information concerning vote frauds. The County Commissioners have offered $500 reward for information leading to conviction.

Since the reward was posted, many letters citing instances of alleged fraud have been received at headquarters of the investigators established in the new county building.

John M. Henry, Democratic leader and a member of the Bar Association Committee, also represented that body in the conference with the federal officials.

HOOVER FOR PARLEY ON DEBTS

President in Message Urges Co-Operation With Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Co-operation with President-elect Roosevelt to insure continuity of American foreign policy, particularly as to war debts, the world economic conference and disarmament was proposed today by President Hoover in a message to Congress.

Lacking congressional approval for revival of the War Debt Commission, the President declared it necessary for him to proceed independent of Congress to set up machinery for further debt discussions with those nations that have not defaulted.

INTERLOCKING PROBLEMS

He suggested an interlocking of the debt, economic and disarmament questions and indicated that a commission on debts would be appointed soon by him, some of the members of which would also be delegates to the world economic conference set for next year, while others would have a liaison with the present disarmament negotiations.

It is the assumption here that Mr. Hoover already has made some overtures toward Mr. Roosevelt and that the personnel of the group which is to handle the debt discussions will be submitted to the President-elect for his approval before appointment.

Sending of the message coincided with announcement to the British Parliament by Stanley

PRESS FIGHT FOR CUT IN BUDGET

Citizens Plan Meeting To Demand Slash In School Tax

Three outstanding developments in Council's effort to pare down governmental expenses today were:

1—Blow struck at employes who are on both the city and Board of Education payrolls.

2—Citizens blamed for millions in public improvement expenditures.

3—Plans completed for taxpayers' meeting tomorrow with Board of Education to seek lower school millage.

City Council struck a blow at a new coterie of payrollers today when it moved to demand a check of all persons employed both by the city and the Board of Education, in its task of cutting approximately $5,000,000 from Mayor Charles H. Kline's $25,000,000 budget.

The motion was made by Councilman M. J. Muldowney after the reading of a letter from Marcus Aaron, president of the school board, explaining the board's need for a $100,000 food fund for poor children.

POLITICAL IMPORTANCE

The action assumed political importance when it was remembered that W. C. Batchelor, superintendent of the Division of Recreation for the city, is also employed by the school board. It was Batchelor who recommended that Justus Schroedel, chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward, be let out of his job as superintendent of grounds and buildings. Councilman Muldowney is a strong organization man.

Councilman Charles Anderson also moved that school board employes, who are receiving pensions from either the city or county, should be checked.

Councilman P. J. McArdle, while commending interested citizens for their united demand for retrenchments in city public improvement expenditures, today declared that those expenditures for improvements were largely brought about by citizens, either in groups or individually, demanding the improvements. He declared:

"We already have been treated to the experience of an outpouring of citizens calling for econmoy. The present demand for economy is a most healthy situation, most encouraging to public officers."

CITY DEBTS COSTLY

"When the public authorizes public officials in a few short years to expend untold millions, they may be doing the desiriable thing, but if they cease their interest they are laying the groundwork for the greatest possible waste."

An additional economy move was brought to Council's attention by a report from City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt that the Mayor and County Commissioners have authority to consolidate the county and city bureaus of weights and measures under an act of 1913.

Council voted to ask Mayor Kline and the Commissioners to confer regarding the possible consolidation.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang and E. J. Foley, chief clerk of the Bureau of City Planning, were instructed to give Council a new budget for the operation of the 12 city comfort stations, now costing the city $70,000 annually for maintenance and the payroll for 58 persons.

TWO TATE BOYS AWAIT FATE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 19.—Two mountaineer boys who said they were not afraid, today listened to the recital of the details of the murder of their father, Isley Tate, mountaineer cattle king. Testimony given to fix the degree of crime to which they have pleaded guilty was heard by Judge S. John Morrow.

Sam Tate, 19, and his 15-year-old brother, George, had pleaded guilty two weeks ago. Another brother, John, pleaded guilty to a minor charge.

Cruelty by the father prompted three sons to plot the killing, Mrs. Frank Price, niece of Tate, testified. She said:

"I don't blame the boys one bit."

Mrs. Tate, widow of the slain mountaineer, and her baby born after Tate was killed, last September, was in court to aid her sons.

Capone Aide, Policeman Shot Down

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Frank Nitti, Capone gangster, was shot probably fatally and a policeman detailed from Mayor Cermak's office wounded in the arm today in a shooting affray in the LaSalle-Wacker Building.

Policeman Harry Lang and Nitti were found in a room in a downtown skyscraper. The room, No. 553, was reputedly a headquarters of the Capone gang.

Nitti, the "enforcer," served a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for evasion of income taxes and was released last March 24. He had served 14 months of an 18-month term.

Blind War Veteran Granted Divorce

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—George P. Vearrindy, 40, blind World War veteran, today was granted a final decree of divorce from Minna A. Vearrindy, of Baltimore.

Vearrindy, a native of Persia, met his wife while undergoing treatment in a Baltimore hospital for his war wounds. She was engaged in welfare work among war veterans. Vearrindy charged desertion, and his wife contested the action, alleging cruelty.

Pope Urges Mankind To Seek Perfection

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Man cannot always achieve perfection, but should always endeavor to reach it, Pope Pius said yesterday in inaugurating the new academic year at the Pontifical Academy of Science.

The Pope gave thanks to God for "the great diffusion of his wiseness manifested in the activity of those who seek true science and study it in its pure sources."

FIRE DAMAGES PITT CATHEDRAL

Fire early today raged through the unfinished Cathedral of Learning, the future 42-story home of the University of Pittsburgh at Fifth avenue and Bigelow boulevard.

Starting on the fourth floor from an undetermined origin, the fire burned the wooden "falsework" that shields the plumbing pipes, from the first to the sixth floor, according to the office of the building superintendent. The principal damage was caused by the melting of the pipe joints, it was reported. For a time the flames imperiled the luxuriously furnished "Foreign Nations" rooms on the first floor.

SMOKE FILLS BUILDING

Fanned by draughts which rushed through the incompleted lower floors of the Cathedral, smoke from the burning timbers, dried out by long use, penetrated every nook and corner of the

Latrobe's Burgess Balks Ouster Move

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 19.—Dr. J. E. Peebles will continue to serve as burgess of Latrobe, Judge C. D. Copeland ruled today. He dismissed a petition asking for a writ of quo warranto to force the Burgess to show cause why he should not be removed from office. The petition was originally filed by members of Latrobe Council. The court held that it is without jurisdiction in cases over burgesses and that the petitioners are not proper persons to file suggestions for a quo warranto writ.

27 Hurt as Train Hits Station Bumper

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Two commuters suffered broken arms and 25 others were cut and bruised today when the locomotive of a Burlington Railroad suburban train struck the bumper at the track terminus in the Union Station.

Wild Sleigh Ride Gets Fine for 'Santa'

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Consider the fate of Joseph Clark, 42, who paid a fine and nearly went to jail today because he 'only wanted to play Santa Claus."

Clark harnessed a mare to a jingling sleigh and drove merrily through ice-covered streets. The mare entered into the spirit of the thing and brushed aside everything in her path, including automobiles which were crowded into gutters piled high with snow.

After a chase, the errant "Santa" was captured by police, who said Clark was intoxicated. He paid $10 and costs, plus an additional dollar for "parking" the mare at a nearby lumberyard.

Police put the sleigh in storage.

Sunday Dance Halls Raided by Troopers

Ten Resorts in Two Counties Visited by State Police

A flying squadron of state police swooped down upon hundreds of revelers in 10 Allegheny and Westmoreland County dance halls early this morning, that were allegedly operating Sunday night dances in violation of an act of 1927.

All of the halls were doing a good business, according to the troopers, operating out of Greensburg. The places and their alleged proprietors, who were to be given hearings today, were:

Arlington Inn, East McKeesport, Watson Suskey; Flower Garden, Ben Diamond, and Waddell's Barbecue, Charles Waddell, Long Run road, near Irwin; Morton Inn, near McKeesport, John Morton; Blue Moon Dance Hall, near Irwin, Paul Beondi; Blue Ridge Inn, John Cochetta; Silver Garden, Floyd Conners, and The Alps, Harvey McMaster, all in Patton Township, Allegheny County; Friday Garden, Nick Glass, and Penn Park, both in Penn Township.

Those arrested in the raids in Patton and Penn townships were fined $25 each when they pleaded guilty before Squire George B. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, according to state police. The others were to be given hearings before Squire A. C. Markus, of McKeesport, late today

'Flying Hamburger' Sets Speed Record

BERLIN, Dec. 19. — (INS.)—The "Flying Hamburger" captured the blue ribbon railroad speed record today, covering 175 miles between Berlin and Hamburg in 141 minutes.

Byrd's Recovery By Christmas Seen

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Although he withstood the rigors of 70 degrees below zero at the South Pole without catching cold, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, noted polar explorer, today was confined to his Brimmer street home with a severe attack of influenza, contracted in an ordinary New England snowfall. His physician said that he has been sick a week and might be fully recovered before Christmas.

MISTAKE FATAL TO THIRD BABY

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A third baby died yesterday at the New York Hospital and Cornell Medical College Association from what the medical examiner said was the effect of an injection of boric acid solution given by mistake for a saline solution.

Two infants died at the hospital Saturday, supposedly from the same cause. It was believed then that the third baby who received the injection was responding successfully to treatment, but it lived only a day longer. It was the 5-day-old daughter of Mrs. Dolly Field. The others were the 6-day-old son of Mrs. Julia Rusinack and the 5-day-old daughter of Mrs. Helen Hughes.

John R. Howard, Jr., superintendent of the hospital, said the nurse who prepared the injection was a graduate of four years' standing and had a good record. The nurse, whose name was not disclosed, has been relieved of duty, Howard said.

Man Seeking Robber Killed by Own Gun

BELINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—When his double-barreled shotgun accidentally discharged while he was searching for a prowler early this morning at his home, Dewey Hobson Phillips, 35, a grade school principal, was killed.

When his wife, Alma, who had been ill several weeks, thought she heard a burglar in the house, Phillips obtained his shotgun and started to search for the prowler. He bumped against the door and the gun was discharged.

British Ruler Gets Vow Of Reformed Cannibal

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—As one king to another, a reformed cannibal chief has sent presents and a vow to King George. He is Ringapat, king of the Big Nambas, a tribe in the New Hebrides. The vow, sent in care of Miss Evelyn Cheesman, woman explorer, reads:

"Ringapat, king of the Big Nambas, wishes King George to know that he will never eat man's flesh, white man or black boy; that he will never kill man, white man or black boy, and that he will be good to all white men so long as they are good to his boys and do not steal them."

The gifts included beads of shells and cocoanuts.

CLARK BLAMED FOR LATEST HITCH

Nine Months After Council Acts, Old System Prevails

The nine months' delay in putting into effect the city's new "nonfixable" traffic tags, provided for by Council March 28, today was attacked as "without reason" by Councilman P. J. McArdle. With the new tags printed and turned over to the Public Safety Department, McArdle can see no excuse for their lying idle. He said:

We had a definite statement that the controller had turned the new traffic tags over to the Department of Public Safety for their use, after the director had said they were ready to put them into effect.

BLAMES CLARK

"The director had said the Traffic Court magistrate had requested some delay to permit adjustments in his office. The director had agreed to delay it until last Tuesday. Any delay since that time would seem to be due to the Department of Public Safety, and as far as I know it is without reason. It is my judgment that the whole program should have been in operation months ago."

The history of the tag delay be[gan] more than two years ago, [when] the "no fix" provision was [first] suggested. After Council [finally] passed the ordinance in [March], an almost endless chain [of] events has thus far prevented [the] use of the new tags.

Mayor Charles H. Kline didn't sign the ordinance until April 7. Then it took four months for Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap to let the printing contract, August 15. On October 8, Controller James P. Kerr announced most of the tags had been printed. He said most of the delay was because of the intricacies of a new accounting system being devised.

TAGS APPEAR

The long awaited tags appeared near November 27, when the Controller said he would turn the tags over to Public Safety Director James M. Clark on the following day.

There was more delay until December 6, when Kerr turned over some of the tags to the Public Safety Department.

The last promise came from Director Clark on December 7, when he promised Council to have the new tags in effect either December 12 or 13. But the traffic violator is still receiving the old "fixable" tags.

DEATH TAKES O. A. WILLIAMS

O. A. Williams, for many years connected with Pittsburgh newspapers, died today at his home in Merion, Pa. He was born in old Allegheny and for many years was connected with the old Chronicle Telegraph. When the late Oliver S. Hershman purchased the Pittsburgh Press, he became secretary and circulation manager of the latter newspaper, a position he held until Mr. Hershman relinquished control.

He was a member of the Duquesne and Oakmont Country clubs, Fellowship Lodge No. 679, F. & A. M. Masonic Veterans and of Dexter Lodge 23, I. O. O. F., of Stoops Ferry. He also was a member of the Bala Golf Club, of Philadelphia. He leaves his widow Edith Soderberg, of Devon, Pa.; Miss Virginia Williams, at home; Albert F. Williams, of Devon, and Mrs. Jean Hall, of near Camden, N. J. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Thursday at Samson's funeral home, Neville street.

POLICE, FIRE RANKS FOR CUT

City police and firemen are willing to accept a 10 per cent pay cut if the same cut is applied to all city employes, but anything beyond that will be vigorously fought, John Heinz, president of the City Firemen's Protective Association, said today.

At a meeting yesterday representatives of both groups threatened to seek legislation which would remove their departments from the Mayor's supervision. They suggested reforms which would allow the people to vote on wage cuts and which would protect the men from political shakeups.

Baldwin that the United States had agreed to undertake with Great Britain a joint examination of the debt structure.

BALDWIN BARES PARLEY

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Stanley Baldwin told Parliament today that the United States government had agreed to undertake with Great Britain a joint examination of the whole question of war debt payments.

As spokesman for the government he declined to accept a suggestion by a member of the House of Commons that a five-power European conference be called to discuss the possibility of "common action" towards securing a more favorable trade balance with America to facilitate the debt payments. He said:

"The United States government has agreed to enter into joint examination with us on the whole question and His Majesty's government hopes the discussion may be initiated at an early date.

"In these circumstances I do not think the course suggested would be appropriate at the present time."

FRANCE FOR SURVEY

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The attitude of the new French government seemed moving today towards advocacy of a plan informally discussed at Washington of allowing a mixed or international commission of experts to examine the problem of France's debt.

The Associated Press was informed on the highest authority that one or more ministers intended to support the commission plan at a meeting of the cabinet presided over by Premier Paul-Boncour.

American Attacked By Mob in France

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—An attack by a group of French anti-war debt demonstrators on Dr. Daniel Mahoney, San Francisco physician and wounded war veteran, was revealed today in a report received by the United States Embassy.

The attack occurred last Tuesday while the Chamber of Deputies was debating the war debt issue.

County Officials Balk At Voluntary Pay Cut

Ignore Action of Leaders in Other Communities

Sentiment for voluntary pay cuts on the part of elected officials continued to sweep over the country today, despite reluctance of Allegheny County's officials to act.

In New York City, justices of the state courts announced they will make voluntary reductions in their salaries, which are protected by state legislation.

In Allegheny County, the three Commissioners have indicated they do not believe it is legal for an official whose salary is protected by legislation to return a small share.

Among those who have turned back a share of their protected salaries are Pittsburgh Councilmen and school teachers. In Beaver County every elected county official has volunteered to return 10 per cent.

Interviews with 29 of Allegheny's officials, including judges, revealed that many are willing to accept a reduction. Not one definitely promised. And Commissioner C. M. Barr described the suggestion in a few words:

Eighteen lines of hose were stretched across Fifth avenue by firemen of five engine companies and two truck companies called out by two alarms.

Deputy Fire Chief Louis Conley said firemen were handicapped at first by lack of hose sufficient to stand the pressure to check the spread of the blaze in the upper floors. A hose connection was made to an incompleted "standpipe" and water forced to the ninth floor where another connection was made.

The fire was brought under control shortly after 5 a. m., with a loss of $2,000 estimated by university officials.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

The flames were visible in the central tower as high as the sixth floor to residents of the nearby Hotel Schenley and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Strangely it did not attract a great crowd of spectators to the neighboring streets. Traffic in Fifth avenue, however, was tied up until hose stretched across the thoroughfare had been removed.

It was the second time the Cathedral of Learning, famed throughout the world, has been afire. Once before straw used as temporary insulation burst into flames. The damage was slight.

The fire did not interfere with class schedules, because the university began its customary two-week Christmas recess today.

WAGNER URGES U. S. INCREASE AID TO NEEDY

Denounces R. F. C. and Treasury for Rule On Job Funds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Liberalization of the national relief program was advocated today in the Senate by Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, with the assertion that the fight against unemployment was still a losing one. He told the Senate:

"The most immediate danger confronting the American people is the spread of the notion in some responsible quarters that the relief problem has been solved and that the scarcity of employment is on the way to its automatic correction."

Assailing the administration of relief activities by the Construction Finance Corporation, Wagner said "the billions that Congress provided have remained practically untouched—the jobs which they were to create are still locked up."

He proposed that the $300,000,000 limitation on direct relief loans be eliminated; that $10,000,000 be allotted for "outright grant" to the states for dealing with transient unemployed; that power be taken from the Reconstruction Finance Board and given to a special committee of three for deciding upon relief loans; that the law be clarified to permit loans to states without the showing of approaching bankruptcy, and that loans for self-liquidating projects be given to states and municipalities for such projects as are "economically sound."

Wagner, who is a co-author of the emergency relief act and a member of the special Democratic committee to frame new legislation, also extended his criticism to the Treasury for its administration of the public construction program. He said:

"It is a matter of record that for two months the Treasury refused to permit the executive departments to proceed with the execution of the law. The extent to which the effort to undo the law was carried on became apparent when the Treasury Department rendered the incomprehensible and indefensible decision that the appropriation of $100,000,000 for public buildings really meant only $90,000,000."

$12-A-Week Movie Usher

ANNE CALDWELL . . . JOHN W. HUBBARD'S $50,000 ALL GONE

Anne Caldwell Usher In Movie for $12 Week

Hubbard's $50,000 Gone, Ex-Actress Works, Likes It

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—A tall, slender, attractive brunette who, a few short years ago, was able to smile appreciatively at a $50,000 check reluctantly written by John W. Hubbard, shovel king, today was not only broke, but working as an usher in a movie house.

Anne Caldwell, who used to stroll the decks of yachts with Jack Hubbard, no longer wears smart, costly evening gowns, but rather the unfashionable, inexpensive usher's uniform. Instead of caviar, she dines on a salary of $12 a week.

$50,000 BALM GONE

She is broke. The $50,000 a jury handed her in Federal Court a half-dozen years ago after she had weeped the story of her broken romance with Hubbard is gone—dissipated with so many other dollars in the 1929 market.

The bears of Wall street were less sympathetic than the Pittsburgh jury which heard her tell how Hubbard had broken a promise to install her as the mistress of his name and millions.

Anne was on the other side of the footlights today. Where once she danced in Broadway revues, now she stood in the aisle with a fixed smile for patrons of the Cosmopolitan Theater, in Columbus Circle. She said:

"Yes, here I am ushering at $12 a week, and I like it. The other ushers have been very friendly and I have been happy. But since I've been discovered again I'll be through by tomorrow.

"Publicity doesn't help so much, you know, when one is off the stage. I thought of that when I came here, so I took the name of Joyce Wilson. But it's pretty hard to keep buried even in a town as big as this."

WRITING PLAY

Hubbard and marriage Anne dismissed with:

"To be quite frank, I'm too busy ushering and authoring to think very much about anything else.

"My real object in coming here was to gather material for my play. Already I'm writing the second act. Of course, nobody has very much money to spare backing plays nowadays, but I'm sure I'll find a way to have my production put over when it is completed."

Anne meets a lot of people in her new job, but she is accustomed to meeting people. Hubbard introduced her to some of the best-known men in the country.

But he didn't introduce her to marriage, she complained in court. And she produced a batch of love letters in which Hubbard professed enthusiastic endearment.

VOTE ON BEER THIS WEEK ASSURED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—A vote on 3.2 per cent beer in the House before the brief Christmas recess was assured today when dry leaders announced that they would make no attempt to delay action by filibustering.

The measure is slated to be called up tomorrow by Representative Collier (Dem.), of Mississippi, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, but the time of final vote depends upon negotiations for a "gentlemen's agreement" to limit debate.

NO FILIBUSTER

Representative Hawley (Rep.), of Oregon, ranking minority member on the committee, was to lead the opposition. He and Collier were to confer in an effort to limit debate. Hawley said:

"There is no disposition upon our part to filibuster. The bill can be disposed of this week. We will, of course, want ample time to discuss it and to offer amendments."

Democratic leaders expected the measure to pass not later than Thursday. The House, thus, would be on record for "beer before Christmas," but the foaming mug will still be only a prediction. A protracted struggle over the beer bill is expected in the Senate.

100 G. O. P. VOTES

Friends of the measure were counting noses today, with Representative Milligan, of Missouri, assistant Democratic whip, making a party check-up on the probable vote.

While Representative Bachmann, of West Virginia, Republican whip, said no official canvass of the Republicans would be made, he estimated 100 Republicans would support the bill.

Most of the House drys apparently expect the beer bill to pass, but they recall the fate of the repeal resolution and say the count will be close. "Lame ducks" hold the key to the situation.

GOV. ROOSEVELT MEETS YOUNG

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Owen D. Young, author of the Young plan for settlement of war debts, and Arthur F. Mullen, Democratic National Committeeman from Nebraska, held conferences today with President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt at the inner executive offices.

The appearance of Young and Mullen, both of whom have been mentioned as possible members of the Roosevelt cabinet, came as a surprise, for Mr. Roosevelt had not told anyone he expected them.

Mullen emerged from the executive offices first and said he and the President-elect had talked "in a general way" on national affairs. Young remained after Mullen left, and luncheon was taken in for him and the Governor.

Commerce Leaders Ask Vet Fund Cut

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A slash of $400,000,000 in expenditures in behalf of war veterans without reducing by "a single dollar" payment to those who incurred disability in war service, or to dependents of the soldier dead, was recommended to the Joint Congressional Veterans Committee today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

It is the forehead, not the back, that counts.

Platinum Beauty Sues Film Man for $100,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—A fee of $100,000 for her services for one year has been fixed by Claire Ray, platinum blonde, one-time bathing beauty and possessor in sequence of five husbands, it is revealed in a Supreme Court suit.

Miss Ray charges that Morris Rosenweig, owner and producer of the H. E. R. independent movie studios here, gave her a contract for one year at $300 a week, paid her for three weeks, gave her a $2,000 advance to sign the contract, and then terminated it.

Her price goes up to $100,000, she explains, because the contract forced her to abandon her dancing act and to give up other activities.

Rosenweig said:

"My organization never made pictures. We print and develop film. Miss Ray never worked for me, and never worked in any movie, here or anywhere else. I'll make a general denial, and if she wants publicity, she'll get plenty when I file my answer."

Child Robbers' Parents Back Reform Sentence

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The two Bloomsburg children who have been placed in the care of institutions for stealing from a Bloomsburg bank will remain at "least a year" if their parents' wishes are fulfilled.

The children, John Harrington, Jr., 9, and his 7-year-old sister, Lillian, will have a chance to get "good and homesick" before they see their parents again, the father said today. Harrington said:

"We will miss them, but we feel it is the only way to correct them. Their mother and I have agreed not to try and see them until spring. We tried everything we could to cure them of their habits of stealing and bagging school, but nothing worked."

Mrs. Harrington explained:

"We know what we are going is for the best. After they get out they may be better children. We expect to take them into the country to live. No matter what people say about us, we think they should stay in state care."

The boy last Friday was taken to the Glen Mills Training School for Delinquent Boys and the girl to the House of the Good Shepherd in Philadelphia. They climberd intot he window of the bank and took a small amount of money from a desk drawer.

GEORGIA LAWYER PLEDGES AID TO CHAIN GANG FUGITIVE

FACTS TO BLOCK EXTRADITION HE ASSERTS

Burns Brands as 'Lies' Story of Pal in Robberies

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Vincent Burns, of Palisade, N. J., sister-in-law of Robert Elliott Burns, Georgia chain gang fugitive, said today a telegram sent to her and signed with the name of Murphy Halloway, Atlanta lawyer, stated Halloway was in possession of facts which can save Burns from extradition. The message read:

"Efforts to reach you by telephone unsuccessful. I appeared as attorney for Flagg, confederate of Burns under the original arrest in this (Fulton) county. I have and can present facts to Gov. Moore which will prevent extradition."

Flagg is Sidney George Flagg, marine engineer, of Seattle, Wash., who in a copyrighted interview in the Post-Intelligencer, of that city, declared he and Burns were partners in two holdups in Atlanta, one of which, he said, brought chain gang sentences for both.

He said Flagg was telling untruths when he declared that Burns planned two holdups and got Flagg to take part in them. He also denied bribing his way to freedom from the chain gang to which Georgia wants to return him.

Burns Bribed Guard, Robbery Pal Asserts

SEATTLE, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A seaman, who voyages in the engine rooms of ships, but whose home is in Seattle, claims he was a holdup partner of Robert Elliott Burns, fugitive from Georgia justice, in misdeeds preceding their arrest in 1921.

The man, Sidney George Flagg, 53, declares he was pardoned in 1929, after having served more than seven years on a chain gang. In the meantime, he says, Burns bribed a guard and escaped.

In a copyright story published today by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Flagg says:

"I am not a fugitive from a chain gang. I am free. Unlike Robert Elliott Burns, I stayed to pay."

TELLS OF HOLDUPS

Flagg was located by the Associated Press in his quarters at the Seamans Y. M. C. A. and asked about the holdups in which he declared he participated with Burns, who is now under arrest in New Jersey with Georgia demanding extradition. He said:

"The holdups occurred late in 1921.

"About five hours later, we held up a grocer named S. Bernstein, and got $4.80, which Burns kept. Another man, John Moore, was with us. A short while later we were arrested."

In the copyright story, the Post-Intelligencer says it sent a message to Atlanta to confirm Flagg's statement and in reply received word saying that a man by the name of Sidney George Flagg was convicted with Burns. They were sentenced to a chain gang.

BURNS' MOTHER IN RADIO PLEA

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—The mother and brother of Robert E. Burns, chain gang fugitive, spoke over Station WOR last night an appeal to the radio public for help in fighting the move being made to return Burns to prison in Georgia.

The brother, the Rev. Vincent G. Burns, pastor of the Union Church of Palisade, N. J., reviewed the history of the case and denied rumors that his brother was ever wanted in New York on a forgery charge.

The mother, Mrs. Katherine Burns, in a simple plea for mercy, said:

"I want to thank everyone for their kind interest in my poor boy. He is a good boy and I know that he was innocent of any intention to do wrong. My boy will never bother anyone again if he is only given a chance."

Her Baby Born

CHARLOTTE GIBSON

RIDING MASTER IGNORES BABY

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Mother and baby are "doing nicely."

That was all the information emanating today from the Tappan (N. Y.) home of Robert Gibson, socially registered lawyer, where yesterday his daughter, Charlotte, gave birth to a baby girl, whose father, Sidney H. Homewood, is in Rockland County jail under a betrayal conviction.

Homewood, found guilty by a jury of betraying Miss Gibson and sentenced to serve from 18 months to 3 years in jail, and fined $500, appeared unconcerned when news of the baby's birth was given him by a jailer.

He seemed more interested in efforts of his counsel to obtain a stay of sentence pending pleading of a motion for a new trial.

But he indicated he was steadfast in his refusal to wed the mother of his child.

The Gibson family remained uncommunicative concerning birth of the child, declining to state the name of the attending physician, the baby's weight, or name. It was reported Gibson is planning to adopt the child, giving her his name.

In other circles it was reported the Gibson family is preparing to leave the country home at Tappan as soon as Charlotte's conditon permits and start life anew in a scene far from that where Miss Gibson went through the ordeal of Homewood's trial.

2 Shots in Air Jail 2nd Writing Fugitive

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Another "fugitive from a chain gang" was back in a cell today. Two bullets, fired in the air, turned the trick.

Barton W. Yager, 24, who emulated Robert Burns, the celebrated fugitive, to the extent of escaping from a workhouse and writing a series of newspaper articles about workhouse conditions, was captured last night near his home. He tried to break away from the police, but abandoned the idea when the shots were fired.

KILLED BLONDE TO SAVE HOME, MOTHER SAYS

Tells of Fear for Five Sons on Husband's Divorce Demand

International News Srvice.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 19.—The ferocity of a mother's love, aroused by fears that her husband intended to place a stepmother over her five sons, was revealed here today by Mrs. Leah Frazier, 41, held for murder.

Because she wanted to "keep her from being the stepmother of my children," Mrs. Frazier Friday pumped five bullets into the body of pretty, blonde Miss Manona Murrell, a divorcee, secretary to her husband, C. R. Frazier, head of federal narcotic enforcement for Georgie and Florida. The small 83-pound mother said:

"It's only nature that a mother would protect her home. I'd do it all over again. I decided to kill her when my husband took my three youngest children and wrote me that I would never see them again unless I gave him a divorce."

Mrs. Frazier said her husband took the three children from her Thursday, ostensibly to go on a hunting trip, and that she received a letter, postmarked Jacksonville, the same day, in which he made his demand for a divorce.

The Fraziers had been separated eight months.

After brooding over the situation all Thursday night, Mrs. Frazier armed herself with a pistol late Friday and went to the Postoffice Building at the hour Miss Murrell left work.

Then, while passersby looked on in horror, she calmly drew her pistol and emptied it into the younger woman's body.

Mrs. Frazier then sought out a policeman and surrendered.

FLOGGERS BACK AT CLASSES

NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Unmasked and promised gubernatorial immunity, 14 confessed members of the D. D. M. C., hooded secret order of University of Oklahoma students, returned to their classes today after expulsion Saturday for the flogging of Billy Stephens university correspondent for Oklahoma City newspapers.

A fifteenth member, Tony Bartolino, of Oklahoma City, who is ill, also was reinstated by Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray.

Those admitting membership in the organization, the letters of which they said meant nothing, included many outstanding athletes. Among them was Orin (Red) Borah, of Champaign, Ill., a senior and three-year football letterman, who was president of the order.

THE PILED-UP PROVISIONS, CLOTHING COLLECTED AT THE WARNER THEATER'S SUNDAY FILMS . . . . IT'S ALL FOR CHARITY

BENEFIT MOVIE DRAWS THRONG

A crowd estimated at 20,000 turned out yesterday to witness the second Sunday moving picture show at the Warner Theater, admission to which was food and clothing for the needy of Pittsburgh. Fifteen thousand persons entered the theater during the afternoon and evening, and it was estimated at least 5,000 were turned away.

The attraction, the American Weekly feature film, "Secrets of the French Police," was run off six times, the first show starting at 2:28 p. m. and the last at 10:30 p. m.

The theater and services of all employes were given free.

Early in the afternoon hundreds of persons thronged the entrance of the theater, bearing bundles of food and clothing of all descriptions. This was piled in the lobby as the patrons passed into the theater. No money was taken. The "proceeds" went to a Jewish charitable organization.

Yesterday's performances were the second of a series, the first, a week ago, having been for the benefit of philanthropy headed by Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church.

ARMY DESERTS DE VALERA

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—In a sudden and dramatic move, the Irish Republican army turned against President Eamonn De Valera, of the Irish Free State, today, passing a resolution condemning his government, according to a Dublin dispatch to the London Evening News.

The action was taken at a mass meeting of the army, roused to fury by the government's arrest and sentencing of members recently convicted of damaging a brewery, the newspaper said:

The resolution read:

"The Irish Republican army has no further use for the De Valera government. It has not gone one step nearer to an Irish republic."

The Irish Republican army newspaper, An Phoblacht, demanded dismissal of the judge who passed sentence on the convicted army members as well as immediate reprisals, it was stated.

RIVER DRAGGED FOR LOST BOYS

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 19.—Search went forward by 50 men and Oil City police this afternoon for Arden Golden, 7, and Robert Cunningham, 9, missing since Sunday.

Whether they went to the woods to "look for Christmas trees," skated on Allegheny River and went through the ice, or wandered off, is not known.

Unidentified boys were seen playing on the ice near the Petroleum Bridge late Sunday afternoon. Relatives in Erie and Auburn, N. Y., have been communicated with, in hope the boys may have boarded a bus for there.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, with centers over West Virginia and Colorado, covers the southern half of the country, while over the northern half pressure is relatively low. The only center of low pressure is located over Alberta, where the pressure is 29.34 inches. This distribution of pressure is causing a rising temperature condition over practically the entire country. There are no zero temperatures reported this morning except in the Rocky Mountain states and the Canadian Northwest. The weather is fair over most of the country, although there is a large area of thin upper clouds over the states east of the Mississippi. The only precipitation is light rain in Southern Texas, and the Atlantic Coast states and snow at scattered places in the lake region.

Ex-Steel Official Here Dies in South

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Arthur B. Johnson, of Pittsburgh, died at his winter home yesterday after an illness of several months. He formerly was assistant secretary of the Standard Steel Car Foundry Company.

THOMAS SEES PITT VICTORY

The Golden Panthers, of the University of Pittsburgh, look like winners in the Rose Bowl game New Years Day, according to Lowell Thomas during his weekend visit here.

Speaking from the studios of WCAE last night, the famous globe-trotter said:

"The football season seems to be beginning in Pittsburgh. The town is very enthusiastic about Pitt going to the coast and from what I can learn from the people in Pittsburgh they are going to win.

"I heard the manager of a hotel say today that they have a cinch of it."

Thomas' radio talk inaugurated the new Sunday edition of his new broadcasts over an extensive NBC-WEAF network. The new program will consist of resumes of each week's outstanding news events and will be heard over WCAE each Sunday at 5 p. m. in addition to his daily broadcasts over KDKA.

NOTED ACTRESS GRAVELY ILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Battling pneumonia, Ethel Barrymore today was reported "gravely ill" at her apartment here while attending physicians held out hope for her recovery and expressed belief she has passed the crisis.

The noted actress was brought to her home here after she became ill December 11 at New Haven, where her new play opened. At first, it was thought Miss Barrymore had suffered merely a bronchial attack.

Identifies Man As Clothes Thief

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Facing a group of prisoners, Leon Edwards, of Washington, Pa., pointed to Noel Abbott, of Oklahimo, as one of two men who robbed him last September, stripped him of his clothes, and locked him in a boxcar.

Police said today that Abbott disappeared from the home of his sister in Paden City, W. Va., the day after the holdup, leaving a suit of clothes behind him. Officers arrested the man when he returned to Paden City last Friday.

EIGHT INJURED IN COASTING ACCIDENTS

Sleds and Auto Crash As Thousands Turn To Winter Sports

Winter sports held the attention of thousands of persons yesterday as eight youthful coasters suffered injury in the Pittsburgh district.

Included among the casualties were: Anna Mehalick, 11, of 515 Vermont avenue, Glassport, injured by an automobile at Fifth and Ohio avenues, Glassport; John Haiella, 15, of 108 Dilworth street, struck by an automobile in Norton street; Frank Coyle, 15, of 235 Dunseith street; James Monroe, 9, of 262 Fifty-seventh street; Matthew Audley, 11, of 5261 Dresden way; James Gates, 7, of 269 Thirty-eighth street.

In Mercy Hospital yesterday Robert Johnston, 12, of McDonald, told of a sled ride that almost cost him his life under the wheels of a fast Wheeling express train. The youth, when he saw the train approaching, was unable to stop his sled, but slowed its speed, hitting the truck of the last coach. An uncle, Constable R. A. Balmer, took him to the hospital.

W. VA. GAS FIRM PROBED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The Federal Trade Commission, continuing its investigation of utility finances, today went into the accounts and records of the United Fuel Gas Company, of Charleston, W. Va.

Walter Meleen, commission examiner, described in detail the relationship between United Fuel Gas and its parent company, Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation.

All 300,000 shares of United Fuel Gas common stock are owned by Columbia, he said, except nine directors' qualifying shares.

Three of the nine officers of United Fuel Gas, he said, also are officers of Columbia and these three and one other are officers of Columbia Engineering and Management Company, which has a management contract with United Fuel Gas.

MOTHER, CHILD DIE IN FLAMES

ATHOL, Mass., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Davenport, 41, wife of Edward Davenport, and their daughter, Gloria, 9, were burned to death by fire that destroyed the home early today. Three other members of the family escaped. The alarm was given by a telephone operator who, seeing the red signal on her switchboard, listened in and heard not only the crackling of the flames, but the groans of one of the victims.

Mrs. Larus B. Davenport, 85, mother of Edward Davenport, was rescued. Dorothy Davenport, 12, saved herself by jumping from a second-story window. Harold, a son, and the father were able to make their way from the building unharmed. The mercury stood at 5 degrees below zero.

2 Children Perish In Oil Stove Blast

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Two children died today in the village of Oakland, R. I., as the result of burns suffered when an oil stove exploded as a group of 11 persons huddled about it yesterday to escape the bitter cold.

The dead are Norman C. Gaudreau, 6, and his brother, Sheldon, 7.

Jessel and Cantor Rehearse By Phone

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—George Jessel, star of stage and screen, is flying to New York, where he will open with Eddie Cantor Friday in a new play.

Prior to his departure, he and Cantor completely rehearsed their parts in a 20-minute session over the long-distance telephone. As far as known, this is the first time long-distance has been used for such a lengthy rehearsal.

Miss Hannah Nevin's Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral services for Miss Hannah Taylor Nevin, 89, of 403 Bank street, Sewickley, who died Sunday, will be held tomorrow from her late residence. She was born in Elgeworth. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Her three brothers, now dead, once were the publishers of the Pittsburgh Leader.

League Opens Final Week of Campaign

The Tuberculosis League today started the last week of its Christmas seal campaign for $100,000. Several hundred club and society women under the direction of Mrs. J. Paul Warner will be on duty at booths in the downtown district during the week.

Musmanno Sends Plea To Save 'Fugitive'

Judge M. A. Musmanno, of County Court, in a letter today to Gov. A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, asking him to refuse the request of Georgia authorities for the return of Robert Elliott Burns, escaped chain gang prisoner, declared that the chain gang has no place in the United States.

In requesting leniency for Burns, who recently published a book "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," the Pittsburgh judge declared that since his return to the North, Burns has been a law-abiding citizen. He wrote in part:

"In your refusal to grant extradition in this case you will have an opportunity as a state official and as an American citizen effectively to condemn chain gang practices in the United States. The chain gang must go."

NEW 'CARD' AIDS FATHER COX

The novel suggestion of Father Cox that his friends eliminate the usual flood of Christmas cards that he usually receives and send the subscription blank on this page instead, has been received with gratifying response. He says that this will be a Christmas card of particular value to him at this time because he gets a liberal cash commission for every one of these blanks that come to him. With the immediate and Christmas needs among the poor more urgent than ever, he can make every dollar he gets go a long way in the relief of destitution.

Just now his entire force of volunteer helpers is working on Christmas baskets for destitute families. Father Cox might have had to eliminate these baskets this year if it were not for the donations obtained at the Warner Theater food and clothing benefit a week ago Sunday. Inasmuch as the Sun-Telegraph was the only newspaper in Pittsburgh to exploit this benefit Father Cox feels indebted to the Sun-Telegraph for this wonderful Christmas supply.

Bear in mind that for every subscription to the Sun-Telegraph that comes in on the Christmas blank on this page Father Cox gets a liberal cash commission.

STARS PRESENT SING SING SHOW

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Some 30 well-known singers, dancers, comedians and other entertainers came to Sing Sing prison yesterday to entertain the convicts at their annual Christmas show. More than 1,800 of the 2,464 inmates attended.

Among those on the program were Jack Dempsey, Guy Lombardo, Jack White, Gus Van, Norman Brokenshire, George Hall, Lannie Ross, Roy Atwell, Lulu Bates, Jerry Bergen, the Picken Sisters, Arthur Tracy, the "Embassy Boys," May Singhi Breen, Peter Derose, the Keller Sisters and Lynch, Dr. Rockwell, Vaughn de Leath and Bill Robinson.

"Twenty-one Years Is a Long Time" got perhaps the biggest hand. It was a song about a woman who turned her man over to the police and then regretted it.

Mount Mercy Staff Plans Yearly Dance

Knights Arrange Yuletide Program

A Christmas entertainment will be held by Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus, the night of December 28 at the Crafton K. of C. Edward Lee Bladel is general chairman and Lawrence O'Toole, chairman of the dance committee. Others aiding in arranging for the affair are Howard Earl, John Suehr, Albert M. Sehn, James L. Shaughnessy, Paul Volk, Arthur J. McFarlin, Charles E. Wilt, A. J. Dudley and J. P. Killeen.

NUNS TO TEACH PUBLIC SCHOOLS

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Plans of the school board to assimilate pupils of the Winnipeg Catholic parochial schools into the public schools here the first of the year are now under way, and a move is on foot to retain the Catholic pupils in their former schools.

It was recently announced that continued maintenance of the parochial schools would have to be abandoned because the burden was too great for the Catholic community here.

Under the plan, the present staff of parochial school teachers, mainly members of Catholic religious orders, would be retained, but religious garb and emblems would not be permitted in the schoolrooms. Teaching would be on non-sectarian lines.

Rome Hails Ricci, U.S. Boy Violinist

ROME, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Twelve-year-old Ruggiero Ricci, of San Francisco, was hailed as a violin prodigy and was given a great ovation at the Augusteo Theater here yesterday. It was the first appearance here of the orchestra directed by Bernardino Molinari as well as of the American boy.

College Girl Killed In Ohio Auto Crash

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 19.—Elizabeth Bunn, 19, daughter of F. S. Bunn, former hospital superintendent here, was killed in an auto crash as she returned home from Western Reserve College for the Christmas holidays

AMY SMASHES FLIGHT RECORD

CROYDEN AIRPORT, London, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, British airwoman, whose courage equals that of her noted flying husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, has completed her flight from Cape Town, Africa, to Croydon, arriving yesterday. She made the trip in a few minutes more than seven days.

Mrs. Mollison beat the Cape Town-to-Croydon record of nine and a half days, established by Duchess Bedford and Capt. C. D. Barnard. She is the first woman to make the double flight to Cape town and back.

"Hullo, Amy, I'm so proud of you."

Amy, smiling broadly, replied:

"Thank you, Jim. I'm so pleased for your sake and for mine."

Mrs. Mollison left Cape Town at dawn December 11, hoping to make a quick flight here, but bad weather and fogs caused delays.

COOKE, WRITER OF VERSE, DIES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Edmund Vance Cooke, poet and lecturer, died suddenly at his home yesterday, his heart affected by an attack of acute indigestion. He was 66.

Born in Port Dover, Ont., Cooke began his early education in Cleveland, and at the age of 12 did his first writing. He compiled a weekly paper which contained material from such authors as Dickens and Shakespeare and inserted his own compositions.

His first published book was a collection of poems entitled "A Patch of Pansies," issued in 1894. Since that time he had written more than a score of volumes of poetry and many articles for periodicals. Many of his poems were for children, probably the most favored among them being "Moo-Cow-Moo" and "The Sin of the Coppenter Man."

"Death comes with a crawl, or it comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But only how did you die?"

PINNED FARMER SAVED BY DOGS

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kan., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Pete Bahr, Bazaar (Kan.) farmer, is alive, thanks to his two dogs, a collie and a small terrier.

While cutting timber the farmer was caught by a falling tree. The bones in one leg were shattered.

The dogs remained near the crippled man until after nightfall, when they returned to the farmhouse and attracted attention by frenzied barking.

Gus Bahr, a brother of the injured wood cutter, sought to learn the meaning of the disturbance and was led by the animals to the scene of the accident.

The victim had lain on the ground, in a temperature of near zero, for seven hours.

Squirrel Hill Home Damaged By Flames

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

TOM MIX QUITS MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Tom Mix, cowboy film hero, has announced he will retire from the talking screen Christmas Day, and said the retirement probably would be permanent if he could arrange to return to a circus.

Mix said:

"I began as a circus performer and I'd like to quit that way. Making pictures is an exciting and fascinating profession but when a man has the call of the sawdust ring in his ears it is hard to ignore it."

By agreement with officials of Universal Studios, Mix obtained his release from a second contract and will be a free agent when he finishes his present picture this week-end. He plans a leisurely tour of the world, taking with him his trained horses and his associates.

Patrolman's Death Declared Suicide

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 19.—Coroner E. R. Sturgis today handed down a "suicide" verdict after an inquest into the death of William Murphy, 60, former Youngstown mill patrolman, found hanging from a clothesline tied to a tree near his home at East Fairfield.

Bloodhounds on Trail Of Deputy's Slayer

GREENVILLE, Miss., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—W. J. C. Davis, 45, town marshall and deputy sheriff of Glen Allan, Miss., was shot and killed yesterday by Cleve Kaiser, 25-year-old Negro, whom he sought to arrest for creating a disturbance in Glen Allan, 35 miles south of here.

Davis had placed handcuffs on one of the Negro's wrists when he drew a pistol and fired twice. Kaiser fled and today was the object of a search by a posse of county officers and citizens with bloodhounds.

PERSIA WARNS OIL COMPANY

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The Tass (Russian) News Agency correspondent at Teheran, Persia, reported today that the newspaper Shefa e Serkh, in an article attacking officials of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company for failing to revise its government concession contract as allegedly promised, warned that the Persian government is prepared to defend its rights by force if necessary. He quoted the newspaper as saying:

"The company tried by means of different flattering promises and deceptions practiced on members of the Persian government to make the world believe the concession had been sanctioned."

Declaring the silence of the former Shah with respect to the contract was "compulsory," the newspaper said, "but at present the government has sufficient forces to defend its own rights. Each Persian soldier is ready with his own blood to defend the interests of the country."

WOMAN RADIO SINGER JAILED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mary Lee Hartman, 55, once a social leader, was arrested early today while singing in a radio station on a charge of receiving money under false pretense.

Mrs. Jane W. Bechtel, who preferred the charge, claimed she was given a bad check by Mrs. Hartman when she demanded the return of $350 which the defendant persuaded her to invest in an unprofitable used automobile business. Mrs. Hartman gave her address as St. David's and the "Log Cabin," Norristown, on the police blotter.

Police said she had twice previously been indicted on similar charges, but each time the prosecution was withdrawn by the accusers. When the charges were made public she was expelled by the Daughters of the American Confederacy in which she had been a prominent member, according to authorities.

When Mrs. Hartman protested she could not be arrested on Sunday, Detective Raymond Latchford engaged her in conversation and at 12:05 a. m. announced it was Monday and formally took her into custody.

Find Mayview Man Dead Near Railway

An inmate of the City Hospital at Mayview was found dead, his body mutilated, alongside the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Mayview today. He was identified as Robert West, 55. At the hospital it was said he had been given permission yesterday to go to Bridgeville and apparently had been struck by a train.

What About the College Man?

Presidents of American universities and colleges and the heads of the nation's great industrial employers of man power have answered this all-important question for the Sun-Telegraph. The second of these remarkable articles is presented today and another will follow.

THOUSANDS OF YOUNG men and women are graduated every year by universities and colleges, the beneficiaries of a superior general education.

In view of existing economic conditions, has there been, or is there likely to be an overproduction?

Seeking the viewpoint of the heads of the educational institutions themselves and of industrial leaders to whom employment is a serious problem, the editor asked opinions from those most important throughout the nation.

The editor of the Sun-Telegraph in letters to the educators and industrial leaders wrote:

Assuming that the depression has made jobs of every description, particularly the so-called white collar jobs, very scarce, what is going to become of the flood of young men who graduate in 1933 from the American universities? Many avenues of employment are now either closed entirely or greatly restricted. Under the circumstances, of what value is a superior general education? Does it not rather unfit the American youth to face such emergency conditions as now exist?

Or do you think a general education may be an advantage no matter what class of work the graduated student may be compelled to undertake?

Do you think there should be an official restriction of the size of the student body for the year 1933-34, or do you favor continuing on present lines?

FROM Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, Ph. D., LL. D., president of the University of Illinois, comes the opinion that no matter what the present conditions, higher education will be of untold value later. He states:

"There is, of course, a great deal of unemployment among this year's and last year's college graduates, and the immediate prospects for the classes graduating next spring are not bright.

"I cannot believe, however, that the education which these men have received, is going to be anything but an advantage to them later on. Certainly in the competition for most types of jobs they will in the long run have the advantage.

On the other hand, there will undoubtedly be many individual cases of disintegration. The type and character of work which these men will probably do, at any rate for a time, will doubtless be exceedingly varied and extend far beyond the confines of the so-called 'white collar' jobs.

"Personally it has seemed to me that any curtailment of the opportunities of higher education at this time would be disastrous.

"For example, if half of the million young men and women now enrolled in colleges, universities, professional and technical schools should be turned loose the already tragic problem of the general unemployment would became that much more serious. We would have half a million young and vigorous people competing for jobs of all kinds.

"If any emergency measures are to be undertaken it seems to me they should be in the other direction, namely, to make it possible for the unemployed, who are competent to do so, to attend educational institutions. In a good many instances such a course would unquestionably save morale and self-respect.

"It is all very well to say that maintaining or increasing the facilities for higher education is simply going to complicate the problem of the college unemployed later on. That is true, but a nation in which the average condition is that of education up to maturity maintains unemployment permanently at a much lower level.

"We are coming to see, I believe, that unemployment in America is not an emergency problem. It is one of the things with which we are going to have to reckon permanently from now on. Improvements in industrial efficiency are so great in the last few years that probably not more than half of the industrial unemployed would be put to work even with the return of peak production. We must, therefore, in the long run arrive at a plan which makes a long range attack on this problem. In such a plan it seems to me that a prolonged period of education must be an important factor.

"Naturally my faith in higher education is based on other things as well. Certainly no one would seriously propose that four years of college or university life make a man more unfit to deal with the world in which he must live.

"The records of college and university graduates everywhere would indicate that not to be the case, and if every young man and woman needed higher education and needed to understand and adapt themselves to their world that time is now."

THE QUESTIONS asked the university presidents are of prime importance in the opinion of Robert Gordon Sproul, L.L. D., president of the University of California, who writes:

"The questions you ask are, of course, of prime importance. It is certainly my opinion that it is infinitely better for young men who are unable to obtain employment to continue their studies, broadening and deepening their training and keeping at work, than to walk the streets, knocking at the doors of employers, who have nothing for them to do. For that reason, among others, I should be opposed to any arbitrary restriction of the size of the student body for the year 1933-34.

"I feel that whatever temporary conditions may bring, a thoroughly educated man will, in the long run, reap profit from his training.

"You ask what is to become of the flood of young men who graduate in 1933 from the American university. That question depends upon so many variables and so many unpredictable circumstances that I do not feel competent to answer it. Unless economic conditions improve, I suppose that a large percentage of them will return to colleges for further training. That is what seems to have been happening in California.

"Finally, my opinion is very strongly that the present situation cannot continue indefinitely. Either economic conditions will change and these young men find the opportunities which would have been theirs under normal conditions, or our entire economic system will crack and, perhaps, break."

HIGHER EDUCATION is only more education fitting any recipient for life's battles, in the opinion of J. L. Newcomb, acting president of the University of Virginia. He says:

"It is my judgment that a general education will be of distinct advantage to any person receiving it, no matter what class of work the graduated student may be compelled to undertake.

"Higher education is simply more education which should better prepare a person to enjoy both work and leisure.

"I think all persons having the aptitude and means for a college education should pursue such a course of study to better fit them for society."

4 ARMED MEN ROB GAS STAND

From Harold Winkler, an attendant of the Cities Service Gasoline Company, Hamilton and Dallas avenues, four armed men took $75 after threatening him with a gun, he reported to police early yesterday.

Returning to their home Saturday the family of S. S. Slocum reported their residence, 5718 Darlington road, had been entered and ransacked by thieves. The extent of the loss was not determined.

The combination of a safe was knocked off by thieves who forced a door in the Kenmore gasoline station, 6330 Broad street, early yesterday, according to a police report. The safe was not opened.

Vaudeville Comic Dies Feeding Hens

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The death of Claud Usher, member of a comic vaudeville team that toured the country for 20 years, became known today. Usher died Saturday while sifting feed on his chicken ranch near here, where he and his wife, Fannie, other member of the team, retired four years ago.

The Usher act included antics of a dog called "Spareribs," picked up from a dog pound in the East. This dog died, but was replaced by another of the same name, and the latter is still on the Usher ranch.

No Luck in Bridge, Girl Kills Herself

DETROIT, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Miss Marion Heison, 26, shot and killed herself and friends attributed the act to her dejection over bad luck at bridge.

Miss Margaret Grenat said she visited Miss Heison yesterday and found her still brooding over a game Saturday night. Miss Grenat quoted her as saying, "No luck. I just haven't any luck," a few minutes before she went into another room and shot herself.

Odd Hatchet Found Beside Slain Chinese

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Hen Gar Ying, who ran a Brooklyn laundry under the name of George Sang, was found hacked to death in his shop yesterday. A hatchet of unusual design lay nearby.

Two Chinese who identified the body said Ying had been warned recently against cutting prices in his laundry.

McCanns says Merry Christmas

McCanns Puritan TURKEYS

always the choice of those who are hard to please

lb. 19c

THE turkey experts responsible for the selection of turkeys to wear the "Puritan" label tell us that we (McCanns) are the hardest people to please with whom they do business. We're hard to please because McCann customers are hard to please. They know their quality and it's up to us to see that they get it.

ONLY the finest birds from the cold Northwest come to McCanns. In order to secure enough of them to take care of our trade, they must be contracted for in advance. "Puritan" turkeys cannot be bought just anywhere, anytime. There's a possibility that we may sell out of Puritan Turkeys before Saturday night; but there's one thing we are sure of and that is . . . turkeys of inferior grades will not be brought into McCanns at the last minute and sold as "Puritans."

Price will be maintained through Saturday

AS we said before, it's necessary for us to contract for Puritan turkeys in advance in order to get the cream of the flocks, and once the cost is determined our price is fixed. It will not change this week. Turkeys will be 19c a pound at closing time next Saturday, or as long as our supply lasts.

Freshly dressed...what it means

FRESHLY dressed is a trade term applying to poultry that has been dressed for immediate sale and it means exactly this at McCanns. After you purchase your turkey it is drawn and the head and feet removed; it is then ready for the pan. Unless otherwise specified, turkey prices are based on the weight of the bird before it is drawn and the head and feet removed.

No Deposit Required on Orders

YOU may telephone your turkey order or leave it personally at McCanns without paying a deposit. Many customers who ordered turkeys at Thanksgiving time have asked us to duplicate their orders. McCann customers are happy to depend on us for this service. One out of every eight turkeys sold at Thanksgiving time was ordered over the telephone on a no-deposit basis.

Work for Fineness in Spite Of Bad Examples

Which is "The Wild Generation?"

Is it the youngsters, with their frank talk, and their freedom—

Or is it the oldsters?

Read Gaylord's letter, and then tell us what you think.

My Dear Miss Robinson:

Will you help me, please? I need a hand from someone.

Ever since I can remember I have regarded my mother as a sort of Golden Goddess, as most young people rightfully should, but in the last few years the gold has been tarnished, and I just don't know what to believe in, or how to respect anything any more.

She is quite young—about 38—and she is very beautiful. She dresses in excellent taste, and all my life it has been my greatest pleasure to introduce her to my friends as my mother, because most folks take us for brother and sister. For, you see, I am 21 years old, and she doesn't look a day over 30.

Now, however, she is going with another man, and she asks me to help her arrange her dates, so that dad will never suspect what is going on.

We manage to come home together, so we have not been caught so far. I say "we," because I feel as guilty as if it were my own sin.

To complicate things, my father also "cheats." He was the first to start it, in fact, and I think if he hadn't, mother would never have started in either. You see, she knows about him.

RESPECTS MARRIAGE

And this situation in my own family isn't all that bothers me. Even at the office where I work, every married man is having an affair with some girl.

How can I be expected to respect my parents? How can I respect marriage as it is today? What can I believe in? How can I respect anything that is supposed to be sacred and holy, with all these things going on around me? How?

But the fact is that I do respect these things; especially marriage. As soon as my salary permits it I shall marry, myself, for I have found a wonderful girl. But her folks were separated by "cheating," too—"cheating" by her father.

Where do I stand? What shall I do? Shall I ask mother to stop going with this man? Shall I leave home, to keep what respect I have for the things it seems to me should be respected?

GAYLORD.

Is that the kind of picture you are painting for your children, Stranger? Is that the sort of example you're giving them to "live up to?" It's the kind of an example scores of Oldsters are giving the Younger Generation. And so long as it is, have we a right to howl at them if they go haywire? Think it over!

WORK FOR FINENESS

Now as to you youngsters—what "can you respect if you can't respect your parents, or the men you work with?"

You can respect the fineness of yourself—the fineness that can be in everyone if they have the spunk to work for it. And you can work for that fineness. You must work for it, no matter what kind of examples you see around you.

Life doesn't ever run smoothly or perfectly for anyone. We have to fight for the light. We have to fight to be regular, no matter what the people around us do.

That is the way life grows. That is the way character grows—in ourselves, and in spite of the muck and the failures around us. You can be a real man, no matter who fails you, if you've got the grit.

So carry on, son, and here's my hand to you! Maybe it might help if you asked Mother to give up her running around, but quite as likely it won't. You can't live her life for her. She is responsible, herself, and herself alone, for what she does to her own life.

But, whatever she does, live up always to the best in you. For you, and no one else, make your life.

Over 1,300,000 Christmas cards were finally sent to the Dead Letter Office in Washington, D. C., one year.

Some addresses could not be read. Many were incorrect. None had the sender's name and address written on the back of the envelope so that the card could be returned to the sender if it could not be delivered.

The United States postoffices everywhere want to deliver your Christmas card or package, but YOU must do YOUR part.

You must write plainly, and mail early to allow for delays from winter storms.

During the extra rush and bulk of holiday mail it is so necessary for you to do your part as willingly and well as the postoffice will do theirs.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Father Watches Brixton Read Ransom Note

I found difficulty in breathing normally as my father and I, after inquiring at the desk of the Sackettsville Inn for the Underwoods, made our way up the broad staircase of the quaint and charming hostelry to the front of the second floor. Ronald opened the door, and as we came in we saw Harry Underwood and Sam Brixton seated in opposite corners of the room, patently as far away from each other as they could get. Mary sat near the bedroom door, and put up a warning hand at our entrance.

"We hope they're asleep," Harry Underwood said in so low a tone that I, facing him, could hardly hear it. But there was a rustle, a stumbling, in the other room, and the next instant the two mothers, pallid, hollow-eyed Helena, wild of mien, and Lillian composed, came hastily into the sitting room of the suite.

"Have you heard?" Helena gasped, but Lillian looked at me understandingly.

"You have a message," she said, and moving swiftly across the room I laid one of the photographs Dr. Barnes had made in her hands, and put the other into Helena Brixton's trembling fingers.

MESSAGE READ

Behind me I heard my father relating to Harry Underwood and Samuel Brixton the story of the arrival of the message, and the precautions he had taken to preserve any possible finger prints upon it, but I knew that neither mother was paying any attention to what he said. Their eyes were leaping from line to line of the photographed letter. Lillian uttered no sound after one sharp, quickly suppressed little cry, but Helena broke into pitiful sobbing when she had finished.

"Oh, my baby! My darling!" she moaned. "Look? Sam! It's her own handwriting. And she's frightened, too. Oh, we must take them the money! It will take everything we have, but we must! Do you hear?"

"One hundred thousand dollars," Samuel Brixton said slowly, almost dazedly, and dabbed at his forehead with the handkerchief. "What do they imagine we are? That's a millionaire's ransom."

Helena's voice was a choked scream.

"Oh, it must be raised!"

I started at Lillian's voice. It was as mechanical, as devoid of sympathy as if she had said "please brush those mosquitoes away from Helena."

Patently every person in the room, as well as the ransom named, was dwarfed by some supreme tenacious thought born of the photographed letter in Marion's handwriting, which she was studying so intently.

BRIXTON WATCHED

But whatever her reaction, it did not engage my attention as did my father's eyes. He stood just inside the door, and while he appeared to be looking at both sets of parents, I knew that Sam Brixton's face alone was the subject of his scrutiny. But I could read nothing from my father's expression any more than I could fathom what lay behind Sam Brixton's perturbation.

"What do you think, Chief?" Harry Underwood lifted his eyes from the photographed note and looked at my father. "Do they mean this sum, or have they put it out as a feeler? They must know——"

"That it is beyond all reason, yes," my father said, "although," hastily, as Helena gave another sharp little cry—"it is one that can be raised, if they give us a little time. Remember that all the resources of our family—I know I speak for Richard and Margaret as well as myself—are pledged with yours."

"I know," Harry Underwood's eyes came across to him gratefully. "But—do you think the whole sum will be necessary?"

My father's eyes were still upon Sam Brixton's face, and he repeated the question to the man who I knew Lillian's husband would not address directly if he could avoid it.

"What do you think, Mr. Brixton? Is the sum mentioned a stall, or do they expect to get all of it?"

Household Hints

An oiled rag wiped over the bright parts of the cooking stove will prevent stains from spitting kettles or saucepans.

Many housewives enjoy the cloth flour sacks for house cloths, but find the colored letters objectionable. Apply pure lard freely to all the letters and trade-marks and rub it in well. Then soak in tepid water for two or three days. Put in boiler with soap flakes and boil. The sacks will come out beautifully white.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

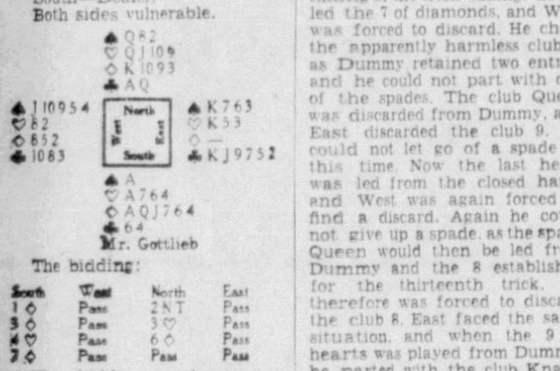
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Difficult Grand Slam

Luck, the master jokesmith, whose special province it is to look after the dealing of cards in a Contract Bridge game, frequently plays strange pranks, and, to listen to the conversation between rubbers at the Bridge table, almost every player seems to think that he singles him out and gives him the hardest problems to solve when it comes both to the bidding and play of the cards.

Perhaps, however, Mr. Michael T. Gottlieb, one of the world's ranking players, did have a slight complaint against Luck when he was called upon to play the hand below at a Grand Slam contract. However, I prefer to think that he was given the opportunity for magnificent and unusual play, and that Luck was more than passing kind in giving to him the chance that comes to few at the Contract table or elsewhere—that is, the working out of a difficult problem through brilliant and accurate deduction.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



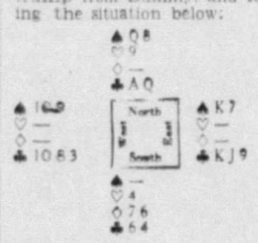
Mr. Gottlieb

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
7 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding, perhaps, was overstrong, but the justification was the large premium for making a Grand Slam, given under the new scoring. When the Dummy went down, it seemed that the success of the Slam contract probably rested upon the making of two successful finesses. The percentage, therefore, was strongly against the fulfillment of the contract. One finesse must be taken, but possibly, Mr. Gottlieb reasoned, the other might be avoided. The possibility of a triple squeeze was present, if only the heart King were in the East hand.

The Opening lead was the spade Knave, and a small spade was played from the Dummy hand. East playing the 6 and the Declarer winning with the Ace. The diamond suit was cleared, and East was forced to make three discards. His first two were the 5 and 2 of clubs, completing the echo in that suit. He then parted with the spade 3. The third round of diamonds was won in the Dummy, and the heart Queen led. East played a small heart, Mr. Gottlieb also played small, and the Queen held the trick. Two more rounds of hearts followed, the King falling on the third round. On this round, West discarded the spade 4. A fourth round of diamonds was then led, removing the last trump from Dummy, and leaving the situation below:



The problem was not yet solved. It still required careful play and the most accurate timing of the trick-taking. South led the 7 of diamonds, and West was forced to discard. He chose the apparently harmless club 3, as Dummy retained two entries and he could not part with one of the spades. The club Queen was discarded from Dummy, and East discarded the club 9. He could not let go of a spade at this time. Now the last heart was led from the closed hand, and West was again forced to find a discard. Again he could not give up a spade, as the spade Queen would then be led from Dummy and the 8 established for the thirteenth trick. He therefore was forced to discard the club 8. East faced the same situation, and when the 9 of hearts was played from Dummy, he parted with the club Knave. Now the Ace of clubs was led, dropping the remaining adverse clubs. To the twelfth trick the spade 8 was led from the Dummy trumped with the 6, and the thirteenth and Grand Slam trick taken with the 6 of clubs in the Declarer's hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: North opens with a bid of one diamond, East bids two diamonds, and South bids three diamonds. What bid, if any, should West make with the following hand?

♠ 10 7 5 2 ♡ J 10 7 4 3 ◇ 5 ♣ K 9 4

Answer: West should bid three hearts. East's bid of two diamonds, an Overcall of the opponent's bid suit, infers a very powerful hand and is Forcing to game. It is, therefore, incumbent upon West to show his five-card heart suit before the bidding mounts any higher.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Green is a good color for the red-haired pretty, and some blondes can wear it, but it is death on the complexion of the brunette. Only the white-haired beauty can wear purple with satisfactory results. Steel gray is trying to all types; it is cold, does nothing to enhance the beauty of the eyes or to bring out the fresh coloring of the skin. French blue is a shade that is acceptable to all, and so is navy.

The long bob has no place in present-day fashions; yet the girls love it, hang onto it as an old cat hangs onto her kittens. With the hat of abbreviated dimensions, curls low on the neck make the head appear too long at the back, impart an effect that is more dragging than sassy. Some coiffures with lifted ringlets show a close shingle at the nape of the neck. That's about the only way to acquire the tricky new hairdress.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Lunch for the Child at School

Dr. Copeland

Recently I read with great interest a report giving the results of a questionnaire sent to school authorities and teachers. It was desired to find out what foods are most popular with children at lunch time.

The most favored foods were found to be sandwiches of salmon and tuna fish, cooked rice, hard boiled eggs, bread and butter, milk, fresh and stewed fruits. The children were attracted to the food when it was displayed with a bit of decorative color, such as parsley or a drop of jelly.

Food authorities recommend a hot lunch for the school child. Many modern schools provide a supervised lunchroom. Here they serve a carefully planned luncheon, hot, nourishing and attractive.

For lunch the mother should plan a simple, yet nourishing meal, containing a hot dish. Even though the luncheon period is limited, the child should be given this hot dish, with a glass of milk and buttered bread. If time permits, fruit and cookies, fruit and gelatine, tapioca with dates, or some other equally nutritive dessert should top off the meal.

The school child needs foods that will help him to grow. It is important that "protective foods," such as milk, fruit, vegetables and eggs, are always included in the daily diet. Of all the protective foods, milk is the most valuable. Every school child should drink at least one quart of milk a day. For the undernourished and underweight child, arrangement should be made at school so that a glass of milk is taken between meals.

Please bear in mind the importance of proper selection of foods to guarantee the growth and development of children. Foods should be varied and tempting.

The child should never be forced to eat, but he should be encouraged to eat. Make it your business to explain how essential it is to eat at meal time and to eat everything. How often have I heard mothers coax, plead and beg children to eat. This attitude is unwise and increases the feeding problem.

I would advise that you make a list of foods to be served for the school luncheons. Plan your menu one week in advance. Include such valuable foods as milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals, cream, butter and eggs. If the child cannot come home for lunch, explain the dangers of rich foods and filling desserts.

Co-operation between the mother and the school and medical authorities will result in education of the child to the value of nutritious foods. This practice in youth will develop sturdy and healthy citizens for the future.

Answers to Health Queries

L. O. F. Q.—What should a girl of 13, 5 feet 4 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 115 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engagement Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have reason to believe Mother may refuse to announce my engagement as she does not feel any too kindly toward my sweetheart. Is such an announcement necessary? If it is, who can make it for me . . . my oldest brother, my sweetheart's step-mother . . . who is his only relation, and wonderfully sweet?

I would appreciate any information you can send me on these matters. M.

If you have even a hope that eventually your mother will "come around" to your way of thinking, I do hope that you will decide to wait for this happy solution. This does save so many heartbreaks in the future, and places a fine crown of happiness on the engagement and marriage. Otherwise, it's so hard, so very hard, to lift this cloud.

But if now or later you really do feel in your heart that this is or will be an impossibility, I do urge you to do everything in the best taste possible.

And never would it be in good taste for you to have anyone else but your mother and father make this announcement. It would look so "pointed" for you to have your brother make this announcement. And it would be unbelievably poor taste for you to have your sweetheart's step-mother make this announcement, even if she is "wonderfully sweet."

So, under these circumstances, it would be better for you not to have any public announcement. That is, an announcement in the newspapers, for instance . . . this, as a matter of fact, is, of course, never even necessary. And formal engagement announcements, engraved or printed, are NEVER sent out by people of taste. So all you have to do to "announce" your engagement is to tell your relatives (and be SURE to tell your mother first), and close friends, and write notes to the others who live too far away or whom you won't be seeing soon. As a matter of fact, this simple form of announcing is all the announcement that is ever necessary for an engagement.

PREMIER MACDONALD :-: Tibbett, Paul Whiteman, Marx Brothers' Comedy :-: BROADCASTS TODAY

Christmas Toy Plea Made On Air

An internationally-broadcast address by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain; the comedy of Groucho and Chico Marx; the chills of "Fu Manchu," "Juggernaut" and "Paris" mysteries and Lawrence Tibbett's weekly recital headline tonight's ether offerings on Pittesburgh stations.

Premier MacDonald discusses "The Nation and Unemployment" when he appears as guest speaker during the regular Monday afternoon international broadcast from London, heard locally through WJAS, today from 4:20 to 4:40.

Mr. MacDonald

Tibbett, making his second appearance of the season as the "Voice of Firestone" soloist, sings Valentine's "Farewell," from Gounod's "Faust;" "The Heavens Are Telling," by Beethoven; the Prologue from "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, and the old Irish air, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," on WCAE at 8:30.

With Christmas Eve just a few days away, a portion of the Carnation Contented program on WCAE at 10 is devoted to a "Santa Claus" plea. Utilizing the time usually taken up by commercial announcements, Gene Arnold urges the program's listeners to remember needy children with toys, food and warm clothing.

Program Pointers

Samuel di Primio, Greensburg tenor, who has been invited to sing for Gatti Cassazzo, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, on January 5, presents a quarter-hour recital from KDKA at 10:30 tonight... Frank Parker and Virginia Rea join in a duet version of "Where My Caravan Has Rested," and offer "I Heard You Singing" and "Sesarin Rose" as their respective solos during Paul Whiteman's presentation over NBC-WCAE at 9:30 p. m. Whiteman's instrumental feature is Ferde Grofe's "Christmas Fantasy."

Mr. Di Primio

Further foolishness by Groucho and Chico as they pursue the activities of their dizzy law firm, "Beagle, Shyster and Beagle," is scheduled on KDKA at 7:30.

Riggs and Moke, the "Crazy Pair," absent from the air during the last week while Tommy Riggs battled "Old Man Flu," return via WCAE at 7 tonight.

Listening In on Gossip of Radioland

Wonder how the stars plan to spend Christmas? Kate Smith, who had hoped to be home for the holidays, will have to be content in Hollywood working on her picture. So will Ted Collins. Nat Brusiloff and Jack Miller. . . . Ruth Etting will spend Christmas Eve singin' the blues—it's her night on the air . . . The Jack Bennys will fly to Chicago to visit his father . . .

Miss Etting

Benny Kreuger, the maestro, plans to take a cruise to Havana unless he has to fill a Chicago theater engagement . . . Adele Ronson is counting on a few days on the New Jersey shore . . . Freddie Rich will play golf at Pinehurst, N. C., while Mark Warnow journeys in the opposite direction for some winter-sporting at Lake Placid . . .

Stoopnagle and Budd return to work during the holiday period . . . Norman Brokenshire will don his overalls every day he gets off in order to help build his new Long Island house . . . Singin' Sam will fly to his farm in the Hoosier State . . .

The Boswells will keep open-house at their Manhattan apartment . . . and Ted Weems will keep on working unless he obeys his doctor's orders and spends a few days in the country.

At the mike: Judge Gordon shakes his finger for emphasis . . . William S. Rainey teeters on his toes . . . Charles Magnanti, the accordion virtuoso, leans on one foot and rests his instrument on his left knee . . . Jane Pickens keeps time with one hand in cheer-leader fashion . . . Harry Horlick wrinkles his forehead . . . Frank Crumit winks at the musicians . . . and Eddie Cantor grasps James Wallington about the shoulders with one arm.

Nat Shilkret would rather use an inverted xylophone stick than a baton for directing his orchestra . . . because the ordinary baton is so light he breaks the tip rapping on his music rack.

Reports have it that Mildred Bailey may be seen as well as heard in a musical comedy . . . and Victor Moore and Bill Gaxton, of "Of Thee I Sing," may be co-starred in a new radio show.

Columbia, the gem of the ocean, has played a prominent part in the lives of the Mitchell Brothers, Carson Robison's banjo-ticklers and cowboy yodelers. They were born in Columbia, Tenn., went to the Columbia High School, studied law at Columbia University and lived for a year in the District of Columbia . . . Now, just for diversion, they're broadcasting over National Broadcasting Company networks.

Harold Stern celebrated his tenth year in radio last week. Among his pioneering achievements, he points with pride to having been the first to direct his orchestra from a remote point through the medium of television.

No elusive tune has ever escaped Sigmund Spaeth, the Song Sleuth . . . He even found his lost dog recently . . . But he had a few bad moments the other day when he lost his check in a restaurant and after diligent and earnest searching, had to ask the waitress to find it.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Did we start plenty of excitement with that announcement concerning dogs? Everybody in town must want one, and there were only three available. Nine more owners have offered pets, so that brings the total to 12, but they won't go far when you consider the hundreds of requests. There was also a big demand on the Animal Rescue League, but it still has a few dogs at its farm in Rosedale, on the Verona road. There is no charge, but it is customary to make a small donation to the cause. Rob Snyder will be glad to assist any disappointed Globe-Trotter.

* * *

The announcement made the other day that Pittsburgh has the most beautiful women in the world was meant to include all the points where "Globetrottresses" listen in. Forgive me, Braddock; forgive me, McKeesport; forgive me, Culmerville; forgive me.

* * *

How's the old brain clicking today? If on your orderly bookshelves there were three volumes of history, their covers measuring one quarter inch across in thickness and the pages of each volume one inch, how far would a bookworm have to travel if it started at Volume one, page one, and ate its way to the last page of the last volume? Two inches. What these globetrotters do think of.

* * *

Talking about prized possessions, the mother of Mrs. H. R. Rumpf, who does her listening at Wheeling, treasures the first oil painting done by Carrie Jacobs Bond, the beloved ballad composer. Years ago Mrs. Rumpf's mother lived with Mrs. Bond.

* * *

If weather conditions are the same when you read this as they are when it is being written your ice skating problems will remain problems. The ice is thick enough in all city parks except Highland. But is it rough? Don't try it without a pillow and a bottle of arnica. Anyway, Duquesne Garden will open soon.

Bird Program Makes Debut On Air

"Pullen's Pet Shop," a new series of three-a-week programs presented by Purvis Pullen, bird and animal imitator, and Beverly Stull, accordionist, is inaugurated on KDKA at 8:30 tomorrow morning. The "Pet Shop" will be on the air each Tuesday and Thursday at 8:30 a. m. and each Saturday at 9:15 a. m.

Jack Smith Features Beer Theme Song

In anticipation of the return of bock and sundry brews, Whispering Jack Smith sings one of the theme songs of beer days, "Down Where the Wurlitzer Flows," at 8 tonight over WJAS.

HAPGOOD NEAR DEATH BY GUN

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Powers Hapgood, youthful Indiana leader in the Socialist party, wounded by the accidental discharge of a pistol, was in a "very satisfactory," although critical, condition at St. Vincent's Hospital today.

His physician said the danger of infection following Saturday night's operation would not be removed for 24 hours.

Hapgood, Social candidate for Governor of Indiana at the last election, was wounded in the abdomen at his suburban home when a pistol being used in target practice was fired accidentally.

The weapon was held by William L. Hines, friend of the Hapgood family. Hines and Hapgood had been shooting at a target.

NEW KREISLER OPERA TO OPEN

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Fritz Kreisler has arrived in Vienna and taken charge of the final rehearsals of his opera, "Sissy," based on the love story of Austria's beloved Empress Elizabeth, which will have its world premiere next Friday.

The event promises to be outstanding in the Vienna music season, for it will be the famous Austrian violinist's first appearance as the composer and director of an opera.

Technically, too, the evening will be interesting because the principal musical themes have been developed from melodies long familiar to music lovers in Kreisler's own violin compositions. He has taken these operatic themes from such well-known works as his "Caprice Viennoise," "Love's Joy" and "Love's Sorrow."

Duets abound in the piece, among them being a ballad of light wines and beer, done, however, in the Viennese rather than the American style.

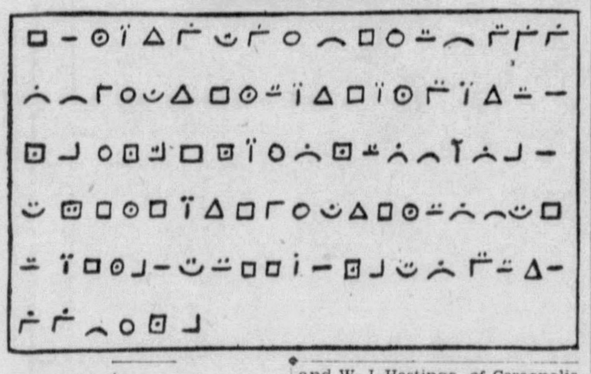
CIPHER NO. 27



By KENNETH A. NAGEL,
Cipher Editor.

"Bogie" has set your time at 2 to 3 hours.

Now for cipher No. 27—did you have any trouble with it? The Cipher Editor didn't think it would stump you.

If you didn't get it, here's how: Follow the table and you will find the answer was:

Earthly life is full of ciphers. The truth and inventions of today were the ciphers of yesterday. Seek and you shall find.

From the fans come letters of praise for ciphers appearing in the Sun-Telegraph. Names include those of Miss Evelyn Hankey, of 1243 Pointview street; Richard Peterson, of 1102 Milan avenue, and W. J. Hastings, of Coraopolis. All say they have decoded the messages in record time.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Your new office radio is working fine, now . . . You owe a lot of thanks to the J. M. McGuire people for going to all that trouble. Because of the presses, etc., there would be great interference in any receiving set in this building. However, they put up a lot of extra wiring (350 ft. of it) and now it's behaving beautifully.

They want you to inspect scripts for your second movie short . . . Toss an orchid at The Vestry Room of the Central Synagogue at 652 Lexington Ave. Unemployed women and girls can get a good and complete meal at any time from Monday morning to Friday evening—free. It is non-sectarian . . . I realize what a better place the world really is, when I hear about things like this . . . Arthur Lake and Vera Marshe are having Jolly Moments . . . Wasn't that an amazing story of Milton Berle's mother and sister in that bandit-driven cab? . . . And weren't they lucky they weren't hit by all those bullets? . . . At least a dozen clowns called up to tell you that the obvious reason Berle wasn't in the cab with them was that he must have been seeing a show some place—joke-shopping . . . Billy Glason is in a lather because no paper recording the passing of Lon Haskell mentioned his great work for the Jewish Theatrical Guild. Glason confused Loney Haskell with the late Lon—and wasted a lot of time getting mad.

Last year you helped the Crippled Children's Party at the Julia Richmond High School—by getting a magician and Punch and Judy . . . This annual party, which is held on the Sunday before Christmas, needs your help again . . . They don't want magicians or acts this time—they would appreciate a peppy master of ceremonies . . . To make the kids feel that they were part of the fun instead of merely being onlookers . . . If you can promise such a master of ceremonies, have him call me, please . . . It's a boy at the Joe and Marion Nelsons . . . Say! I just thought. How about asking Billy Glason to be that master of ceremonies? There isn't a better one anywhere! . . . Amtorg has the household effects of the late czar at the appraiser's store on Varick street. Collectors have been invited to view them . . . The Criterion, where "Farewell" is playing, has the electrics reading: Ernest Hemingway, one of America's greatest ACTORS!

I hear two Brooklyn papers will merge, but will retain their individual identity . . . The O. & W. restaurant at 148 W. 49th feeds about 50 people every night around 9 . . . An orchid to them, please . . . Fred Allen called. He wanted to know if vaudeville is still in the dictionary.

Startling piece in Americana by a chap named Dennis in which he spills the beans on the Army being ready to take over this and that in case of necessity, and you know what necessity he means . . . C. O. Smith, of Cleveland is a Bernie rooter and opposed to you. His wife is just the reverse, thinks Bernie is hammy and you rate aces with her, etc. . . . Recently the couple started arguing over you both, with Smith winding up in court, getting a $5 fine and costs for slugging her. Now both are laughing at themselves, and yours and Ben's gags as heretofore . . . Phil Lampkin, band leader, and Marjorie LaMarr were hastily married less than a year ago. They were hastily melted a month ago . . . Little Julie Jenner, who was hurt so badly by falling scenery, was known as the perfect chorus girl, poor thing.

The Casa Blanca is the town's newest rendezvous—on the site of the old Napoleon . . . Another hot spot opening is the new Torch Club, occupying the site of El Garron. Buddy Wagner's is a hot crew . . . Jane O'Rourke calls her latest place "The Repose Club" . . . Torrid girl show, mostly undraped, featuring one nude . . . New Movie wants an informal photo. Must be taken in your home. I told them the whole tribe was down with flu, and no could do . . . I wish you a lot of luck with your newest Judge Crater tip. It is the most plausible yet, at any rate.—Your Girl Friday.

HOLLYWOOD :-: Little Tales About Folks Who Entertain You :-: AMUSEMENTS

Future Made, Fraulein Says

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOD, Dec. 19.

With attractive frankness, Wera Engels, newest German importation, confesses that a bid from Hollywood is one of life's biggest thrills to player-folk at the foreign studios.

"Even if I didn't make good," the 22-year-old actress told me, "I could go back and be a queen among them just because Hollywood wanted me.

"But I will make good," she added impulsively, "I'll stay here till I do."

Up against fittings and makeup tests for her first role at RKO, this clear-skinned German girl has come to realize that there are sizeable realities to be met in her land of dreams.

Wera Engels

"In my very first picture," she said plaintively, "people won't meet me at all."

For instance, why should the studio want to change her hair from reddish brown to blonde?

Other things of passing curiosity to the star were the pinkish tint to the borsch soup at the RKO restaurant and the absence of fish knives. And she was not being high-hat, just puzzled.

Aside from a slight accent and one charming reference to the Empire State Building as a "sky stretcher," Miss Engels displayed a complete command of English.

In Hollywood only a few days, the actress already has received an invitation to attend the coming navy ball. Her father, Capt. Edouard Engels, once commanded the famous German war cruiser, Emden, not, however, at the time it was sunk off the coast of Australia in an engagement with H. M. A. S. Sidney. Capt. Engels left his command in 1910 to take charge of the port of Bremerhaven.

George O'Brien

O'BRIEN GOING ABROAD

Chances are George O'Brien will go a-sailing in March without signing a new contract at Fox. They may come to an agreement, however, when he and his parents come back from a vacation in Europe. George likes to have his father, former Chief Dan O'Brien, of San Francisco, tend to all his business for him.

Bethlehem On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Beautiful pictures of the Holy Land and Bethlehem give a real Christmas flavor to the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The pictures show Bethlehem little changed from biblical days, as is the peaceful countryside surrounding; then come pictures of Nazareth and rare views of the Church of the Nativity and of the River Jordan, where the Savior was baptized. There is an appropriate description by the Globe Trotter.

Following the example of Mrs. Roosevelt and Al Smith, Lady Astor leads the Community House chorus in Town Hall, New York, in the cause of charity. She sings "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."

Secretary of the Treasury Mills is seen and heard as he appeared before the Ways and Means Committee on the beer repeal. The Secretary states that the taxation return on beer to the government would be between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000 a year, and admits that the manufacture of home brew and bootleg beer are flourishing.

In Montgomery, Ala., Smith Blane, a youthful aviator, ascends to an altitude of 2,000 feet and, descending, crashes the nose of the plane into the ground "just for fun." He emerges unhurt!

Two Features In Davis

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

A well balanced program of mystery and adventure mixed with some witty, sure-fire comedy has come to the Davis and the Regent in "The Most Dangerous Game" and "The Night Mayor."

The better film of the two is a matter of personal opinion. Personally, Lee Tracy, who bears a striking resemblance to a local columnist, is our idea of a slick, smooth performer so the preference swings towards his nearly perfect delineation as "The Night Mayor." This swift and peppery comedy is obviously based on Jimmy Walker's life. A song and dance man, a lover extraordinary and a man about town, this "night Mayor" of Mr. Tracy's is a personality built to order for the tickling of risibilities, and in this respect he seldom fails.

Possessed of extraordinarily expressive hands, a glib tongue and pleasing voice, Mr. Tracy is capable of picking up any role handed him, twisting it around to his own characteristics and handing it back to you as a neat performance. Here he is capably assisted in his various mayoralty duties by pretty Evalyn Knapp, a chorus girl who has a news hound on her heels.

Now news hounds aren't particularly attractive on anybody's trail, and so when the Mayor of a big city and his pet weakness are involved, the story takes on complications. But nothing in "The Night Mayor" is ever taken too seriously, which is noteworthy.

The other half of the bill is an unusual mystery-adventure called "The Most Dangerous Game," something you will either like or dislike with indifference impossible. It is an imaginative story of a big game hunter who falls into the hands of a Russian nimrod cloyed with the thrills of killing animals. So he decides to hunt human beings. Joel McCrea happens to be one of his adversaries. The love interest is furnished by Fay Wray. "The Most Dangerous Game" is probably an experiment, for it is a film unprecedented in theme or treatment. At the beginning, the question is put to this hunter just how he would feel if he were the hunted. And then the narrative proceeds to put him in a position to know. We found it rather exciting.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Tomorrow night 'East Lynne'" is the way the old repertoire company programs used to announce the imminence of the attraction that the George Sharp Players in the Pitt are putting on as a revival that will open tonight with Jean May as Lady Isabel and Alden Chase as Archibald. The phrase beginning this paragraph for years has been a kind of flippancy the purport of which seems to be obscure, although it is supposed to be a wise-crack. Under the direction of Edwin Vail the old sob-inducer will be staged as near as possibly as it was given originally in New York in 1862, with period costumes 'n' ever'thing. Lucille Weston, the first Lady Isabel in America, is supposed to have made a fortune with this play, which was a good drawing card for many years, destined not to pass out until the demise of the ten-twent-thirts, which carried it along when the more aristocratic companies discarded it. To emphasize the atmosphere of repertoire days, Mr. Sharp announces there will be "vaudeville between the acts," a statement that always accompanied that of "Tomorrow night 'East Lynne.'"

* * *

Although there is no attraction this week in the Nixon, the big front doors will be open, and so will be the window of the box office, where tickets will be on sale for the next production, "Face the Music," a musical revue which will have that fine legitimate comedienne, Mary Boland, as its star. The announcements stress the Irving Berlin authorship of songs and music. The piece was one of the hits of New York last season, closing late in July, after 166 performances, so Miss Boland could go to Hollywood to appear in pictures.

* * *

A note from Al. Spink, of the George M. Cohan office in New York, states that there is likelihood of "The DuBarry," with Grace Moore, being seen in Pittsburgh next spring. "The DuBarry" is the operetta written in 1879 by Carl Millocker that recently was revived in New York, with the former Metropolitan Opera star, Miss Moore, in the title role, backed by a cast including Max Figman, Marion Green, Nana Bryant, Pert Kelton and Andrew Tombes. It has struck the fancy of New York and gives promise of staying there many weeks.

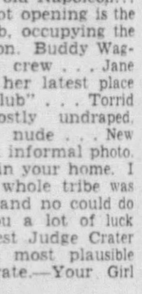
12. Hark! The Herald Angels Sing ..... Mendelsson Choral and Audience

The Choral Section of the Woman's City gave its Christmas concert yesterday afternoon in the William Penn Hotel with Mrs. Taylor Allderdice conducting. This is a very popular activity of the club and there was a large audience.



J. Fred Lissfelt

Mrs. Allderdice, a devotee of John Sebastian Bach, used two of his fine chorals as the climax to her program — "Suscepit Israel" and Good News from Heaven," using, with piano accompaniment, also violin, cello, two trombones and French horn.

It was a daring experiment in that auditorium, but while the acoustics there play havoc with strings and voices they merely mellowed the brasses and the effect was rather grand. There were also beautiful works of Gounod, Grieg, Rubinstein and Reger; the latter's "Slumber Song," with its difficult modulations, was almost the best singing of the entire concert.

This chorus is now beyond the stages of its first enthusiasm. It must look toward clearer details, more definite patterns, which make part singing so beautiful, and more accentuated rhythms so as to be on a plane with effects in nuance which it already has accomplished so astonishingly.

Program:

Sonate .....De Fesch (1695-1758)
Sonate..Henry Eccles (1670-1742)
Sonate ..... Richard Strauss

The Musical Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association offered its first extra concert in the Kaufmann Auditorium last night. A mast encouraging audience was there and was very cordial to the soloists, Samuel Kliatchko, cellist, and Sara Kliatchko, pianist.

The program included two very serious examples of classic cello music from that prolific eighteenth century library, the everlasting and dull variations of Beethoven, and an early work of Richard Strauss. The variations doubtless look well in score but they never cease and are grateful neither for cellist nor pianist. Strauss's work only once, in the last movement, suggests the trend of the youthful Richard's music—with a theme as sprightly as "Till Eulenspiegel;" in the andante it is strikingly like Grieg.

Kliatchko's playing is best in slow, deliberate passages. His long association with orchestral music has perhaps affected his solo playing.

Sara Kliatchko plays a fluent piano part to her husband's solo. She seems a bit shy, not trying to outshine her spouse, and consequently speaks timidly in her music when she has some important things to say.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Broadways of the World
All In A Day
By Mark Hellinger

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA.—The Arab marriage system is, I think, one of the most unusual in the world. It will probably sound funny to most Americans and it will unquestionably look foolish to others. Yet it is part and parcel of the religion.

Yep, tere ain't no foolin' around in this part of the world. When you are born an Arab, you remain an Arab. Most of the populace are too poor to send their children to foreign schools, but occasionally a child is sent to Paris or to America for a broader education. As soon as the child returns, however, it immediately reverts to its original customs. So the broader education, as usual, is of no great value.

As an illustration, an Arab girlie was sent to Paris at the age of 12 to attend school in that city. She remained in Paris for six years and, during that time, she lived the life of any normal girl. She wore no veil. She attended theaters and parties with young men.

When she was 18—and very beautiful, too, they say—she returned to her Arab home in the colony of Tunisie. Before she was anywhere near North Africa, the black veil covered her face and the homely garment of the Arab woman had replaced her Paris finery. When she reached home, she found that a mate had been chosen for her. And so she was married.

Today she is but one more of the countless Arab women and sees no more than the tiny world around her. There must be many times when she longs for Paris, for excitement, for the world she once knew. But she makes no complaint. She dare not. For that is her religion. . . .

Now for a load of the Arab marriage system. To understand it fully, you must put aside ideas of any matrimonial system you might ever have studied.

In the first place, marriages are made by the parents of the boy and girl. The boy has very little to say about it. The girl has nothing to say about it at all.

The strangest part of the entire business is that the bridegroom never sees his bride until after the ceremony has been performed. She can be knock-kneed, pigeon-toed, cross-eyed, bald and deaf—but the happy husband doesn't know anything about it until the knot has been tied. If Winchell had only been an Arab and I could have picked out a wife for him! . . .

Along comes the big day on which the boy and girl are married. After the big event, the couple retire to their rooms. And there, for the first time, hubby has the right to see the face of the damsel he married. Can you imagine what a shock some of those bridegrooms must get? That's probably how the first man came to be petrified.

But the man has an out. If the shock is too great and he acts quickly enough, he can call the whole thing off! He has the liberty of stating that he is displeased with this woman and that he does not wish her to be the mother of his future sons. Whereupon the bride packs her bags and departs.

The latter situation seldom arises because, in such an event, the unwelcome bride not only keeps all the presents that were given to both of them, but she must also be supported for the rest of her days by the man who married her.

As I wrote somewhere before, each Arab is entitled to four wives—provided that he can support each of the four in equal comfort and style. It is also possible for an Arab to get a divorce, but it is a highly complicated and very expensive proposition. It's actually cheaper for an Arab to be married to three wives than to be divorced from one. They need no alimony jails over here!

With such a strange method of acquiring a wife, you'd think there'd be a great deal of marital unhappiness among the Arabs. Such is not the case. The Arab with two wives is very rare. The woman having been taught that she is man's inferior, she does all in her power to make her man happy. And if she can bear him a son, they are usually fairly happy.

According to our code, it's all very mystifying. And yet—well, I was talking to a cultured Arab merchant last night in the hotel.

"You say," I told him, "that you are very devoted to your wife and that you tell her everything. You say that she advises you in business ventures and that you would make no move without her. There's just one thing I want to know, and I mean no offense when I ask the question:

"When you go to Italy or France on business and you flirt with another woman, do you tell your wife about it when you return? I mean, is your relationship that close?"

The merchant's eyes had opened wide.

"Tell her!" he cried incredulously. "Do you think I'm crazy? Why, she would shoot me!"

I guess maybe the difference in the code isn't as great as I thought it was . . .

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

The debutante season, which will reach its climax this week and next with something being given every day to attract the buds, started off on its Yuletide whirl today with the charmingly informal luncheon at which the Stirling Murray Rusts' daughter made her debut.

Mrs. Rust gave the luncehon in the family home, Murray Hill avenue, with debs of this season and a few of the past as guests.

The debutante chose a smart little frock of sapphire blue velvet, fashioned with very long skirt and a brief, fitted jacket fastened up the back with crystal buttons. Her flowers were roses and violets. Her mother was in gray chiffon.

* * *

Some more sub-debs are trooping home. Coming from Westover Tuesday will be Mary Dilworth Edwards, daughter of the George D. Edwardses; Rebecca Frances Love, daughter of the Frank Samuel Loves; Miriam Hunter, daughter of the J. Fletcher Hunters; Helen Bredin Shaw, daughter of the Hugh Campbell Shaws.

* * *

Leona Nichols, daughter of the Howard P. Nicholses, of Tyler, Tex., whose marriage to Frank N. Speller, Jr., son of the Frank N. Spellers, of Darlington road, was postponed early last week because of the bride's illness, was solemnized just one day late, on Sunday, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Warren, in Tyler. It was a quiet ceremony with only the relatives and a few friends in attendance.

Married In Texas

The bride wore polo blue matelasse crepe with a matching hat. Mrs. Warren was her matron of honor and W. E. S. Schoeneck III, of Pittsburgh, was the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Speller, Jr., will remain with the bride's parents until the bride recovers from her illness sufficiently to accompany her husband here to visit the senior Spellers, after which they will go to New York and Canada, later to reside in Overton, Tex.

Every day we hear of more young folks home from school. Rachel McCready, Betty Anne Keeney and Mary Blair are home from the Ethel Walker School; Martha Berg, from Dana Hall; Polly Frederick, from Miss Madeira's; Hester Lyon, from the Garrison Forest School; Winifred Miller, from the Friends School; Elizabeth Boyd, the Greenwood School; Elizabeth Dunsford, Baldwin School.

Women's Press Club Gives Dinner

The pine room in the College Club was the scene Saturday night of the Women's Press Club's Christmas dinner, Mrs. A. W. Smith, honorary president, occupied the seat at the head of the table, the places being marked by the candles the members had brought and which were of their own choosing. Small Christmas trees were used for the center decorations and place favors of musical toys added to the decorative scheme. The prize for the prettiest candle went to the club president, Mrs. Anne Ryan Lesh, who had thumbtacked Christmas tree ornaments on a huge red taper. Miss Marie McSwigan won the prize for the most original—a bottle covered with wax dripping.

After dinner there was a cobweb hunt and games were played.

Pittsburgh Students Return From Hudson

Seven Pittsburgh boys who returned Saturday from Hudson College to spend the Christmas holidays with their parents include E. William McCallister, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. McCalliste., Hawthorne street, and John C. Delo, Jr., of Locust street, Edgewood, who are seniors; Charles D. Stanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Stanley, Park Mansions; James L. Pendleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Pendleton, Wightman street, and Robert Buka, Jr., Marlboro road, members of the junior class; William A. Slick, son of Edwin E. Slick, Pennsylvania avenue, a sophomore, and Jonathan C. Cooper, son of Mrs. Charles C. Cooper, of Kingsley House, a freshman. They return to school January 3.

Coraopolis Junior Club To Hold Dance Dec. 28

The Coraopolis Junior Women's Club will hold a Christmas dance Wednesday, December 28, at the Montour Country Club. Miss Emma Mihalyi is chairman of the social committee. Her aides for the dance will be Mrs. Eunice Lunn, Miss Betty Lewis, Miss Elsie Beck, Miss Esther Pew, Miss Kathryn Farkas and Miss Katherine Weaver.

The patrons and patronesses will be Judge and Mrs. Heber Dithrich, Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Speer, Dr. E. M. Iland, Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Meanor, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Minch, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Way, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Colvin and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Connell.

Miss Dolores Jaskol Weds H. Passamaneck

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Meyer, of Carnegie, announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Dolores Jaskol, to Herman Passamaneck, of Pittsburgh, which was solemnized on Saturday in the study of Rabbi Herman Hailperin. After a brief honeymoon in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Passamaneck will be at home here.

McKeesport Club Observes 34th Anniversary

A unique program presentation and luncheon celebrated the thirty-fourth anniversary of the McKeesport Woman's Club on Friday at the home of Mrs. J. S. Mack, Union avenue. The club membership was divided into five groups according to the years in the club and each one presented its contribution to the program between courses. One group included the "grandmothers" in quaint old bonnets who, under the leadership of Mrs. John Caughey, sang and reminisced. The "mothers" of the 90s gave a radio performance from Station BLAH, with Mrs. John Cooper as leader, and the "brides" staged a wedding party with Mrs. J. H. W. Simpson directing and Miss Helen Stuckslager furnishing the music. The "school girls," with Mrs. George Smith as teacher, gave a Christmas entertainment and the club "babies" in caps and bibs completed the program.

Rho Chi Mu to Hold Dance December 26

The annual Christmas dance of the Rho Chi Mu Club of Wilmerding will be held on Monday evening, December 26, in the ball room of the Edgewood Country Club.

Among the students home for the holidays, the following have been chosen as aides: Miss Mary Alden, Columbia University; Miss Marguerite Swanberger, Ohio University; Miss Dorothy Putnam, University of Pennsylvania; Miss Claire Hagen, University of Michigan; Miss Doris Henniger, Duquesne University; Miss Frances Keefe, New York University.

The committee is headed by Charles A. Trelogan, chairman.

Miss Catherine J. Fry Returns for Holidays

Miss Catherine J. Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fry, of Hamilton avenue, East End, has returned home to spend the holidays with her parents. She is a student at Battle Creek College, Battle Creek, Mich.

Lena Berman Engaged To Marry Saul Laska

Hulings Camp Dance Postponed Indefinitely

The benefit card party and dance which was to have been held at McCann's ballroom on December 30, under the auspices of the Gen. Willis J. Hulings Camp, No. 77, United Spanish War Veterans and auxiliary has been postponed indefinitely.

John J. O'Connell, the commander of the camp, will be at the entrance of McCann's ballroom on the evening of December 30 to refund money to persons who have purchased tickets for affair.

Emerson Club's Santa To Distribute Gifts

Christmas joy and cheer will be brought into the hearts of more than 200 children of needy families of the East End district by the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church at its annual Christmas party on Friday evening at the Guild Hall, Center avenue. A huge decorated tree will be surrounded with toys, candy and clothing for distribution by Santa Claus. There will be refreshments and a program of games and other entertainment.

After the children are dismissed, the club members will deliver baskets of food, clothing and other necessities to the families in distress. Midnight lunch will be served the members upon their return to the Guild Hall.

Mortar Board to Give Benefit in Cathedral

Mortar Board, senior women's national honorary activities fraternity at the University of Pittsburgh, will celebrate the holidays this year with a Christmas benefit bridge on the tenth floor of the Cathedral of Learning, Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Mary Garber, president of the University chapter of the fraternity, is in charge of arrangements. She is assisted by Miss Dorothy Getsinger, Miss Gladys Pyle, Miss Ruth Hamilton, and Miss Yetta Cohen.

Margaret Hopkins Home From National College

Miss Margaret Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hopkins, Alice street, a student this year at the National College of Education, Evanston, has returned home for the Christmas vacation. Miss Hopkins was given one of the leading parts in the Christmas festival at the college, a nativity play, preceded by the presentation of gifts of toys and clothing for children in the mission schools of Chicago, including the Mary Crane Nursey School conducted by the college at Hull House. The college, one of the outstanding progressive training schools in the country for nursery school, kindergarten and elementary teachers, will re-open on January 3.

Daughters of Pioneers Guests of Mrs. Ryland

An enjoyable affair of Saturday was the Christmas party at which Mrs. G. B. Ryland, of Beacon street, was hostess for the Keystone Chapter, Daughters of American Pioneers. Mrs. S. H. Augustine presented Mrs. Edward O. Tabor who gave a recital of Christmas carols and Christmas lore from many lands.

Opening Skating Party Of Young Set to Be Held Dec. 27

Pittsburgh's youthful skaters are going to have a place for their sport, now that Duquesne Garden is going to open after all.

So the opening "skate" for the youthful smart set belonging to the Monday Afternoon Skating Club will be Tuesday, December 27. There'll be an orchestra, and the "alumni" members, home from schools and colleges, will be guests at the holiday event. The hours will be from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The Tuesday after New Years there'll be a skating party, too, with the hours from 3 to 5 o'clock.

After the New Years skating class, the group will meet every Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Matthew Taylor is chairman of the skating, with Mrs. Thomas L. Orr, Mrs. Lawrence Murray, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. Frederick Blackburn, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, Mrs. T. J. Hilliard and Mrs. J. F. Walton on the committee.

E. R. Johnstons to Take Scientists on Cruise

NEW YORK—When Mr. and Mrs. Eldredge R. Johnson, of Moorestown, N. J., leave in January for a Southern cruise on their yacht Caroline, they will take two members of the Smithsonian Institution who will make soundings and gather deep-sea geological specimens in the Carribbean. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's guests on the cruise will be their son, Fenimore Johnson, of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Douglas and their daughters, Florence and Ena, of San Francisco.

Lewis R. Titus Leaves Manlius for Home Here

He will return to Manlius for the reopening of school Sunday, January 8.

Credit Women's Club Dinner Tomorrow

Combining business and pleasure, the Pittsburgh Credit Women's Club will have its Christmas meeting and dinner tomorrow evening at the Congress of Clubs.

The featured address on "Financial Statement Analysis," by Walter Churchill, of Williams & Co., will precede an exchange of gifts. Miss Marion K. Ryland will sing.

The committee in charge of the program includes Miss Norma Wiberly, Miss Marcella Brosky, Miss Florence Dorsey and Miss Ryland. Miss Lauretta A. Walter will preside.

SILHOUETTE REMAINS UNCHANGED IN LATEST PARIS COLLECTIONS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The last few fashion collections presented by Paris designers have offered practically no changes of the silhouette. Any newness in the clothes has been concentrated, rather, in the type of materials used, the colors and their combinations, and the detail of hand-work. The only possible change in line has had to do with the placing of skirt fullness—which has moved gradually toward the center-front.

* * *

THERE ARE many devices for giving sufficint amplitude to the new skirts by concentrating fullness at the front. Some of these keep this fullness concealed in plaits or gathers that are not in evidence except in motion, while others make frank use of the fullness for decorative effect.

* * *

NOTE, FOR example, the way Madame Bruyere, who designed the wool dress in today's sketch, places shirrings on the skirt at the yoke line; these shirrings repeat the decoration on the sleeves, yet serve at the same time to hold flat and well in place the gathers below. The material of which the dress is made—a soft tweed mixing threads of two tones of brown—would seem to be too heavy for such gathers, but the shirrings, marked occasionaly with horizontal stitching, are effective.

* * *

THE ACCOMPANYING hat—also by Bruyere—is the current Paris version of the turban, done in fabric in two shades of brown. The Enzel town oxfords are in adapted ghillie line and are fashioned of brown box calf and sea serpent.

Twin Topics Announced For Women's Congress At Chicago Fair

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Women all over the country are constantly watching for news concerning the proposed international congress of women which the National Council of Women will have at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition next summer. The congress is dated for July 16 to 22 and twin discussion subjects just announced are "How to Obtain a Minimum of Security for Every Individual" and "How to Insure Each Individual a Maximum Opportunity for Self-Development."

Round tables will be devoted to a variety of related subjects, such as housing, social science, unemployment, the stagger wage plan, unemployment insurance, regulation of production and distribution, leisure and recreation and the foreign and domestic policies of the United States.

This program is being planned by a committee of distinguished women, among them Mrs. Mary R. Beard, author and historian; Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreath, industrial engineer; Mrs. Mary C. Love Collins, of Cincinnati, president of the Chi Omega Sorority; Miss Mary Anderson, head of the women's bureau of the United States Department of Labor; Dr. Iva Lowther Peters, research expert; Mrs. Jean Wittich, budget commissioner of Minnesota; Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, daughter of the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton; Mrs. Rheta Childe Dorr and Miss Lida Rose McCabe, writers; Dr. Lorine Pruette, author and psychologist; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, lecturer and member of the executive committee of the National Council of Women, and Prof. Kate Pinsdorf Darlington, of Vassar College.

Toys to Be Presented By Carnegie Juniors

Few Christmas parties have been planned by women's clubs this year without some thought for the needy. At the holiday affair which the Carnegie Juniors will have tomorrow evening, toys will be brought for distribution by the community nurse. Under Miss Ethel McPeak's leadership the program will include a one-act play, "Our Last Christmas," which is being directed by Miss Annabel Nelly, and carols will be sung by the club choral. Roll call will be answered by giving a Christmas quotation.

YOHE DEATH REMOVES 'STRONG MAN' OF RAILROAD ERA

HIT-RUN AUTOS KILL MINER, INJURE GIRL

Many Others Victims Of Accidents on Slippery Streets

Hit-run drivers of two automobiles were blamed today for the fatal injury of an Imperial coal miner and the injury of a young woman pedestrian on Liberty Bridge.

Stephen Vincent, 45, Imperial miner, was found dead on William Penn highway near his home, the victim of a driver who police say did not stop. He sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries.

County police also sought the driver of an automobile who fled after hitting Esther Davis, 27, of 68 Ruth street, as she walked in the roadway of Liberty Bridge because of the icy condition of the sidewalk. She was taken to Mercy Hospital.

DOWNTOWN CRASH

Mrs. Ellen Rhoades, 45, of 736 Taylor avenue, was injured slightly early today in a collision of automobiles at Sixth avenue and Grant street. Mrs. Rhoades' husband; the driver, R. C. Hermes, 22, of 748 Taylor avenue, and Mike Severonvich, 23, of 2822 Sarah street, escaped injury. The drivers await a hearing in Traffic Court.

Margaret Fox, 33, and Margaret Sullivan, 35, both of 173 Pennwood avenue, Wilkinsburg, were injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding, driven by Clyde Shields, of Oil City, struck a pole at Thirty-fourth and Butler streets, according to a police report.

Four persons were injured when two automobiles skidded and struck poles in East Ohio street last night. The injured are Margaret Zender, Bert Doty, of Lorraine street, Earl Heispeniede, of Norwood street, and Thomas Teahan, of Carnegie street.

WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. Bessie Farrell, 41, of Sherman avenue, was injured last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by John Fitzgerald, of South Winebiddle avenue, as she was crossing West Sherman avenue at Ohio street, according to a police report.

Joseph Fremont, 29, of 7308 Hermitage street, and Regis Judge, 25, of 242 Lehigh street, were injured late Saturday when the automobile in which they were riding, driven by John Ryan, of 6438 Marchand street, collided with another car driven by Arthur Wilson, of 1722 Laketon road, Wilkinsburg, at Dallas and Hamilton avenue, according to a police report. The injured were removed to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Albert L. Chisler, 54, of 60 Rockland avenue, Mt. Lebanon, is in Mercy Hospital with a compound fracture of the left leg suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by R. C. Booth, 27, of Beltzhoover avenue, in West Liberty avenue, Dormont, according to police. Booth, said by police to have been driving without an operator's permit, was held on a charge of violating the automobile laws.

Man Shot, Colony Of Jobless Doomed

HARRISBURG, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Hovels of the jobless, homeless men in "Shantytown"—a community of shacks along a railroad line—are to be destroyed tonight, after a shooting which landed one man in a hospital and three in police headquarters. The evacuation was ordered by police.

Steve Chucovich, 43, was shot in the foot by a man who he said broke into his shack as he slept yesterday. Three men are being held for questioning.

MANY PLANTS REBUILDING

Rehabilitation projects costing approximately $105,266,429 for industrial plants and retail establishments in the United States will be under way by January 1, A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the national committee on industrial rehabilitation, has announced.

Last month the amount of work pledged was $70,875,000.

In the Fourth Federal Reserve district, including Pittsburgh, projects entailing an expenditure of $8,041,000 have been pledged. They include Cosgrove-Meehan Coal Corporation, $500,000; Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, $1,126,000; Buckeye Coal Company, $125,000; Dravo Construction Company, $285,000; Allegheny Steel Company, $100,000, and Independent Brewing Company, $230,000, and Pittsburgh Brewing Company, $70,000.

Vilsacks Flee Fire In East End Home

The family of Anthony J. Vilsack was forced to flee last night when fire raged through their home, 1132 North Negley avenue, according to a police report. Damage was estimated at $500.

Walter Dunn, of No. 8 Engine Company, was knocked down when he touched the wire of an electric refrigerator which water had short-circuited. He was revived by other firemen.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 19.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The United States Senate sentenced the Philippines to 12 more years of American receivership.

Will Rogers

Will you tell me one thing? How can one nation tell when another nation is ready for independence? But our government can do it. Yes, sir, there is not a dozen of 'em that's ever been west of the Golden Gate, but they just could tell you to a day 12 years from now, just when the "little brown brothers" would be able to mess up their affairs as bad as ours. Certainly lucky for us we got our liberty when we did. Suppose the House of Commons in England was holding a clinic over us to decide if we were ready for "self determination."

Yours, WILL.

STATE HIGHWAY PROBE ASKED

ARDMORE, Pa., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Representative Fred C. Peters (Rep.), of Montgomery County, in a statement today called for an investigation of the State Highway Department, which, he asserted, has assumed almost autocratic powers in the absence of legislative control.

A members of the Highway Committee of the House, Representative Peters declared the Highway Department expenditures must be curtailed to prevent another boost in gasoline tax. He asserted the department expended $54,000,000 last year "without any supervision by the Legislature."

The Montgomery County legislator charged that Gov. Gifford Pinchot "throttled a previous attempt to inquire into the road system and its army of employes at the last special session." Peters said of the department:

"It holds such vast and autocratic powers that in the hands of an unscrupulous executive it can quickly become a huge political machine."

HOBO RELEASED IN LINDY QUIZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—William Stoltz, 35, identifying himself as a hobo, was free today after having been questioned at police headquarters in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

New Jersey State Trooper Lew Bonnan, who questioned Stoltz, said he was satisfied the man knew nothing of the case.

He said Stoltz was picked up at the municipal lodging house Saturday night because of a remark he was said to have made when he applied for a night's lodging at a police station in the Middle West.

Holland Collections Await Will Outcome

Herborium Given to Museum—Proviso On Insects

The vast collections of Dr. William J. Holland, famous naturalist of Carnegie Institute, who died Tuesday, are at Carnegie Museum awaiting the outcome of the provisions of his will.

Dr. Holland bequeathed the herbarium of his grandfather, the late Jacob Wolle, of Bethlehem, to the Museum without restriction.

His collection of insects was given with the provision that the Trustees of Carnegie Institute shall provide $10,000 for a trust fund, the income of which will go to adding to and increasing the collections for the Museum.

GIVEN TO FAMILY

Other provisions are made for his writings, paintings, antique silverware, and library, the largest portion of which his family receives.

The collection of insects is largely Lepidoptera (butterflies and moths), and has been collected over a long period from many sources. This includes 1,242 specimen drawers containing mostly Lepidoptera; 179 boxes of beetles, principally from Africa, and seven large trunks of insects from all over the world. The total number of specimens and their value cannot even be estimated.

GATHERED SPECIMENS

Some of the insects were obtained by the naturalist, himself, in Jamaica, where he was born; in Japan, when he accompanied the United States Eclipse Expedition in 1887, and in Africa, on another expedition. Other specimens were acquired by purchase from John Doherty, authority on African natural life; William E. Edwards, of West Virginia, whose collection was sought by the British Museum, but who sold the specimens to Dr. Holland to provide funds for his well-known volumes on butterflies; Henry Edwards, of California, and Dr. Otto Staudinger, German dealer and collector.

He also acquired the collection of Rocky Mountain specimens of Theodore L. Mead, the famous Pryer collection of Japanese pyralids, and the collection of H. H. Smith, former curator of entomology at the Museum.

AMONG FINEST

According to Dr. Hugo Kahl, the present curator of the entomology section, if the Museum obtains the Holland specimens, the Carnegie Museum will have one of the finest and most complete collections in North America.

The bequeathed herbarium dates back to the days of Dr. Holland's ancestors, who were Moravian missionaries in Western Pennsylvania. The collection was founded by Dr. Holland's grandfather, Wolle, and had been increased by the addition of many herbs acquired from different sources by the late naturalist, according to Dr. O. E. Jennings, curator of botany at the Museum.

BUENOS AIRES UNDER 'SIEGE'

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A state of siege was in force in this seventh largest city of the world today while arrests of political leaders implicated in a plot to overthrow the government mounted to 117.

The state of siege, distinct from martial law in that civil courts continue to function, was invoked yesterday for a 30-day period.

Governors were requested to indicate whether a state of siege should be declared in their respective provinces.

The 82-year-old Hipolito Yrigoyen, who lost the presidency in the 1930 revolution, and accused leader of the radical movement, resumed his lonely life in exile on Martin Garcia Island, in the mouth of the Uruguay River.

Another ex-president implicated in the plot, Marcelo T. de Alvear, and other prominent leaders probably will be deported to Europe. They were held on a warship in the outer harbor and were scheduled to start on a cruise.

SHOP RAIDED IN PRICE WAR

East Liberty's price-cutting war among barbers was blamed for the destruction wrought early today by robbers who broke into the Triangle shop of Vincent and Leonard Mainier at 6316 Frankstown avenue.

Mirrors were smashed and the leather of the barber chairs was slashed into strips. Damage was estimated at $600.

The Mainiers have been cutting hair for 25 cents. Leonard Mainer, who described the invaders as "cheap, yellow racketeers," said a friend had told him his enemies had twice slated him for the "last ride."

YACHT MURDER HEARING OPENS

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—William J. (Curley) Guy, young soldier of fortune, faced preliminary hearing today charged with the murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, romantic adventurer.

Wanderwell was shot to death in the darkened cabin of his yacht, the Carma, the night of December 5, on the eve of a scheduled departure on a "riches and adventure" cruise to the South Seas with a crew of eight beautiful women and seven men.

State's attorneys will endeavor to show that Guy had sought revenge on Wanderwell, and that he was the man seen lurking on the pier shortly before Wanderwell was killed.

Deep sea divers yesterday failed to find the murder gun, believed thrown overboard from the Carma. They did, however, retrieve from the bottom of the bay a silver loving cup and a pint of whisky, seal unbroken.

Shot in Head, Beats Opponent in Fight

William Jackson, a Negro, of Verona, was in the county jail today on charges growing out of the alleged shooting of another Verona Negro, Mabray Duff, 32, yesterday.

According to county detectives, Jackson was beaten by Duff after a bullet from Jackson's gun glanced off Duff's skull, causing a flesh wound.

Beer Week Has Arrived at Last.. And How Weak

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Congress is going to be busier than feathers in a wind storm. It is going to put beer over this week.

It will be the 3.2 brand. Palatable, non-intoxicating, nourishing, quenching and harmless.

That means the wets have argued 12 years for nothing.

It's practically a victory for the drys. Those reformers have got the diluting habit so bad they would drop a handful of decimal points in a baby's milk.

However, it's the best we can do, and, with Stephen Decatur, we are for our country light or strong.

One hundred thousand men will go to work right away. Provided that the lame goslings don't crab the works.

The defeated Congressmen are sore at everything. Say, they have one bird in Washington who hasn't even stated his position on Mississippi floods. They don't know whether he's agin 'em or for 'em.

P. & L. E. CHIEF 62 YEARS IN WORK

Retired 2 Years Ago, But Went Daily To Office

More than two years ago he retired as vice president of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, to which he had gone in 1883 when its single tracks were almost shiny new, its halting steam engines and wooden box cars with link pins and hand brakes a few years out of the factory.

CALLED 'GENERAL'

He was affectionately called by his men "General." In his two and a half years of retirement he never varied his schedule of years. He appeared at his office every day at 9 o'clock, left every evening at 5, until last week, when he took ill. For 62 of his 76 years he railroaded.

He was the only man in the nation after whom the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers name a lodge. It is the J. B. Yohe Lodge, No. 148, at McKees Rocks.

In Bentleyville, Pa., back in 1870, "Jimmy" Yohe was 14 and the periodicals were filled with the romance of the iron horse. Romances were being written about the keen-minded telegraphers and train dispatchers, the courage of the early engineers. He decided to take a fling at it; a young man named Andrew Carnegie was doing it; there were lots of others.

Mrs. Yohe gave her youngest of seven sons $1, and he started off for West Newton, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Under John Rial, he learned telegraphy rapidly. In 10 years he rose to chief dispatcher of the Baltimore and Ohio, Pittsburgh division. He was on his way.

STARTING OF ROAD

During the few years he held this job, William McCreery, J. F. Dravo, Jacob Painter, Henry W. Oliver, Jacob Henrici, trustee of the Harmony Society, and Col. J. M. Schoonmaker had contributed money and time to the building of a new railroad to Youngstown from near Connellsville. There was a spur from Fayette City to McKeesport. All this was called the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

The iron and glass and coal industries were booming. The young road, just started in 1879, was congested. They needed someone to clear up the blocked single tracks and sidings. Train Dispatcher Yohe, of the Baltimore and Ohio, became assistant manager of transportation of the P. & L. E.

Robert Long was a young fireman of two years' experience when Yohe came. Today, also a retired engineer and airbrake expert, Long reminisced:

"I had an engine and a line of freights, firing and running it, and we ran into a snowbank near Riverton, not far from Connellsville. It was cold, but I got down and started to dig the snow away to clear out.

Gas Station Man Robbed By Youth

Albert Shurie, manager of the American Oil Company gasoline station at First and Braddock avenues, Braddock, was held up and robbed by an armed youth shortly before last midnight, he reported to police.

Shurie told police he had removed the paper money from the register a few minutes before the robbery, leaving only a small amount of silver.

Spurned, Man Kills Estranged Wife, Self

CANTON, O., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Failing to effect a reconciliation with his estranged wife, Sarah, 27, Howard Widmer, 27, barber, shot and killed her today and then committed suicide. The Widmers came here from Wheeling, W. Va., eight months ago.

'Cellar Door' Chosen As Beautiful Words

Cellar door may suggest nothing more to you than something you slid down in your youth, or perhaps something that guards your pre-war stuff. But the combined words are among the 10 most beautiful in the English language, in the opinion of Dr. Chester M. Wallace, of Carnegie Tech drama department.

Today's selections of beautiful words were made by Dr. Wallace, representing the drama, and Miss Marjorie Stewart, trainer of radio announcers and artists. Dr. Wallace chose murmur in his list and Miss Stewart murmuring.

In this game of choosing words, begun when Wilfred J. Funk, poet, announced his selection, several have agreed with Dr. Wallace on cellar door. He insisted his choice was not based on association of ideas with the words. Miss Stewart likewise said her selection was based entirely on word sound, and not on the thoughts the words suggest.

Dr. Wallace's list:
Fountain	Sorrow
Headland	Parallel
Willow	Twilight
Cold	Murmur
Armory	Cellar Door

Miss Stewart's list:
Myriad	Murmuring
Adorable	Melody
Merriment	Fantasia
Lonely	Lilac
Plangent	Azure

'Don'ts' for Christmas Listed by Fire Chief

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, declaring 85 per cent of Christmas fires due to carelessness and negligence, yesterday suggested the following don'ts for the holiday season:

Don't set up the tree so that it can topple over easily and don't place it near heating or lighting fixtures.

Don't use paper, cotton, [illegible] ornaments. Incombustible trimmings may now be purchased.

Don't allow the lights on the tree to burn all night.

Don't keep the Christmas tree [illegible] December 31. It becomes dry out after a very few days in the house.

THEATER MEN MAP FIGHT TO RESIST SUNDAY CLOSING

Specilly-Built Thermometer for Her High Fever

The 26-year-old Mexican girl whose sick bed in Los Angeles holds the attention of many doctors. Although 107 degrees are normally fatal, her fever has reached as high as 115, making it necessary for doctors to rig up a thermocouple to measure her temperature, as their thermometers read up to only 110. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

MANAGERS PLAN PETITIONS IN OIL CITY

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—After a second showing of Sunday motion pictures, managers of two theaters here were preparing today for an active campaign of opposition to a proposed ordinance fixing heavy penalties for such performances.

Les Bowser, manager of one of the theaters, told his audience last night from the stage:

"We will present petitions to Council soon. Most of the Oil City merchants have signed them and promise to go before Council in a body when the petitions are presented. Only residents of Oil City, persons who pay taxes here, are being allowed to sign."

Opponents of Sunday shows have presented petitions asking for passage of an ordinance supporting Sunday observance laws last week after the town's first Sunday shows.

Police Capt. Vernon Nelson last night prepared informations charging the managers and employes of the Drake and Lyric theaters with violating Sunday observance laws, as was done last week.

Barber Shop Raided in Price War

THE FRANKSTOWN AVENUE BARBER SHOP RAIDED BY VANDALS . . . . . CHAIRS SLASHED

OIL, GAS TAXES STUDIED HERE

State Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, of Waynesburg, chairman of the State Mineral and Forest Land Tax Commission, declared today the commission hopes to make a study of state and local taxing systems and recommend reforms whereby tax burdens on minerals and forests will be equalized.

The commission met this morning at the University Club to hear oil and gas producers. It already has taken testimony relating to taxes on coal and forests. The full commission, appointed by the Legislature and Gov. Gifford Pinchot, was present.

Parkinson said a general study of taxes and the taxing system was being made. He pointed out local taxation is not uniform, and added:

"It is reasonable to assume our tax system is as obsolete as the ox cart or the horse and buggy. It should be modernized. We hope to be able to recommend reforms."

Those heard by the commission included S. W. Meals, president, Carnegie Natural Gas Company, who read a history of the natural gas business in Pennsylvania, and Attorney E. M. Borger, of Pittsburgh, who discussed taxation of gas lands.

SLAYS HUSBAND IN CHILD ROW

NEWPORT, Ky., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A 3-year-old child climbed on the dresser for some hairpins and the quarrel her act started between her mother and father led, police said, to the fatal shooting of the father, Jesse Moore, 37, a contractor.

The child, police said a 14-year-old daughter, Maggie, told them, was ordered by her father to get down from the dresser, but was told by her mother she need not obey.

Infuriated, police said, Moore jumped to his feet shouting:

"I'm boss of this house!"

He then started to beat his wife. Mrs. Moore, 40, obtained the weapon and shot Moore, police said Maggie told them, as he fled toward a barn for refuge. She was held on a charge of murder.

The couple had eleven children. Five were born to Moore and four to Mrs. Moore by previous marriages.

Death Takes Former Marine Band Leader

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP.) Capt. William Henry Santelmann, 69, leader of the United States Marine Band for 29 years until his retirement in 1927, is dead at his home in Chevy Chase, Md.

A native of Offensen, Germany, Capt. Santelmann studied music at the Leipzig Conservatory. He came to Washington when 24 years old and became a member of the Marine Band in 1887 when John Philip Sousa was the leader.

2 Children, Parents Die as Home Burns

GLOUSTER, O., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Four persons, including two small children, were burned to death today when fire of an unknown origin destroyed their frame house here.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Mathews and Gerald, 5, and Junior Matthews, 3.

JOB INSURANCE URGED IN STATE

Pennsylvania would still have a small reserve on January 1, 1933, after paying out approximately $80,000,000 a year to its unemployed, if, during good years, a small percentage of wages had been placed in reserve, according to testimony being considered today by the State Committee on Workers' Security.

Prof. Emmett Welsh, of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, made this statement in Philadelphia during a session of the committee at which employers and economists voiced their views on workers' security with particular reference to unemployment compensation or insurance. Dr. Francis D. Tyson, Pittsburgh member, presided at the meeting.

Another professor from the Wharton School—Dr. S. S. Huebner, noted consultant of insurance companies, told the committee:

"The hazard of unemployment is definitely insurable like other measurable risks. Capital reserves have recently been set up with great advantage to industry, and the worker, as the joint partner in business, is equally in need of protection."

The committee will present its recommendations to Gov. Pinchot for action by the next Legislature.

Philadelphia Votes For Legion Session

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—By a vote of approximately four to one, the Philadelphia County Council has voted to accede to the wishes of the department commander, Paul H. Griffith, of Uniontown, that the 1933 American Legion state convention be held in Philadelphia.

As is customary, it is expected a convention corporation will be formed to finance the three days' assemblage next August on dates to be determined later.

LIGHT KEEPER SOUGHT IN LAKE

PORT MAITLAND, Ontario, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—With Lake Erie's shores a welter of slush ice and a heavy sea rolling, intrepid fishermen from this district today resumed their search for Richard Foster, 61-year-old lighthouse keeper, and his son, James, 25, missing for some days.

Disregarding their own safety, a party of searchers in a small fishing tug and a gasoline boat headed out onto the lake. High banks of ice along the shore, with slush ice extending for nearly a mile, made their task no easy one. Beyond the ice, whitecaps were breaking into foam.

Foster and his son are thought to have left the lighthouse on Mohawk Island last Wednesday. It is a one-hour sail from Dunnville. They failed to reach the village. A party of searchers who visited the light yesterday found the revolving light had been changed into a stationary one, as is usual in the winter time, and that the Fosters had packed their personal belongings before leaving for shore.

Motorists Warned On New Swindle

HARRISBURG, Dec. 19—(INS.)—A new scheme, designed to fleece the motorist, has been exposed by the Department of Revenue which issued a warning today against men selling printed cards containing safety hints.

These cards, according to the department, intimate that purchasers would receive protection for a year and would be further advised by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The scheme is a racket which does not provide the motorist with any protection, the department said.

Actress, Civil War Spy's Daughter, Dead

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Byrd S. Mowery, known on the stage as Sarah Boyd, daughter of Belle Boyd, famous spy of the Confederate forces during the Civil War. She died Friday at her home here, at the age of 50. She had appeared in "The Little Minister," "Quo Vadis," and other stage successes.

TRUANT GORILLA CAUSES PANIC

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—A 175-pound African gorilla that stood 5 feet high in its stocking feet, roamed loose in Los Angeles for several hours until a squad of officers returned it to its private zoo cage from which it escaped.

Terrified housewives made frantic telephone calls to police as the gorilla made its nocturnal calls, peering into windows and scampering around back yards.

It first appeared at the home of Mrs. Ethel Miller. She saw the animal's face peering through a window. A wild scream preceded her call for aid.

Later Mrs. Alice Tanner notified authorities the gorilla was roving around in her back yard. There police found it. It offered no resistance.

BANK GUARDED BY EX-MARINES

Eighteen ex-Marines who have seen a total of 120 years of service in all parts of the world, make up the protective department in the Pittsburgh Federal Reserve Bank Building. All of the 18 veterans are experts with the revolver, rifle and the submachine gun. Weekly drills are held on the target range on the eighth floor of the building under Capt. George K. Rousch, in charge of the guards.

Sergt. Edward Stephens is the best individual shot, having carried off trophies and medals from numerous meets. He was wounded in service and is decorated with the Croix de Guerre and the Purple Heart.

And another member of the department who knows a thing or two about guns is Corp. L. S. George, who was at one time instructor in infantry weapon school at the Marine base at Quantico, Va. Corp. George, who was the first man to use the Thompson submachine gun when it was being tested for infantry use in 1926.

Military men and sportsmen have pronounced the target range in the bank building the best in the country and those who have witnessed the ex-Marines in target practice, consider them among the nation's best.

Gas Kills Companion Of Rich Indian Girl

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Aileen Day, 24, of Eufaula, companion of Exie Fife, wealthy Indian girl, whose marital adventures have brought her much in the public eye, died last night of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Both were overcome by gas fumes and were found unconscious in Miss Fife's apartment. Miss Fife apparently was recovering, though she was ill with influenza, from which she had been suffering several days.

Goes to Hospital After 8-Day Fast

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(Universal.)—Much weaker on the eighth day of his hunger strike, by which he seeks to improve world conditions for Jews, Dr. Arthur J. I. Kraus, instructor of philosophy at City College, voluntarily went to Beth Israel Hospital yesterday. He said that he did so because he was promised there would be no attempt to forcibly feed him.

"'What are you doing down there.'

"I answered: 'Frying eggs, come down and help me.'

"'Got another shovel?'

"Yeah, a couple."

"So down crawled James B. Yohe and we dug ourselves out of the snow.

"He was the kindest man who ever ran a railroad. Don't ask me; I was his friend. Ask all the others, and they'll tell you how he was advisor and father and leader all in one.

"He cleared that congested single track line, the crookedest line ever built. Somehow, he always saw ahead."

NAMED PRESIDENT

Mr. Yohe grew with the road, becoming its president in 1920, after the retirement of Col. Schoonmaker. With reorganization in 1926, his title was changed to vice president. After retiring he continued as president of a number of auxiliary lines.

During the war he was manager of six railroads, including his own. He was a Mason, director of several other companies, and a member of many clubs and associations. He resided in the King Edward apartments.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the H. Samson funeral home, 537 Neville street.

He leaves his widow and two sons, C. M. Yohe and Harold, of Sarasota, Fla.

WAITS HEARING ON CHARGE OF KILLING WIFE

GREENVILLE, Pa., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Jailed on a charge of murder after the funeral procession that carried his wife to her grave, F. C. Doolittle today awaited in a cell the next step by authorities investigating the circumstances of Mrs. Doolittle's death.

Doolittle, 56, unemployed, was arrested Saturday an hour before the time set for the funeral services. Under police guard, he attended the rites in the cemetery after being arraigned before a magistrate and pleading not guilty.

Held without bail, Doolittle, a former structural steel worker, faces a court hearing, probably this week.

DIED IN HOSPITAL

Suffering pneumonia, Mrs. Doolittle, 54, was brought to the Greenville Hospital last Monday and died three days later. Physicians said her body was bruised and a coroner's autopsy, conducted only a few hours before the funeral, disclosed pneumonia had been superinducted by exposure.

Magistrate W. D. Reznor ordered Doolittle formally held on charges of murder and assault and battery. District Attorney Joseph H. Nelson said today he would study the case further before determining the degree of murder to be charged.

WIFE LOCKED OUT

Investigators said neighbors of the Doolittles, who lived a few miles outside Greenville, told them that Mrs. Doolittle once had been locked out of her home at night and remained with friends after being unable to gain entrance.

Detectives accompanied Doolittle to funeral services for his wife. The officers said he turned from the casket to leave during the services, but was called back until the rites were concluded.

The Doolittles were married 10 years ago in Cleveland. Investigators said Doolittle had not been employed several years.

FAMED AIRMAN DIES IN CRASH

DANVILLE, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—His last flight ended in a flaming crash near here, Claire Kinsey Vance, fifth ranking airmail pilot in the United States, rode today in the Valhalla of pilots who have died "taking the mail through."

The 35-year-old World War veteran drove his streaking plane into the side of Rocky Ridge, four miles west of this town.

Vance left Oakland Airport, western terminus of the United Air Lines' transcontinental route, at 11:45 p. m. Saturday with instructions to report every 20 minutes by radio. He failed to report even once.

Officials of the air lines expressed the opinion Vance, caught by a heavy fog, was depending on the instrument board alone to direct his course and elevation.

For several years he had worked on his "flying wing," a new type of plane with which he hoped to establish a transcontinental record. He is survived by his widow, mother of his two children, residing in Oakland. The youngest child, a son, was born six weeks ago.

Martens, Composer And Author, Dies

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N. J., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Frederick Herman Martens, author and composer, died yesterday after a heart illness that for two weeks past was not considered serious. He was 58.

Martens was known for his musical compositions, as a writer of musical subjects and translator of more than 2,000 song poems from foreign languages into English.

Duquesne Man Held On Charge of Arson

Anthony Grandinetti, 28, was held for court today by Alderman Thomas M. Geary on a charge of Arson. County Detective Peter Conners accused him in connection with the firing of the home of his father, Peter Grandinetti, at 137 Pear way, Duquesne. Ether and gun powder was used in a bomb with which the place was fired.

Woman in Dry Raid Freed Under Bond

BISHOP URGES AID TO ORPHANS

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Catholic diocese of Pittsburgh, has again commended the remembrance of the children at St. Paul's Orphan Asylum in the Christmas Day collection taken up in Catholic churches. In a letter addressed the clergy and laity, Bishop Boyle emphasized the need for generosity to St. Paul's, which receives no state aid.

The Rev. H. J. Gilbert, director of the orphanage, announced 740 children, or 185 average families, are cared for at the orphanage.

SUSPECT VIEWS OWN CHASE

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Edward McHugh, 25, Pittsburgh, who police charge, mingled with the throng to watch the excitement created by his robbery of the First National Bank of Mapleton Depot, today awaits a hearing.

State police who arrested him Saturday at Burnt Cabins, Fulton County, said McHugh had confessed to robbing the bank. They reported all but $19 of the $1,200 loot had been recovered from the cabin in which he was found.

Authorities said McHugh was visiting relatives at Mapleton Depot and his disappearance soon after the robbery led to his arrest.

2 Men Attack Hill Merchant, Rob Safe

Era Smilovitz, opening the safe in his meat market at 2124 Wylie avenue this morning, was struck on the head by two intruders. Abe Kwitt, a salesman, found Smilovitz unconscious. He was taken to Passavant Hospital. The robbers took $425 from the safe, police reported.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

ART INSTITUTE HOLDS THIRD EXHIBIT

Leading Pittsburgh artists have been invited to attend an exhibit of original drawings of eleven of America's most famous contemporary illustrators now on display daily in the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, 136 Stanwix street. Of general interest to the public, this unique exhibit is of especial value to art students who wish to observe and study the technique and medium each artist uses to attain effects in reproduction. With each original is the magazine reproduction.

Artists whose work is displayed in this third annual exhibit are: James Montgomery Flagg, Jules Gotlieb, Frank Godwin, S. W. Simpkin, Tenggren, M. L. Bower, C. Patrick Nelson, Dan Sayre Groesbeck, Matt Clark, Benton Clark and Arthur William Brown. A number of the drawings may be purchased and given a permanent place in the school's galleries, according to Willis Shook, founder and director.

MURALS PAINTED

Reviewing the work at the Art Institute since September classes began this year, Willis Shook said:

"Seven of the most enterprising and energetic students have earned nearly $600 with their art work while in school the last three months. Three of them are working on oil murals. Two other students are working on negro murals for a downtown restaurant, and have just complete three panels of the annunciation and a manger scene for Trinity Cathedral's Christmas pageant. Others have successfully designed, executed and sold numerous posters, catalogue covers and commercial art."

DEVELOPS TALENT

Mr. Shook founded his school 11 years ago on the theory that many people with limited talent, apt to fail as portrait painters, may find lucrative employment of their artistic ability in the field of commercial advertising. In view of the fact that approximately 15 million advertising drawings are used in America in a normal year, faith in the idea has been amply justified, he said.

Among the 3,000 alumni of the school, the work of graduates is found in illustrated advertisements for airplane, automobile, typewriter, telephone, tobacco and cigaret companies and in leading periodicals throughout the United States, Mr. Shook said. Graduates are found in the advertising departments of every department store in Pittsburgh, students from 22 states, Alaska and Canada, attend the school.

BETTER GRADE BONDS SHOW STRENGTH

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Foreign and domestic winds blew hot and cold on the bond market during the past week, but failed to shift the averages very far in any direction.

Continuation of the easiest money rates in recent financial history, coupled with the growing congestion of private and institutional funds seeking safe outlets, brought a demand for listed United States government issues and the best grade corporation maturities. A number of new highs for the year were recorded in both of these classes.

Secondary liens of all categories were extremely erratic, with the trend moderately easier. While the week's trading volume was the largest in some months, the increased aggregate was due principally to the heavy turnover of a few specialties and renewed activity in federal and foreign government loans.

FRENCH LIST DOWN

While the defaults of France and Belgium on the war loan installments due the United States caused some disturbances in the foreign list, the repercussions generally were much less violent than might have followed the international debt impasse.

French, Belgian and Polish bonds were the principal sufferers from the failure of their governments to appear at the paying teller's window. French 7½s, recently at new 1932 peaks, slumped more than 4 points at one time, but rallied moderately later. Polish and Belgium issues were not hit quite so hard, but they dropped several points. On the other hand, British 5½s steadied, and German loans developed an unusually strong tone. The reich 5½s and 7s advanced several points.

RAILS UNCERTAIN

Most of the domestic rails moved cautiously because of the wage negotiations under way in Chicago. A number also were depressed because of poor earnings estimates and the expected decline of freight car loadings. The industrials and utilities just about held their own, although there were some wide fluctuations in a few issues due to special influences.

State bonds again attracted attention with New York's offerings of $30,400,000 at yield bases ranging from ¾ of one per cent to 3.015, historical low rates for the commonwealth's paper. Illinois also disposed of a $20,000,000 offering at from 3 to 4.15 per cent, bottom prices for recent years.

Sees New Era

FRANK A. MADDAS

BREWERY READY TO OPERATE

Legalization of beer with restrictions of beverages of high alcoholic content will bring in a new era of temperate drinking in the opinion of Frank A. Maddas, one of the few Italian brewers in the United States.

Mr. Maddas is president of the Victor Brewing Company at Jeannette, Pa., and is one of the directors of the United States Brewers Association.

His complete faith that beer would eventually be legalized can be seen from the fact that he has kept the production facilities of his plant in repair during all the discouraging years of prohibition. In addition he has kept his brew master and other key men of his organization so that he can resume production on the day that the legal status of beer is restored.

Repairs have been kept up at the Victory Brewery. The enormous vats have been kept filled with water to prevent deterioration.

The plant, which will give employment to 225 men when operations are resumed, has a capacity of about 125,000 barrels of beer annually.

INTERNATIONAL OFFERS NEW TRUCK

In response to an insistent demand by Pittsburgh merchants and tradesmen during the past several years for half-ton trucks, a new model, to be known as the D-1, will be added to the line carried by the International Harvester Company, 5200 Penn avenue, on January 1, it has been announced by Harold W. Moody, local manager.

The D-1 model will be manufactured by the Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, O., in accordance with Harvester engineering specifications and inspection, similar to the standards which govern the manufacture of all other International models. The new models are especially adapted for use by laundries, cleaners, dyers, florists, department stores, food and cereal products, hardware, and printing shops, plumbing and heating, drugs and chemicals.

HAS LARGE LINE

With the addition of this new model, the International Harvester Company considers it has one of the most complete and satisfactory lines of motor trucks offered by any single organization in Pittsburgh. The D-1 will be available in the following combinations: Chassis only; chassis and cab; chassis cab and pick-up body; chassis and de luxe panel body, with additional equipment if desired.

The wheelbase is 113 inches. The wheels are of the wire spoke type. The maximum allowable gross weight of the chassis is approximately 4,000 pounds, including chassis, cab, body, driver, payload and equipment.

FULLY EQUIPPED

Carries Comforts On Hunting Trip

WICHITA, Kan.—(INS.)—The next time Bill Bowery goes hunting with Jack Ward, local attorney, he is going to take a wheel chair and attendant for Ward to make his comfort complete. While on a recent hunting trip, Bowery, a city detective, said Ward took two woolen comforters, a goose feather pillow and a white linen pillow case, a flannel night gown and a pair of slippers.

BUSINESS

Pleas Made for City To Keep River Advantage

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

ANSWERING ATTACKS made by railroads against the development of inland water way transportation, W. L. McKinney, president of the Elsey River Transportation Line, in a letter to this column, declares that it is essential that Pittsburgh devote every effort to maintain the advances made in river facilities.

He sees the rivers as an indispensable factor in maintaining this district in its present position in the industrial field. In speaking of the railroad inspired movement to take the control of the rivers out of the hands of the War Department and to transfer it to some other agency, he says:

"Waterways should be open to free and unrestricted use of all. Rivers are public highways and natural avenues of commerce. Opening wedges made to transfer the authority over our rivers are dangerous at this time.

"The War Department has been highly efficient in it's management and in the direction of river improvements. There is no reason for a change.

"There has been no real test of river transportation possibilities. The surface has barely been scratched."

* * *

Savings From Rivers Shown to Be Large

HIS LETTER DECLARES that high standards of economy and efficiency have been established by many private carriers such as the large steel companies which make extensive use of the rivers in gathering their raw materials as well as in shipping finished products.

The importance of the inland waterway systems to American business is indicated in the United States Engineer reports for 1931. In the Pittsburgh district, traffic on the Ohio, Monongahela, Allegheny and Youghiogheny Rivers amounted to 54,964,479 tons in 1929, to 51,779,844 tons in 1930 and to 36,589,666 tons in 1931.

* * *

Inland Waterway System Is Large

IN HIS LETTER Mr. McKinney points out that the next ten years will hold great possibilities for the use of the inland waterway system. After completion of a number of improvements, agriculture and industry will benefit from an inland waterway system extending east and west half across the continent from Pittsburgh to Sioux City, Iowa, along the Ohio, Missippi and Missouri Rivers.

In the North and South direction it will extend from Gulf points in Texas and Louisiana up the Mississippi where it divides into two great branches, one going to Chicago and the Great Lakes and the other extending to the upper Mississippi at St. Paul and Minneapolis. The channel connecting Chicago with the Mississippi River system will be ready for navigation by barges in the early spring.

With the development of our inland waterways on the verge of their comletion into a great system the letter concludes:

"It is no time to place water transportation in a straight-jacket."

NEW TRUST IS OFFERED

American Business Shares, a new type of limited management investment trust, is being offered to the public by Lord, Westerfield & Co., Inc.

The initial authorized capitalization consists of 500,000 shares, all of one class. No bonds or preferred stock is authorized. Capital assets are constantly being increased as additional shares are sold and the proceeds, after deducting initial costs, are invested in an approved list of securities.

The company's investments are confined to securities of companies incorporated and operating in the United States. Not more than 5 per cent of the total assets may be invested in the securities of any one company, with the exception of United States government securities. Investments must be confined to an approved list of securities, with the exception that not more than 10 per cent of the total assets may be invested in securities not included in the list.

Under the charter no change in the investment policy may be made without 30 days previous written notice to the shareholders to give an opportunity for the holders to withdraw their investments.

The approved list consists of common stocks in leading industrial, railroad and utility companies and banks. To give greater flexibility in management a reserve list of preferred and common stocks is also made available for investment.

The price is based on the market value of the portfolio plus a distributing charge not to exceed 9½ per cent.

ANCIENT 'FIND' AIDS SCIENCE

WASHINGTON.—A strange catsize creature like no animal now living has come back after 50,000,000 years to help tell scientists how the mammal tribe to which man belongs got its start toward mastery of the earth.

After half a million centuries of oblivion, buried half a mile under the earth, the skull of this ancient beast has been brough to the surface by an oil well drill in Caddo Parish, Louisiana. In announcing the find the Smithsonian institution said it is "one of the most remarkable discoveries in the history of vertebrate paleontology."

The skull, though small and insignificant in itself, brings longwanted knowledge of conditions on earth when drying up of the great swamps was spelling the doom of dinosaurs and giving mammals a chance to develop unhindered. Mammals are warm-blooded, while the dinosaurs were reptiles and cold-blooded.

'Tower of Folly' Ordered Razed

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—(INS.)—"Anderson's folly," a stone tower overlooking Salt Lake City, was recently sold by its builder, Robert Anderson, 90, and is to be torn down by the new owner, John Merrill. Anderson constructed the tower a half century ago, planning to lure small change from sightseers who would pay to climb to the top for a view of the city.

Sightseers, however, found that the view from the bottom of the tower was good enough, and refused to pay the expected admission.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

—By GENE TUNNEY—
Retired Heavyweight Champion

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Immediately on getting back to Romorantin, the company doctor put my hand in a splint, where it remained for 10 days. I could do nothing but road work and very little of that. When the splint was removed, Picard and I set out for Paris, for "fame and glory."

Gene Tunney

We went to the Red Cross Hotel at Rue Faubourg St. Honore, where we got beds for two francs a night. I was able to do only rope-skipping, shadow-boxing and road work for the six days before the first contest took place. I had not learned to punch a bag, and even if I had known how, I knew of no place in Paris where I could find one. The matches were held in the Cirque de Paris.

My first opponent was K. O. Sullivan, a tough light-heavyweight from Allentown, Pa. He had fought Jack Dillon, Battling Levinsky, Larry Williams, and other good light-heavyweights before coming to France. When the fight started I discovered he was a southpaw.

Now there is but one way to fight a southpaw, as I have discovered, and that is with a right hand. Most of the southpaws, while they may have a fairly good right have as their main asset a left swing to the body or head. I have seen but one southpaw who did not follow this procedure—Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia. He was an exceptionally good fighter.

HOW TO BEAT SOUTHPAWS

Any fighter with a good, straight right-hand punch will lick the best southpaw. The right must be timed properly, however. A southpaw rarely gets very far professionally. The technique of a cool, good right-hand hitter, while opposed to one of these unorthodox boxers, is always to get his opponent to keep his left swinging. While blocking and slipping these long swings, one gradually gets the measure of distance. When the time is right, the straight right travels inside the left swing. This technique has never failed me.

On this night with Sullivan my right hand was sensitive and swollen and useless for anything but slaps. I was forced to depend entirely on my reconditioned left. I used the left often enough and effectively enough to win the decision of the judges and referee at the end of 10 rounds.

My next match was with Ted Jamison, in the final match for the light-heavyweight championship of the A. E. F. Jamison before coming to France had won the amateur light-heavyweight championship of the United States at Boston. He was a fairly clever, good-hitting, canny fighter. Had I not decided to throw my right hand regardless of pain, as well as the left, I would have lost the decision. The contest was rather even up to the tenth round, when I knocked him down with a left hook. Though he hopped to his feet in a few seconds, this was the deciding factor in the fight and gave me the light-heavyweight championship of the A. E. F. Jimmy Bronson refereed the match. It is strange how fate had arranged for Jimmy's and my paths to cross as they have.

WINS A. E. F. TITLE

Realizing my ambition by winning the light-heavyweight championship of the A. E. F. was very gratifying to me. It was a successful termination of a most trying experience. Though I entered the tournament reluctantly, after getting into it and feeling the urge and joy of competition and victory, I set my mind and heart on going through to the end to win the championship. At the beginning of the tournament, the road to the A. E. F. title seemed impassable. When, on April 26, 1919, as my hand was raised by Jimmy Bronson, before Gen. Pershing, Gen. Foch, Prince Albert of Belgium and many of the high military and official dignitaries of the American, French and Belgian governments—as the winner and victor of the A. E. F. crown—there was a consciousness of having done a good job mingled with a realization that Lady Luck had been on my side.

The winners of the A. E. F. championships were automatically attached to General Headquarters in Paris, and ordered the following day to the American posts along the Rhineland to give a series of exhibitions.

DEMPSEY TO FORE

About this time there was considerable talk in the Paris papers, and all of the American papers we could get in France, about a promising young heavyweight who was matched to fight Jess Willard, and who was expected to win the world heavyweight championship. No one over there seemed to know much about this young Jack Dempsey. Naturally, I was curious and, whenever the subject was broached, I would ask questions about his ability, his weight, his height, his style, his capacity for punishment and so forth.

Eventually, I introduced the subject to a marine by the name of McReynolds, a former newspaper man from Joplin, Mo., who was detailed to accompany the boxers and wrestlers to Germany. He said he saw Dempsey fight several times at Jimmy Bronson's club in Joplin, and in St. Louis. I became all ears.

McReynolds answered my questions enthusiastically. Everything he said indicated great admiration for Dempsey. McReynolds did not suspect what I had in mind until I suddenly began thinking aloud.

"Mike Gibbons, the clever boxer, defeated the great Jack Dillon, the fighter, by a decision. The question is, will Gene Tunney, the clever boxer, ever defeat Jack Dempsey, the rugged fighter?"

McReynolds laughed and said:

"Shucks, Gene, you are young, you are fast, you are clever, you can take it. It ought to be possible for you to do that some day."

I said:

"I will."

DREAMS OF TITLE

That conversation with McReynolds, concerning Dempsey, was held on a Rhine boat going from Coblenz to Cologne in the early part of May, 1919. It was not until that moment that the decision to take up professional boxing as a career on my return to the United States was made. Naturally this decision included a determination to try for the highest honors. I knew it would be a long, hard road to climb. But others had done it and I felt that anything possible for others would be possible for me.

I had deduced from McReynolds' description of Dempsey that Dempsey must be a big Jack Dillon. McReynolds said my understanding of Dempsey was very accurate. He was a big Jack Dillon.

Tunney will tell next of how a hand "swollen to the size of a ham" prevented his entry in the Inter-Allied bouts at Paris in 1919 and of the lean days following his discharge from the Marines. And how he and Eddie Eagan discussed Yale and also ... Dempsey.

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

SYNOPSIS

Tunney thus far has traced the early course of his fistic career, from athletic boyhood in New York's Greenwich Village, through fight clubs, to his activities with the U. S. Marines, his company then being encamped at Romorantin, France, where he won both the middleweight and heavyweight championships. Tired of guarding empty balloon sheds, Tunney is delighted when given time off to represent his company in the ring. Gene stopped most of the pugs in his neck of the A. E. F. woods, thereby earning a trip to Paris, where he gave joy to the doughboys by kayoing K. O. Marchand, French fighter, in the second round. He outpointed Sergt. Bob Martin and broke a knuckle in his right hand in his third K. O. win at Tours during the A. E. F. championship eliminations.

ELI MAY PICK OUTSIDER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The resignation of Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, as head football coach, has caused speculation as to whether Yale athletic officials will follow the unprecedented example of Princeton by going outside the ranks of its alumni body for a successor.

The Tiger athletic officials threw tradition aside last fall by putting its eleven in charge of Fritz Crisler. Yale officials have given no indication as to who will succeed Stevens, but the impression prevailed that they would adhere to the Eli policy of naming a Yale man. It was considered likely also that some member of the present coaching staff would get the job held by Stevens for five years.

Reginal Root, Yale freshmen coach; Harvey Harman, of Pennsylvania; Red Blaik, of Army, and Adam Walsh, former Notre Dame star, have been among those mentioned for Stevens' post.

Milwaukee Team Bowling Winner

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 19.—(INS.)—The Verifines, of Milwaukee, won the team event of the Central States Bowling Association tournament that closed in the Plankington Arcade alleys here last night, with a score of 3,251, a new record for the association organized in 1919. The Canfields, of Cleveland, were second with 3,158, and the Youngs, of Detroit, third with 3,157.

EASTERDAY ELECTED

HARPSTER IDEAL CHOICE AT CARNEGIE

JUDGE WALTER P. STEFFEN, in his twentieth year of football association with Carnegie Tech, will sit back as a member of the gridiron committee next season and watch the greatest player he ever produced taking over the coaching role. And he can do it with the feeling that the job is in safe and capable hands. No football mentor ever began a major career with brighter prospects than does Howard Harpster in shouldering the duties performed so long and efficiently by Judge Steffen and Bob Waddell.

Judge W. P. Steffen

Holding the distinction of being the youngest big-time coach in the country, Harpster is as well equipped as any veteran. To a year of coaching at Shady Side Academy he added three seasons at Geneva College, during which the excellent teams he developed won 22 games and tied two against only six defeats. He knows the Carnegie Tech system from A to Z and he has learned how to teach it. He has personality, the good will of every one with whom he comes in contact, is wide-awake and progressive and one of the smartest football men in the game. No school ever had an easier time filling a coaching vacancy. Harpster was the ideal and logical selection, all made to order for it. He and Don Lovewell look like a combination that just can't miss.

IN THE LIGHT of what St. Louis had been asking for Jim Bottomley, it is hard to believe that Cincinnati got the hard-hitting first baseman for only Estel Crabtree and Owen Carroll. At that price the Reds must be said to have made a good bargain and to have strengthened their team, though the loss of Crabtree takes something out of the infield.

It surely is a record off-season for trades. No fewer than 37 major league players have changed clubs, with more likely to be added later.

BEFORE THE TIME arrives for another world series, Bucky Harris, manager of the Detroit club, will start a movement for a change which many baseball followers have favored for a long time. It has to do with the umpiring system. The present custom is to rotate the assignments, shifting them around from year to year among all the umpires on the two major league staffs, so that each man in turn will get his share of the extra pay, a plum amounting to $2,500. The result has been in some seasons that the best arbiters had to stay out while the big games were handled by less capable officials.

Bucky Harris

TRUE, A WORLD series contest is only a ball game, after all, and it would appear that a man not competent to umpire a game at that time is not competent to umpire any other game during the regular season. He simply does not belong. But to this many every-day observers will reply that there are some not qualified for big league service at any time.

"I have a suggestion to offer to the major leagues," Harris says. "Why give umpires world series assignments merely by rotation? The players have to fight, to show supremacy, to get into the classic. Why not require the umpires to demonstrate similar superior ability. I say, let each league name the two umpires who by their work during the year showed that they rated the world series jobs."

THERE IS NO branch of sports in this section of the country, no surviving circle of Pittsburgh's early newspaper days, no part of baseball anywhere that was not stricken with sorrow at the death last night of John H. Gruber, for many years one of the foremost sports writers in America and for the last 40 years the National League's official scorer in Pittsburgh.

As a sports authority, statistician and record keeper, Mr. Gruber was alone in his field. His own career dated back to the early days of baseball in particular. He had seen Pittsburgh advance from sandlot ball and on through 46 years of membership in the National League, he had set up in type the first box score ever printed here, and ever since 1893 he had been official scorer of the Pirate games.

THROUGH ALL THE passing years, Mr. Gruber kept a faithful record of games and players that made his collection of data unmatched in the country. He was a mine of information, upon whom league heads from the highest to the lowest, managers, players, writers and fans had to call upon frequently to clear up clouded points. And Old John never failed them. No matter how far back the question extended, no matter what they wanted to know about any club or player in the history of the diamond sport, he supplied the answer in a twinkling and it was always correct. As an official scorer he was unrivaled in ability as well as in length of service, scrupulously accurate and striving so hard to be fair on every doubtful play that it may be said he never did any player a wrong.

AND THAT EXTENDED to every other person with whom Mr. Gruber ever had any dealings. He was the soul of honor, integrity and fairness, and sounded a clean and refreshing note through all growth of amateur and professional sports in Pittsburgh.

As he joins the throng behind the great curtain, his passing leaves a host of friends and acquaintances filled with grief, and a gap in the ranks of the writing fraternity that has lost its most beloved member, but his life will stand as an enduring monument and he will continue to live always as a cherished memory to everybody who ever knew him.

QUERIES AS TO the kind of billiard balls used in this year's world championship pocket tournament led J. P. Allen to correct the opinion existing in some spots that ivory balls are still employed in title competition among the experts.

Jess Harper

About 10 years ago, due to the difficulty of obtaining and matching balls of ivory, the rule was changed to permit and authorize the use of composition spheres. These have proved more satisfactory and dependable to the players. Heat and cold do not affect the composition as is the case with ivory, with the result that the roll of the spheres is the same under all temperatures.

THERE IS A chance that a quarter-century split between Notre Dame and Michigan in football will be ended with a resumption of relations not later than 1935. Jess Harper and Fielding Yost are reported to be getting together. The teams of these schools have not met since 1909, but it is said that long-standing differences are being patched up and that Irish-Wolverine games will be added to the list of annual gridiron classics within the next three years. The teams played eight games before they broke off relations, and Notre Dame, not then at its present heights, did not win a decision until the final contest. Michigan won in 1887, 8 to 0; in 1898, 26 to 6; in 1898, 23 to 0; in 1899, 12 to 0; in 1900, 7 to 0; in 1902, 23 to 0, and in 1908, 12 to 6. Notre Dame taking the decision in 1909, 11 to 3.

WELTER RIVALS MEET AGAIN AT ARENA

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Ted Yarosz vs. Jack King, 10 rounds; Marty McHale vs. Marty Gornick, 8 rounds, and Al Farone vs. Joe Elrene and Bobby Rowe vs. Charley Burns, 6 rounds each, Arena, North Side.

Benefit amateur bouts, Allegheny Elks.

Exhibition bouts at Allegheny Y. M. C. A.

Jackie Wilson vs. Ross Fields, 10 rounds, and Young Terry vs. Marty Tonkanon, Merle Gibson vs. Homer Gray and Tommy Kilrain vs. Pee Wee Carney, 6 rounds each (benefit for World War Veterans of Lawrence County), Castle Bowl, New Castle, Pa.

Young Corbett vs. Joe Glick, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Henry Firpo vs. Bill Thomas, 10 rounds, Louisville, Ky.

The return bout between Tony Herrera and Tony Falco at Motor Square Garden, Christmas afternoon, is out. In fact, it seems it never was entirely in because the Garden has Tommy Freeman signed to box there in the holiday matinee and whether he meets Ted Yarosz or Jack King depends upon the outcome of the return melee between these two welterweights at the Arena tonight.

Yarosz and King originally were scheduled to do their repeat number last Friday night, but the show was postponed then because of the cold weather and slippery streets and roads. Several hundred fans, unaware of the change in plans, appeared on the scene and hundreds of others expressed their disappointment when they were told of the delay. Indications are that the Arena will hold the largest crowd it has known when the rivals get together tonight.

YAROSZ GAINS RATING

Yarosz won the referee's decision in his first meeting with King. There was plenty of room for argument over the decision and the fans made the most of it. Yarosz remains undefeated going into tonight's scrap, and, in addition, boasts recognition as one of only six welters Madison Square Garden in New York will consider as worthy of a match with Jimmy McLarnin following his easy knockout win over Sammy Fuller, of Boston, last Friday night. The others are Champion Jackie Fields, Young Corbett, Lou Brouillard, Baby Joe Gans and Andy Callahan.

King remained over in Pittsburgh to continue his training for tonight's battle. Yarosz has done all of his conditioning in his gymnasium at Monaca.

GORNICK IN SEMI-FINAL

The two Martys—Gornick and McHale, box the eight-round semi-final, and Al Farone meets Joe Elrene and Charley Burns boxes Bobby Rowe in the two six-round preliminaries.

An amateur boxing show for the benefit of the needy of the community will be held by the Allegheny Elks in their hall tonight, and a series of exhibitions is billed at the Allegheny Y. M. C. A. at the same time.

CHAMP RETAINS CUE LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The national pocket billiard championship tournament enters its third and final week today with Champion Ralph Greenleaf holding a one-game edge over his closest rivals, Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, and Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland.

Greenleaf has won six successive games without even being pressed.

The champion, however, still has three sturdy rivals yet to meet, Natalie, Rudolph and 22-year-old Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del., the undoubted sensation of the tournament.

Caras turned back Ponzi last night, 125 to 111, for his sixth victory in eight starts. His only remaining game in this, his first national championship, is against Greenleaf.

Ponzi, who has won four games in seven, will face Natalie tonight in the feature match of today's program. The matinee schedule pits Mills, San Jose, Cal., player, against Kelly, and Allen against Taberski.

Jadick to Risk Title in Havana

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Thomas White, manager of Johnny Jadick, junior welterweight champion, has announced that Jadick will defend his title against Kid Chocolate in a bout at Havana late in February.

White said he has accepted an offer of $7,500 with the privilege of a percentage of the gate receipts and announced that the fight would take place in connection with one of the big racing events.

BEARS CAPTURE PRO TITLE

Playing indoors on a field covered with 400 tons of dirt laid 6 inches deep, the Bears conquered the Portsmouth Spartans, 9 to 0, in the Stadium last night to supplant the Green Bay Packers as the titleholders.

The game, witnessed by 12,000 spectators, was a thrilling spectacle, with just as much action, exciting forward passing and punting as a game played outdoors, although the players were slightly handicapped by the reduced size of the field. The gridiron measured 80 yards by 45 yards instead of the regulation 300 feet by 150 feet, providing about 80 per cent of the space of an outdoor field.

Yanks Best Despite Trades, Babe Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Babe Ruth, back home after a few weeks of hunting, commented with his customary terseness on the recent trades made at the baseball meetings. He said:

Ruth refused to take seriously reports that he was due for a big pay cut when contract time came around. His comment was:

"Well, I have been signing contracts with Col. Ruppert since 1920 and I've always found him more than fair. I see no reason why he should change now."

Brilliant Record Compiled By Howard Harpster

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

The inevitable naming of Howard Harpster as head football coach at his alma mater, Carnegie Tech, just announced, makes this brilliant all-America quarterback of the 1928 Plaid eleven the youngest head coach of a major college eleven in the land. He is only 25 years old.

The action of the Carnegie authorities writes another romantic chapter in the history of this remarkable football genius, who came here in the fall of 1925 from his home in Akron, O., to enter Tech because it boasted one of the finest architectural courses of any of our colleges.

FATHER AN ARCHITECT

Harpster chose an architectural course because his father, M. E. Harpster, for years has been one of the leading architects in Akron. It might be said that over the years he has planned the buildings of half of Akron and environs. He has designed the courthouse, the Masonic Temple, some 40 schools in the community and many of the churches and homes. The elder Harpster wanted his eldest son to follow in his footsteps and go into business with him.

It was because Howard took to football as a duck takes to water that his father's plans miscarried. Termed the "player with the mind of a coach," Howard showed an aptitude for the game from the start, and it is not his fault that he finds it more intriguing than a life at the drawing-board. During the off-season, Howard sells motors and other electrical appliances for a concern in Akron.

NAME ORIGINALLY HERBSTER

The new Tech coach is of German-English extraction, his ancestors having been Americans for several generations. The family name in Germany originally was Herbster (pronounced Erbster). His mother was Maude Avann. Both parents still are living. Howard also has an older sister, Mrs. Mildred Hess, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, now married, and a younger brother, Ralph, who plans to re-enter college next fall after taking a crack at business. Harpster, Sr., is a graduate of Cornell University of the class of '98.

Coming to Carnegie as a freshman in 1925, Harpster was on the plebe team along with Don Lovewell, who has been serving as his line coach at Geneva College the last three years, and will continue as his assistant at Tech; Saul Mielziner, the center, now playing in the National Professional League; Cy Letzelter, the fullback, and Tony Sweet and English, the ends. That team was the first freshman eleven at Carnegie Tech to go undefeated.

BEAT NOTRE DAME TWICE

In 1926, Harpster gained undying fame by quarterbacking the Tartans to their first victory over Notre Dame on a frozen gridiron at Forbes Field. Rated as not having a chance, the Tartans won, 19-0. Notre Dame started its shock troops and sent in its first team to start the second quarter, with Tech in possession of the ball for a first down in midfield. Five plays later, Tech had a touchdown, after Harpster had forward-passed to the 19-yard line, from which point Bill Donohoe ran around end to the goal line.

The second touchdown came when Harpster forward-passed to Letzelter on the three-yard line and Letzelter bucked the ball over. The half ended with the score 13-0.

The final points came in the third period, with Harpster drop-kicking two field goals within five plays, one from the 43-yard line and the other from the 38.

Tech did not play Notre Dame in 1927 but, in 1928, Harpster's senior year and the year of his captaincy and estate of all-America greatness, it went to South Bend and handed the Irish their first defeat at Cartier Field, in

GRUBER RITES THURSDAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Baseball and other sports today mourned over a great benefactor and the City of Pittsburgh grieved over a righteous citizen in the death of John H. Gruber, aged 79, official scorer for the Pittsburgh Baseball Club for 40 years and a celebrated authority and writer on sportive subjects. The dean of official scorers and of Pittsburgh sports writers passed away late last night at the family home, 50 Fordham street, West View. Gruber had been ill for several days with bronchial pneumonia.

A solemn requiem high mass will be sung over the remains of the departed journalist Thursday morning in St. Athanasius' Church, Chalfont street, West View. The Rev. Father August A. Vogt, pastor of the church, of which Gruber had been a long-time parishioner, will be the celebrant.

The Pittsburgher was a charter member of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, the local chapter of which will be represented at the last rites. Pirate officials also will be in attendance at the services.

REARED BIG FAMILY

John Gruber was a resident of Pittsburgh for more than 50 years. He and Mrs. Gruber celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Pittsburgh in 1929 with their big family taking a part in the joyful occasion. John was married to Miss Mary C. Adeneuer in St. Mary's Church, North Side, 53 years ago. The widow and six children mourn him. The children are John H. Gruber, Jr.; Miss Agnes and Miss Esther C. Gruber, and Mrs. James H. Glancy, Mrs. J. C. McDonald and Mrs. H. C. Kentzel. The latter resides at Knoxville, Tenn. The others are residents of Pittsburgh. Gruber also had three grandchildren. Others of his immediate family are one brother, Michael Gruber, and two sisters, Mrs. Kate Priel.

FORMER STAR TO SUCCEED WADDELL

By JESS CARVER

They favor linemen for their coaches at Pitt (Warner and Sutherland) and at Notre Dame (Rockne, Harper and Anderson). At Duquesne they go for former backs (Ballin, McDermott and Layden), and the same goes at West Virginia (McIntyre, Rodgers and Neale), but at Carnegie Tech the trend runs to quarterbacks. First they had Wally Steffen, one of the greatest, then Bob Waddell, and now they've gone and selected young Howard Harpster, who won all-America honor at the position during his undergraduate days.

Don Lovewell

Harpster was named yesterday by the Carnegie Tech athletic council to succeed Robert N. Waddell as head football coach. Harp thus becomes the first Tartan graduate to fill the head coaching position. He also becomes one of the youngest head coaches in the country, though there have been others who've had less years to their credit when they started out.

LOVEWELL TO ASSIST

The graduate coaching system really goes into effect at Carnegie with the signing of Harpster, for the former Plaid star will bring with him the lad who has served him so well as line coach during the three successful years he's had at Geneva. Don Lovewell, a former Skibo guard.

Harpster and Lovewell were selected from a list of 40 candidates for the position. The athletic council, having great faith in the coaching prowess of Harp, and wishing to continue the same style of play that has been in force at Carnegie since Steffen took charge, decided on Harpster almost without argument. No other candidate was considered.

While he lacked the color and failed to gain the recognition Harpster did as a player, Lovewell nevertheless was a valuable member of the Carnegie elevens of which he was a member. He was a fine defensive performer and since entering the coaching field, has evidenced the ability to impart the knowledge he assimilated as a player to others.

RECORD BRILLIANT

Harpster's record is well known and is gone into in full detail in a special article elsewhere in today's sports section. He entered Tech from Akron West High in 1925, starred on the freshmen eleven of that year and was regular varsity quarterback in '26, '27 and '28, being selected on almost every All-America eleven his final year. In 1929 he coached at Shady Side Academy, and went to Geneva as head coach in 1930, taking Lovewell with him.

Harpster and Lovewell piloted the Covenanters to nine victories out of 10 starts in 1930. They won seven, tied one and lost two in 1931 and won seven and lost three this year. They never lost a game on the home field.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Buddy Overend is at work on a difficult schedule for the youthful mentor's first year at their alma mater. Already games have been booked with Notre Dame, on October 21; with Wash-Jeff on October 28; with Purdue on November 4; with Michigan State on November 11, and with Pitt on November 30. Temple also will be met.

STEFFEN ON COMMITTEE

Overend is taking his time with the remainder of the card, and will not close his schedule until after the football meeting in New York the last of the month.

The athletic council, at yesterday's meeting, removed Judge Steffen as advisory coach and placed him on the school's football committee. Exactly how he'll fit into next year's picture remains to be seen.

Triplett Retains Coast Auto Title

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Ernie Triplett, of Los Angeles, has won the Pacific Coast auto racing championship for the second consecutive year.

GRID STAR MARRIES

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The marriage of Pete Yanuskus, University of Illinois fullback, to Miss Robbie Cross, of Paducah, Ky., became known yesterday. They were wed in Benton, Ky., Thanksgiving Day and are living in Champaign until Yanuskus graduates in February. Yanuskus' home is in Kewanee, Ill.

LOCAL BOY HONORED

TEAM TO REACH TUCSON CAMP WEDNESDAY

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 19.—After engaging in light limbering up exercises, which consisted largely of rambling up and down the station corridors, the Pitt Panthers, bound for the Tournament of Roses football game with the Trojans of Southern California, at Pasadena, Cal., January 2, quit this city and headed for Dallas, Tex., shortly after noon today.

The Panther party, made up of 36 players, three coaches, the team physician, trainer, four student managers, a publicity man and Assistan Athletic Director Jimmy Hagan, was given a rousing send-off at the Pennsy Station in Pittsburgh last night. The boys were given another, of somewhat lesser proportions, as they arrived here in time for lunch today.

DALLAS NEXT STOP

The tourists plan to drill on the Southern Methodist University field tomorrow. Then they will hike on to Tucson, Ariz., arriving there late Wednesday evening and remaining for at least a week and possibly for nine full days.

Coach Sutherland is staking everything on having the team in the proper physical condition for the game this year. He, and the players too, hope to secure revenge for the licking administered by the Trojans in 1930, when they took the locals 47 to 14. In 1928, they bowed to Stanford, 7 to 6. The Panthers have received the Rose Bowl bid three times, which is exactly twice more than any other Eastern eleven ever has been honored. Alabama's been out thrice, but the Crimson Tide is a member of the Southern contingent.

WEINSTOCK HURT

The team came out of the hard battle with the Alumni on Saturday with only the usual amount of bumps and bruises. Fullback Weinstock was kicked in the face, or rather, in the nose, and was lugging a "Handle With Care" sign about and Warren Heller was favoring a leg which was somewhat bruised.

The Panthers were presented nifty traveling costumes by the university. The boys will wear grey flannel trousers and white sweaters with blue and gold "Pitt" shields across the front. Omar, the tent maker, designed the ones worn by Walton, Hoel, Cuba, Onder and Weinstock.

TROJANS RESUME DRILLS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—After a week of gridiron inactivity, but considerable of feasting at banquet tables, the University of Southern California's undefeated and untied football team went back to its practice chores today in preparation for Pittsburgh, January 2.

SPORTS LAUDED BY LOWELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—Abbott Lawrence Lowell, retiring president of Harvard University, comes to the defense of intercollegiate sports and sees but one of his educational dreams unrealized as he sums up the results of his 23-year administration.

In his farewell report to the Harvard Board of Overseers, mailed out today to 60,000 alumni, Dr. Lowell answered the contention of some educators that scholastic interest might be increased by abolishing intercollegiate athletics.

He challenged their arguments on the ground that athletic activities provide "the spirit of contest which is lost in a complete education metamorphosis."

Dr. Lowell's unrealized dream was a proposal for establishment of a society of fellows within the graduate school of arts and sciences. This proposed society of fellows, which Dr. Lowell has suggested in his last two reports, would isolate a few men of outstanding promise with a group of eminent professors to stimulate creative scholarship.

The report said that recent trends at Harvard College have been towards "a less vocational objective, a greater correlation of knowledge, a recognition of the principle of self-education and stimulation of more vivid intellectual interests."

Cavanaugh Quits As Fordham Coach

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(INS.)—Persistent reports that Maj. Frank Cavanaugh was through as the Fordham University football coach culminated today in an announcement by Jack Coffey, managing director of athletics, that Fordham was looking for a 1933 coach, Coffey said:

"It has been no secret that Maj. Cavanaugh wished to retire because of his poor health. His resignation will be formally acted upon next month when his successor will be chosen."

Coffey insisted that as yet no coach had been named for next year. He would not reveal the names of those who were being considered. He would not comment on reports that Chick Meehan, Manhattan College coach, had been approached.

Panther Passers Play Butler Five

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 19.—The University of Pittsburgh basketball team, having broken even so far on its swing through the Middle West, will try to get on the right side of the ledger tonight when it plays Butler here.

Happy Family of Tech's New Coach

MRS. HARPSTER HOWARD HARPSTER BABY ANN ELIZABETH

Harpster, all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech in 1928, and coach at Geneva College the last three seasons, has been named head coach of his alma mater for next fall, succeeding Bob Waddell, who recently resigned because of press of business. Ann Elizabeth is 10 months old. Don Lovewell will be Harpster's assistant. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

BORN IN INDIANA

A brilliant versatility flashed from the mind of "Uncle John" Gruber, but the heart of the man who kept straight the records of the Pirates and their foemen through 40 years was dominated by just two emotions—kindness and humility.

John Gruber was born September 22, 1853, in New Albany, Ind. A large part of his boyhood was spent in New Albany, where he attended grade school. It was in those days he first became devoted to baseball, taking part with other lads in a game called "town ball."

FORMER PRINTER

About 55 years ago, John was employed as a printer on the old Pittsburgh Times. There were no sports editors on the Pittsburgh papers of that date, baseball news of the early period being subordinated to an obscure part of the publication.

When John worked as printer here, the Cincinnati Enquirer was looked upon as a great authority on sports, and Gruber, being a pronounced fan, followed The Enquirer devotedly. Tom Keenan, the then managing editor of The Times, used to clip the standing of the clubs out of The Enquirer and printed them in The Times. But according to Gruber they were always two or three days late when reprinted. It seems that Gruber had something to do with inaugurating the feature.

Gruber's natural newspaper knowledge must have made the feature look queer "just standing by itself," so he said to himself:

"I'll write a few lines of introduction."

Gruber's little article may have marked a milestone in sports reporting. The introduction was never more than a stickful of type; and then one day he caught up with the idea of keeping track of the players. Commenting on this phase of his work, John remarked:

"That's the way I began to keep batting and fielding averages."

SIGNED ARTICLES

Gruber then took an hour or so away from his type-setting to write sports news. Eventually the managing editor decided John should sign his "jottings." Gruber said he would think about it. In due time they appeared under the by-line "Willow."

It wasn't long after this incident that the boss wanted John to become the sports editor. But it seemed that the job at the case paid more than than of sports writer, and money was a big consideration with the young man.

As time went on the position of sports editor carried more influence and money. John Ritenour, managing editor of the Post, advertised for a sporting editor. Gruber got the job and quickly became famous in the new role. Touching on this incident of his life, John relates:

"It was in 1880 when I took the job. By George, I shake yet when I think how little I knew! I got through work sometimes as early as midnight and I would sit up until 5 o'clock in the morning and study up on sports. Boxing, trotting, shooting, sculling—I kept records on all of them."

PUBLISHED RECORDS

Gruber remained on the Post until 1905, then went to the Gazette and served there until 1911. After that he worked for the Moreland News Bureau, which published baseball records.

In 1893 John Gruber was appointed official scorer for the Pirates, and he has held that position without interruption through the years. John has been on the job constantly in rain, snowstorms and sunshine, and he never failed to give his work the distinctive mark of dignity.

John was a youthful fan in 1880 when the players wore fierce-looking mustachios. John Titus was the last survivor of this colorful and sturdy cult. Said Gruber of this athlete:

"John Titus wore the last mustache in baseball. You could see his mustache coming before you could see his face."—

Gibson to Leave For Home Tonight

Well pleased over the trade that brings Freddie Lindstrom to the Pirates, Manager George Gibson, of the Pirates, was prepared to leave for his home in Canada tonight.

Gibby announced that he was eager to obtain another high-grade pitcher for the 1933 pennant race.

'Thirty'

JOHN GRUBER

Art Ruff Kept At Home By Broken Hand

The most disappointed young man in Pittsburgh as the Pitt Panthers pulled out last night for the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., January 2, was Art Ruff, sophomore halfback and former Etna High School star, a protege of Burgess Lee Donaldson.

Ruff was all set for the trip up to last Thursday night, when he suffered a broken hand while tobogganing in North Park along with several of his teammates. Ruff was responsible for both of Pitt's touchdowns in the game in which its B team played the Navy B team to a tie score at Annapolis recently.

HARPSTER GRID STRATEGIST

something like 25 years by the astounding score of 27 to 7. Harpster tossed a long pass to Ted Rosenzweig, the end, immediately after the first kickoff and Tech scored and had Notre Dame on the run throughout.

SUCCESS AS COACH

Harpster's high school team went undefeated in his last season, and, with his freshman team at Tech also undefeated, he had two successive perfect seasons. During his soph year, Tech lost two games. His junior team lost four games and tied one. In his senior year, he led his forces down to the final game, against New York University at Forbes Field, undefeated and tied with the Violets for the Eastern championship. That day, Ken Strong, the great N. Y. U halfback, ran wild and Tech was crushed.

Leaving Tech, Harpster took over the coaching reins at Shady Side Academy in 1929. Shady Side had not won a game the year before. Under his direction, it won eight games and lost none.

GOES TO GENEVA

The season of 1930 found Harpster at Geneva College, where he won nine out of 10 games. The following year he won six, lost two and tied two. This year he won seven and lost three, one to Carnegie Tech, 7-0; another to Waynesburg, 6-3, in the last two minutes of play, and the finale to Duquesne, 3-0, in the last 27 seconds. He won the Tri-State Conference title his first two seasons at Geneva and lost it this year in the last two minutes of play to Waynesburg's best eleven, which also defeated Penn State for the second consecutive season. His three-year record at Geneva shows 22 victories, six defeats and two ties.

During his career at Carnegie Tech, Harpster's teams won two games and lost none against Notre Dame, won two out of three with Pitt, won one out of three with W. & J., and lost three and won none against New York University.

TO OPPOSE POP WARNER

In his first home game next fall, Harpster will match wits with Pop Warner, former Cornell, Carlisle, Pitt and Stanford coach, who will bring his Temple University team here for a battle at the Stadium. Warner, who will be 62, is old enough to be his grandfather. Don Lovewell, who leaves Geneva to remain with Harpster as line coach, is only three years older than the 25-year-old Carnegie prodigy.

Harpster is happily married to the former Margaret (Peggy) Jones, a high school sweetheart of Akron. They reside at 3146 Beechwood boulevard and have a 10-months-old daughter, Ann Elizabeth.

GREAT FIELD GENERAL

Harpster is of tall, slender build. He seldom carried the ball while playing for Tech, but, when he did, he made substantial gains. He was an uncanny forward-passer and a good kicker, but most of all an amazing field general, who specialized in crossing up the enemy by pulling the unexpected. He thought nothing of passing from behind his goal line or anywhere in the vicinity of the goal and had a faculty of tossing the ball in such a manner that there was little danger of interception. He is rated the brainiest quarterback ever to play for a Pittsburgh team.

Ever since his graduation from Carnegie, Harpster has been a special football writer for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and his articles on the sport have won widespread approval for their clarity and keen analytical quality. He will continue to write for the readers of this newspaper next fall.

By TOM BIRKS

The biggest upset of the local soccer season was recorded yesterday when the Moon Run team, of the Panhandle League, classed as a junior aggregation, traveled to South Park, and, on a snowbound field, defeated the Castle Shannon Zoneys, 1 to 0, in the second round of the National Amateur cup.

The heavy field had something to do with the outcome, and also the Zoneys missed the services of Johnny Paap, who, as a professional, cannot play in amateur cup competition, but it would be unfair to try and take anything away from the Moon Run victory.

LLOYD SCORES

The winning goal was scored after 60 minutes of play. The teams had battled to a scoreless tie in the first half of the game. Fifteen minutes had elapsed in the second half when Lloyd got away and, with a lightning shot, beat Benick and flashed the ball into the net.

The Zoneys did everything that an attacking club could do until the end of the game, but could not score and the season's big upset was recorded. The lineup:

Shannon Zoneys—0.		Moon Run—1.
Benick	C	Ambrosic
Villani	R. H.	Riddle
Urbanic	L. H.	Masek
Detrick	R. H.	Kuskek
Bling	C. H.	Pavlick

Goal—Lloyd. Referee—McArdle.

AVELLA VICTOR

Other soccer results found Avella winning the first half championship of the Washington County League by defeating Donohoes, 1 to 0, at Cedar Grove. In the Allegheny Valley Circuit, Springdale defeated Harwick, 2-1; Millvale nosed out Barsotti, 2-1; Tarentum played a 2-2 tie with Kinlock, and Valley Athletics stopped Curtisville, 4 to 1.

In the Keystone League, Valley Camp traveled to Bridgeville and beat the Rosies, 4-2, while Curry defeated Morgan 2-0. Buff Donnelli was in the Curry lineup and scored a goal.

WOOD CAPTURES GOLF TITLE

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP.)—For the second time in his career, Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., holds the Pasadena $4,000 Open golf championship today.

Cracking par by six strokes over the 72-hole route, the Eastern star yesterday won this year's tourney with a score of 278, which brought him the first prize money of $1,000.

After running neck and neck for the last three rounds, two Chicago pros—Eddie Loos and Harry Cooper—finished a tie for second place, four strokes behind Wood with cards of 282, or two strokes under par. Each collected $500 prize money.

Dick Metz, the victor's assistant at the Hollywood Country Club, Deal, N. J., was fourth with a par total of 284, to win $350.

SARAZEN VOTED LEADING U. S. ATHLETE

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—For turning in what many experts acclaim as "one of the greatest achievements in modern golf history, comparable to the grand slam of Bobby Jones," the honor of being recognized as the outstanding American athletic performer of 1932 goes by popular ballot to stocky Gene Sarazen, holder of the American and British Open championships.

Sarazen's name today topped the list of individual stars voted upon in the second annual nation-wide poll of sports editors and writers, conducted by the Associated Press. The poll carried no restrictions as to amateur or professional and was wide open for the fullest expression of opinion by the experts who have witnessed or taken stock of the year's spectacular sports activity.

GENE VOTED BEST

Sarazen's twin triumphs, with a record display of shotmaking skill under pressure, withstood the rivalry of outstanding performances in every field of action, including the Olympic games. The professional golf star's vote was not quite so impressive as that accorded Pepper Martin, 1931 world series hero, in the first Associated Press poll, but it was sufficient to give Sarazen a convincing margin over his closest rivals—Ellsworth Vines, world tennis champion; Eddie Tolan, Olympic sprint king, and Jimmy Foxx, new home run leader of the major leagues.

Out of a total of 284 votes cast, Sarazen received 52 or nearly 20 per cent. Tolan, one of the comeback aces of the year, yielded second place to Vines in a close finish, decided by the last few votes, giving the tennis star 36 and the Negro sprinter 33. Foxx was fourth with 32.

NEWMAN GRID LEADER

Among the football performers, Harry Newman, Michigan's All-America quarterback, received the most attention in the balloting, with a total of 12 votes. Two gridiron coaches, Howard Jones and Hunk Anderson, each got one vote.

The 1932 poll marked a new "low" for professional boxing. The only champion apparently held in much esteem by the sports experts is Tony Canzoneri, boss of the lightweights, who polled eight votes.

Harry Newman, Michigan's All-America quarterback, 12.
Lou Gehrig, Yankees' first baseman, 9.
Olin Dutra, Professional Golfers' Association champion, 3.
Don Zimmerman, Tulane's All-America back, 3.
William (Torchy) Peden, professional bike rider, 2.

Batting Champ

DALE ALEXANDER

Hard-hitting first baseman of the Boston Red Sox, who led the American League in batting this year, with a mark of .367, according to the official averages released today. Jimmy Foxx and Lou Gehrig trailed him. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

American League Batters Led by Dale Alexander

Dale Alexander, giant first baseman of the Boston Red Sox, led the batters of the American League in the 1932 campaign, according to the official figures announced today. Alexander, who started the year with the Detroit Tigers, bested First Baseman Jimmy Foxx, of the Philadelphia Athletics, as he solved the pitchers for a mark of .367. First Baseman Lou Gehrig, of the World Champion New York Yankees, was only a few points below Foxx.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS GAINS IN SPOTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Stock traders found the bull side of the market a little more attractive today, and succeeded in elevating prices a point or so here and there.

Lacking any real stimulus, however, the market remained sluggish. Trading was still highly professional, and activity appeared to be based primarily on the hope of the usual Christmas rally.

Auburn was turned over in considerable volume, rising 4 points, while Allied Chemical gained nearly half as much. Miscellaneous issues up a point or so included American Can, American Telephone, Air Reduction, Case, Coca Cola, Penny, Union Pacific, DuPont, Westinghouse and Standard of New Jersey. A gain in Loew's of nearly a point failed to hold. United States Steel mounted fractionally. Oils were distinctly firmer than in recent sessions.

With business entering the year-end holiday period, the customary barometers showed little change in trend. Retail trade was expected to enjoy the usual last-minute spurt of Christmas buying. The motor business continued to reflect a step up in automobile production for lower priced cars, a demand which was expected to continue into next year.

"Steel" reported that the year-end let-down had been cushioned considerably because of automobile orders. In addition, it reported better inquiries from the oil industry for tanks and from cities for pipe. Nevertheless, production of steel tapered off slightly. A final Christmas week dip which would reach, and possibly go below, the July 4 low point of 12 per cent, was said to be in prospect.

Commodity prices again held an important position in financial study. The United States Department of Labor index slipped slightly lower for the week ended December 10. The latest figure was 63.1 against 63.6 the week before.

TREND UPWARD IN GRAINS

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Grain prices tended upward early today, opening at a shade to ⅜c higher, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ¼@⅜c up and subsequently varied little.

About 3,500,000 bushels falling off in the amount of wheat afloat for importing countries was shown as compared with a week ago. Scantiness of speculative trade, however, led to price setbacks at times. Corn and oats were firm, largely as a result of rural unwillingness to sell.

Provisions had a downward trend associated with weakness of hog values.

Railroad Passenger Rates Cut in West

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP.)—The Trans-Continental and Western Passenger Associations today announced marked reductions in railroad fares through issuance of scrip books.

The scrip books will go on sale February 1. One contains coupons good for 3,000 miles of transportation, usually valued at $108, which will be sold for $81, H. W. Siddall, chairman of the associations, said.

Siddall said the railroads believed the reduced fares would stimulate business.

Cotton Ginnings Estimated Higher

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—E. H. Miller, of J. E. Bennett & Co., estimates cotton ginnings from December 1 to 13 557,000 bales, compared with 335,809 bales for the same period last year and 442,314 bales in 1930. Total ginnings for the season to date aggregate 12,188,374 bales, against 15,354,212 bales last year and 13,259,413 bales in 1930. The report expresses belief that the government has underestimated the acreage despite its upward revision in its December returns.

Hotel Head Says Low Point Passed

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The low point in the current depression for operators of hotels was reached last July, in the opinion of Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid, president of American Hotels Corporation.

If the experience of this organization, which operates a chain of 40 hotels throughout the country, is used as a criterion, there has been a steady improvement in business since last mid-summer.

AIR REDUCTION OPERATIONS HOLD UP

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—With November sales a hair ahead of October, Air Reduction Company maintained the consistency of improvement that has characterized its operations since the opening of summer. Every month since July has been ahead of the preceding month.

In the current quarter, however, the improvement has been decidedly less marked than during the third quarter. Whereas August ran 15 per cent ahead of July and September 10 per cent ahead of August, the October results were only 5 per cent above September and November barely topped October. The trend, of course, fits into the general curve of business activity.

The past two months have not maintained the burst of earnings strength displayed in September, when profits not only exceeded dividend requirements by 20 per cent, but were practically up to the like month of 1931.

SEPTEMBER PEAK

October and November earnings, which were close to a parity, were on the average about a third less than those of September, the best month of the second half year.

Nevertheless, the company expects to nearly cover its 75-cent dividend requirement in the final quarter. It will have the strong benefit of year-end credits resulting from over-accruals of costs by its important departments that always err on the conservative side in calculating 12 months' expenses. On this basis the company should earn around $2.70 a share for 841,288 shares of stock, compared with the $3 annual dividend and with a 1931 balance of $4.54 a share.

SAVINGS PASSED ON

The management continues to focus sharply on the reduction of costs to the end of sustaining profits and to permit of low selling prices to its customers. As a result of this policy of passing on savings to customers, the price of oxygen today is 75 per cent of the base of 1921, when the industry was in its infancy.

Air Reduction's balance sheet at the end of the year will show another notable improvement in current asset position, following the gains a year ago. Depreciation reserves have been continued at the rate of $2,000,000 a year. At the end of 1931 cash on hand totaled $5,601,703, against $6,475,772 in 1930. Other current assets, composed mainly of government securities and short term issues, showed a gain to $9,501,997 from $7,241,611 in 1930. This investment account should show a gain of at least $1,000,000 as of December 31, 1932.

Canada Aluminum Exports Increase

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.—Reflecting resumption of shipments of aluminum by Aluminium, Ltd., to Russia, Canadian exports of aluminum in November totaled in value $1,186,000 against only $318,000 in November, 1931. The United Kingdom last month took $443,000 against $258,000 in the like month of 1931 and the United States took $45,000 against $19,000 worth.

State's Oil Stocks Lowest in 3 Years

On November 30, last, Pennsylvania grade crude oil stocks held by major pipe line companies in eastern fields were at the lowest level in three years, totaling 2,752,920 barrels, a decrease of 186,606 barrels from October 1, 1932.

Atchison Railway Loadings Decline

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Loadings of the Atchison Railway system in the week ended December 17 totaled 20,230 cars, as against 22,729 in the week preceding and 24,923 in the like 1931 week.

MARY FAITH

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER X.

"I may go down to the office tomorrow," he told her at the end of the afternoon. "I can get around pretty well now with a cane; and I'd like to be on the job just now at the close of the year."

Mary Faith shook her head. "Oh, I think you ought to wait for a few days before you try it, Mr. Nesbit. The stairs in the building are so steep and the floors are so slippery."

But the next morning when she got down to the office there was a light burning behind the frosted-glass pane in his door.

"Great Galusha's back on the job this morning, Miss Fenton," Stanley Odeskalki told her, looking up from the typewriter that he was oiling. "Gee, if I was my own boss, the way he is, I bet I wouldn't come down to work on a cane! I'd stay home for another month."

At half past nine exactly the buzzer on Mary Faith's desk sounded. She got up and carried the morning mail into Mark Nesbit's office, just as she had carried it in to him at half past nine every morning for years.

It was on the tip of her tongue to say to him: "Well, you made it, I see! But you know you ought to have stayed at home."

All she did say, however, was "Good morning, Mr. Nesbit," just as she had always said it, in a polite office-voice.

"Good morning, Mary Faith." He smiled at her gravely as he picked up one of the envelopes that she laid before him on the desk. "Will you please ask Bassett to come up here in about ten minutes?

LEAVES EARLY

Everything was just as it always had been. Like magic both of them clicked back into the well-oiled office machinery of the Nesbit Mercantile Company.

And yet there was a difference. That noon he came limping into her office and stood beside her desk. He had on his overcoat and his hat and briefcase were in his hand.

"Good-bye, Mary Faith," he said. Don't work late. Remember it's Saturday . . . I'm going to miss you at lunch today. We've had some pretty good talks the last couple of weeks, haven't we?"

"Haven't we!" Mary Faith's face flushed with pleasure. "These two weeks have been a holiday for me; but they couldn't have been so very grand for you, shut up in one room most of the time."

She pushed back her chair and got up as he turned to go.

"I'm going to go down to your car with you, if you don't mind," she said. "First thing you know your cane will slip on this floor and you'll be back in the wheel chair for another two weeks."

Side by side they crossed the office and got into the elevator. Down in the street the big, plum-colored limousine waited. As Mark Nesbit paused beside it, with his foot on the step, he half turned and held one of Mary Faith's hands tightly in his for a second.

NESBIT SENDS FLOWERS

"You 'mother' me, don't you, Mary Faith?" he asked, his head bent over hers. "And, do you know, I like it! I do. I think it's fine."

"Great hulligan, but you and the boss are getting to be clubby!" Jean Bartlett remarked when she walked into the office two or three minutes afterward. "If this keeps up you'll soon be forgetting Handsome's nailed-down hair and built-up shoulders!"

Late that afternoon when Mary Faith got home there was a long florist's box for her lying on the table in the hall.

"A colored chauffeur—in livery, if you please—brought it here about 1 o'clock," Mrs. Puckett told her, coming out of the parlor. "There's roses and narcissus in it, by the smell . . . I never have been able to abide the smell of narcissus since Mr. P.'s funeral."

"There's a card with them, Mary Faith!" she said. "The car was a dark purplish-red one—kind of a plum color. I told Mr. McClintock and Mr. Vining that I bet it was your Mr. Nesbit's car."

Synopsis

Mary Faith is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young businessman. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation. She meets his mother and enjoys the charming home life of the Nesbits. Mary Faith makes daily visits to the Nesbit home.

Now Go On

Mary Faith knew that the flowers were from Mark Nesbit before she drew his card out of the envelope that had been tucked among them. Who else would be sending flowers to her?

LANDLADY OBSERVATIVE

Mrs. Puckett read the card over her shoulder. "Hmm—he did send them. Well, this begins to look serious, Mary Faith."

"Nonsense, Mrs. Puckett!" Mary Faith said sensibly. "This is just his way of saying 'thanks' for all the extra work I've done for him the last couple of weeks."

Mrs. Puckett sniffed and shrugged her shoulders. "You've done lots of extra work for him long before now, and he never sent you flowers," she pointed out. "And I know that I've done lots of extra work for men folks in my lifetime, too, but not one of them ever sent me a whole box of roses, or even a simple dandelion! He's been lending you books, too. I've seen them up in your room with his name written in them . . . You mark my words, Mary Faith, he means business!"

That was on Saturday.

At half past four on the next Friday afternoon, Mark Nesbit came into Mary Faith's little office and sat down on the corner of her desk.

She said that she did. "It's a large ring that women wear on their little finger. It's usually made of platinum or white gold and is set with diamonds, I believe. It's a very special kind of ring."

"Well, Judy wants one for Christmas. She says some of her buddies at school have them. But, gosh, wouldn't it be too elaborate for her?"

ASKS FOR HELP

"She's only fifteen, isn't she?" mused Mary Faith. She had not seen Judy Nesbit, who was the baby of the family, for three years, and she remembered her at a simple child's party with long slim legs and the comical-sweet face of a pansy. "It seems to me she's pretty young for diamonds. But you must get her some kind of a ring . . . You know, when you've set your heart on a certain thing it's very disappointing not to get it on Christmas morning."

"That's true." He nodded and got up from the corner of the desk. "Well, will you help me pick out a ring for her then? I'll get my car out of the parking space and meet you downstairs in five minutes."

Outside it was cold and crisp and snowy — perfect holiday weather. By the time Mark Nesbit's car had nosed its way into the crowded shopping district the streets were filled with sapphire dusk and red-and-green festoons of light were shining in the shop windows.

The car was held up for two or three minutes in the traffic at the corner of Spring street and Sixth. That corner had once been a place of enchantment for Mary Faith because it was there that she had always waited for Kim when she had an engagement with him.

SEES KIM

On the next corner stood the City Bank Building where he worked. She found herself looking up at the lighted windows of McIntrae & Westover on the fifth floor . . . Kim was probably up there now, winding up his day's work in the offices where he had met that Janet-girl of his . . .

"I think we'll go to Armbruster's for the ring," Mark Nesbit was saying as he swung his car into the yawning doorway of the Spring Street Garage. "I have a charge account there, haven't I, Mary Faith?"

There were no holly wreaths, no red-and-green lights, in the windows of Armbruster's jewelry store. For Armbruster's prided itself on its exclusiveness of its old-fashioned dignity. It was the oldest store on Spring street. It never advertised in the newspapers and it never made any holiday display.

Not 10 feet from Mary Faith stood Kim.

"Sometimes I bring my wrist watch in here to have it regulated," Mary Faith said as they stepped inside. "And just to walk into the place makes me feel like the Queen of Siam."

A salesman in a frock coat and a high wing collar came up to them bowing, as Mary Faith said to herself, scraping. He led them halfway down the center aisle and laid two trays full of glittering rings on the showcase in front of them.

"Don't you think an aquamarine would be nice for Judy, Mr. Nesbit? Or a white-gold signet ring with just one or two little diamonds set in it, perhaps?" asked Mary Faith.

She had a sudden, uneasy feeling that someone was watching her. She half turned away from the showcase to look about her—and there, not 10 feet from her, stood Kim Farrell!

Kim was leaning over the counter, holding two mesh bags in his hand. Beside him stood a girl whom Mary Faith could not see.

He was not looking at the mesh bags or at the girl. His eyes were on Mary Faith's eyes; and as she watched him he laid the bags down upon the showcase and came toward her.

"Hello," he said and held out his hand.

"Hello, yourself," Mary Faith never knew how she managed to say those two words in that cheerful, offhand way. She did not touch his hand.

"How are you these days, Mary Faith?"

"Oh, I'm all right. I jog along," she answered. With an effort she turned her head away from him, then turned her whole body away.

"Don't you think an aquamarine would be just the thing?" she asked Mark Nesbit again, without clearly knowing what she said.

They finally decided on one. A small square one set in a circle of seed pearls. They waited while it was put into a white velvet box and wrapped up in white-and-silver paper.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Have you adopted a surface manner of thinking just because you adhere to the quotation that "first thoughts are best"?

Do you carry this idea to the extent that you permit inferior production to stand because it represents your first thought on a subject?

Perhaps you have schooled yourself to think briefly and form an opinion — just like that — and perform in accordance with such hasty thought.

If you are naturally gifted and proficient in your line, it may have worked fairly well so far.

But you should realize how much better you might have done and how superior your work might have been if you had taught yourself to think longer and in a more concentrated manner.

Your God-given ability has allowed you to pass, but why limit your achievements because you are too lazy to think?

First thoughts, as first impressions, are often good, but more mature consideration has made the great world advancement.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Cold weather with its lieutenants, snow and ice, which prevailed Saturday, failed to chill the enthusiasm of the members of the Belmar Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. In fact, W. C. (Doc) Dodds, newly appointed manager, thought that the cold and snowy weather might have been the cause for the large attendance.

Sam Dichtor, who is serving as temporary Grand Jester and master of ceremonies, opened the meeting with the singing of "America," and reciting the club pledge. Following this Sam introduced the first of the many acts which were to entertain the members. Eddie McCune had the honor of singing the first song and he picked "All Of Me." Eddie is just a little fellow, but has a grand voice and the members evidenced their appreciation of it by giving him a good round applause.

ACROBATIC DANCE

Helen May Connor, an old friend of the Belmar members, next offered her acrobatic dance specialty. The acrobatic dance is a most difficult dance, as it demands the performer to be in a splendid physical condition and to spend many a long hour each day in practice, plus setting up exercises which will limber up the muscles and tendons so that the difficult twists of the body can be executed with grace and rhythm.

Community singing followed with the members picking "Minnie the Moocher" as their favorite. Everyone present in the theater both big and little joined when they reached that "Hi-De-Hi-i-i" and "Hi-De-Ho-o-o." The "Hi-i-i's and Ho-o-o's" were long drawn out affairs and the youngsters took delight in seeing just how long they could hold the notes.

The stage show at the Arsenal Theater was again presented by Josh Dreono, who with Russell Niggl and Manager Eddie Johns, strives to have something different each week for the members' enjoyment.

IMITATES TRAIN

Last Saturday Josh presented a new master of ceremonies who made an instant hit with the kiddies. His name is Frank Kay and after making a short speech gave a great dance and imitation of a train leaving a station. Frank has what might well be termed an educated pair of feet. The Evans sisters, otherwise known as the rythm twins' acrobatic dancers, performed an adagio dance which was well liked by the members.

The high light of the entire program was when Santa Claus appeared on the stage and sang several Christmas songs for the members.

Speaking of Santa, boys and girls, remember that Saturday will be a great day at the Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Clubs hold their regular meetings. Each theater will have a tree and Santa will be there to pass out the stocking that the members brought and hung in the lobbies three or four weeks ago. Each of these stockings will be filled with candy and nuts and fruit and toys and each kiddie will be called to the stage and will receive his or her stocking direct from Santa. In addition to all this, there will be special features and prizes for the members. So boys and girls, if you don't want to miss any of the fun, be sure to be at your Warner theater early Saturday.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Belmar—Jack Saunders, Mark Sacco, Tony Tanburro, Albert DeLollo, Patricia Schuck, Agnes O'Keefe.

South Hills—Roy Uhlinger, Jr., Bobby Mechling, Harry Campbell, Dorothy Gulbrandson.

Rowland—Jimmy Walsh, Betty Walsh.

Plaza—Betty Koch.

It's the Man on Hossback

This arms equality thing will never work out.

Make everything even. Give every man a gun. And there will always be some sharpshooter who can aim better than you.

There was a time when arms were even in the old cave days. The boys bashed each other sociably over the well-advertised skull and the winner howled to the crescent moon.

Everything was hunky-dory. Then along came the man on hossback who was the ancestor of the driver of the 10-ton truck.

From his vantage point he could bend over and smack you a wallop on your whiskers that would glazierize you. A million years later the archeologists found you in an iceberg. Dempsey never could punch like that.

When everybody owned a hoss or could steal one the lads went in for armor, spears, arrows, hatchets and anonymous letters. Everything was even again.

Then some truant invented the blunderbuss and the neighbor's brats had to start it all over. A gun in the hand was worth two armistices in the Lausanne bush.

Things were perfected beautifully when the World War started. Each man was equipped with poison gas, a flame thrower, a trench and a machine gun. In case of a tie he had hand grenades, bombers and bullets that could chase you around a May pole.

The man on hossback was a baby tank. And he still won all the blue ribbons for gait, steeplechasing and cross-country pursuit races. He's the guy you must get before everything will be even.

You can go right back to the Kimmeredge clay in an effort to equalize armaments, but you won't get anywhere. Give everybody the same kind of weapon and there will always be a William Tell to knock off a Gessler.

So we might as well remain seated the way we are now with one foot in the aisle. History is tough enough to read without having to go through it physically all over again.

Senator Watson says he's in favor of 2.75 per cent beer "because it doesn't mean a thing—it's only slop."

Perhaps that's why the Senator has been floor leader for so long—he favors measures that don't mean a thing.

TOUGH LUCK, LEE

(Central City, Neb., Republican)

Lee Coolidge had the misfortune this week to lose a loaf of bread at the intersection between the Central City National and Platte Valley State banks. The car door flew open without warning and the staff of life evidently fell to the pavement. Rather than halt traffic, Lee speeded up and swung around the block in record time. To his amazement, the loaf of bread had disappeared when he arrived.

Where There's a Will—

It Will Be Hard to Convince the Taxpayers the County Officials Cannot Cut Their Salaries.

County officials of Beaver County have voted to reduce their salaries, beginning next month, by returning 10 per cent to the county. Their salaries are fixed by law, but that did not deter them from making a sacrifice for the benefit of the hard-pressed taxpayers.

The school teachers of Pittsburgh, whose salaries are also fixed by law, have voluntarily taken a 10 per cent cut, too.

Why should not the high-salaried officials of Allegheny County—the 37 who are paid $10,000 a year or more—also make the sacrifice that nearly everybody else is making, voluntarily or involuntarily?

A 10 per cent cut would hurt these high-salaried officials less than an equivalent reduction has injured the thousands of laborers and other wage earners who have had to take cuts.

A Common Pleas Judge who returned to the people $1,400 or 10 per cent of his $14,000 salary would still have $12,600. The sacrifice would not make him pinch and skimp as a $140 cut would make the $1,400-a-year laborer pinch and skimp.

Interviewed by the Sun-Telegraph as to what their attitude would be towards the proposal that they take a voluntary cut, some of the officials offered excuses of one sort or another for opposing the plan. They questioned its legality.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S A WAY.

It will be hard to persuade the taxpayers that the officials cannot do their share to relieve the citizens of a little of the exorbitant cost of government if they wish to, that they cannot make a personal contribution to the public treasury if so disposed.

The Cause of Pneumonia

The Mellon Institute's Air Pollution Investigation May Help to Eradicate the Disease.

Pneumonia is much in evidence in Pittsburgh at this season, and it is appropriate that the Allegheny County Medical Society should devote part of the meeting it is to hold tomorrow night to a discussion of the cause of the disease.

The discussion will be rather unusual, because a layman, William P. Yant, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, will take a leading part. He and Dr. Joseph H. Barach are to discourse on causes of pneumonia peculiar to the Pittsburgh district. The Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin says observers agree that the problem which the pneumonia situation presents in this locality is of an entirely different nature from that with which clinicians meet in other cities.

The allusion is, of course, to the theory—or, as many hold, the fact—that there is a peculiar kind of air pollution here, attributable no doubt to some of our industrial plants, which contributes to the prevalence of pneumonia.

The Mellon Institute's investigation of air pollution in Pittsburgh should throw some light on this subject. No greater benefit can be imagined as resulting from this inquiry, although many benefits are expected to proceed from it, than the discovery of information which will help to eradicate pneumonia.

New Canal Proposals

An Argument Is Offered for Reaching Lake Erie by Way of the Allegheny and French Creek.

Word comes from Youngstown, O., that business interests there, discouraged by the United States Army Engineers' unfavorable attitude towards the plan to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie through a canal to pass through that city, are now recommending that the Beaver and Mahoning Rivers be slackwatered to Struthers, five miles below Youngstown.

Oil City businessmen, who would like to see the Ohio River connected with Lake Erie by canalizing the Allegheny and French Creek, assert that the new Youngstown plan would be harmful to Pittsburgh. They say that Pittsburgh would not be interested in a waterway that fell short of reaching the Great Lakes, and that Youngstown would use it to get cheap transportation of coal from West Virginia. Pittsburgh's coal business, already badly crippled by West Virginia competition, would suffer still more, the argument goes.

It is not made clear why Youngstown would take West Virginia coal in preference to Pittsburgh coal. West Virginia operators have succeeded in taking business from Pittsburgh competitors through the aid given them by an unfair railroad rate differential in their favor. But with Pittsburgh able to ship all the way by water, the advantage seemingly would be with us.

It occurs, too, that if a navigable stage of water should be obtained to Struthers, the proposal to extend the canal to Lake Erie could be pressed later with better prospect of success.

Pittsburgh has been committed for many years to an Ohio River and Lake Erie canal that would follow the Beaver and Mahoning valleys. It may be that this route is not so desirable as the Allegheny River and French Creek route—our Oil City friends submit some impressive facts—but we cannot see the menace to Pittsburgh that they profess to see in the new proposal of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce.

A Fine Philanthropy

Warner Brothers and Their Zone Manager, Harry Kalmine, Deserve the Community's Thanks.

Another excellent motion picture show was presented at the Warner Theater yesterday for the benefit of the unemployed. No money payment was required for admission, but everyone was expected to leave a gift of food or clothing, and a great quantity of such material was collected.

The proceeds of the first show were given to Catholic charities for distribution, those of yesterday's entertainment went to Jewish charities, and a third Sunday show will be given for the Protestant charities.

The Sun-Telegraph has already commented on the success of these shows as showing the people's desire for Sunday entertainment and as demonstrating that such entertainment can be given without harming anyone. It is just another argument, of course, for the repeal of the Blue Law.

There is another feature of the matter that calls for comment, and that is the debt that the community owes Warner Brothers and their zone manager, Harry Kalmine, for this fine philanthropy.

They deserve the thanks of every Pittsburgher for their generosity in donating the theater, the films and their services in this commendable and successful effort to raise a large quantity of the necessities of life for the destitute of all faiths.

Just Another Scrap of Paper

(Copyright, 1932.)

When war had plunged the world in doubt
And fear and desolation,
Loudly the voice of France rang out
In righteous indignation—
"A scrap of paper," tossed aside,

The men of France forget.
They cast away the solemn pact
To pay an honest debt—
"A scrap of paper," useless, void,
A worthless rag to be destroyed.

Can a Woman Be Witty?

The saddest fate for a woman, is to be born with a ready tongue and a keen sense of humor.

* * *

Men have granted women almost everything they've asked for in this world except the right to be "funny." Wit, like a beard or a bass voice, is supposed to be a purely masculine characteristic—and woe to the women who can't control her sense of humor.

* * *

Any woman who wants to preach or expound or write "uplifting advice" will be taken seriously, but let a woman try to be "funny" for a living and it takes a set of burglar's tools for her to break into the profession, and a Carry-Nation-hatchet for her to hew her way to recognition.

Marie Dressler was in her fifties before she was recognized as a great artist and the "funniest" person on the stage or screen. And the late Mrs. Fiske was middle-aged before the public realized that she was really a great comedienne.

* * *

There may be masculine playwrights who have written more sparkling comedies than Rachel Crothers; and actors who are funnier than Mary Boland or wittier than Fannie Brice. There may be night-club entertainers who are cleverer at repartee than Texas Guinan. There may be light versifiers who outshine Dorothy Parker. Who knows?

* * *

Far be it from me to claim that women have a sense of humor! Or that wit, in the female of the species, is not an affliction rather than an asset. But the world is full of women wits and comediennes today, who are gradually getting the acknowledgment—and the laughs—they deserve.

It is true the average woman has had very little chance to exercise her sense of humor; chiefly, because she has had nothing to LAUGH at—except herself. Every sane woman knows that to laugh at a MAN is the quickest and surest form of suicide. Any woman who clings to life and wants to be loved, admired or married, promptly suppresses the faintest desire within her to be "bright and witty"

* * *

Many a complacent husband has a bald spot, where his wife's wit or sarcasm has skidded right over his head. Which was lucky for both of them. As long as a man doesn't suspect that a woman is trying to be "funny," there's no harm done.

* * *

What does it matter? They love us DUMB— so, let us firmly suppress any impulse to be amusing. Or witty. Men will let woman jolly them, fool them, nag them or reform them—but they won't let her kid them!

* * *

We've got to take them seriously—or we won't get a chance to take them, at all!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Diary of a modern New Yorker: A note from Don Marquis, recovered of his blindness, and an epistolary posey from Charles M. Schwab, the steel mogul, of which I was more than a little proud. By-and-by, Harry Silvey dropped in with George M. Rogers' daughter, Joan, from Cleveland, an excellent fair maid.

With my wife to call on Betty Forsythe, gay over hawking three sonnets in a week. So by coach to walk among the avenue windows, coming upon Jean Dalrymple, and stood treat for a dish of frozen cream. Then buying motor robes, with a sort of vizard, for my sister and Aunt Betty.

To dinner with Walter Chrysler, Jr., and the lovely Virginia Rothacker, whom I greatly love, and afterward driving them to the Belasco. So back to my lodgings and, unable to sleep, my wife played casino with me until after midnight, when, in sudden whim, we decided to phone Ed and Grace Nolan in Los Angeles.

* * *

A handsome actor, week-ending with Long Island friends, was awakened by a feline quartet in action under his window. In exasperation, he grabbed a glass from his bedside table and flung it at his disturbers. Next morning, he discovered the glass contained his $500 removable bridge work. Nor was it found. All of which—this is going to be rather good—was something of a cat-astrophe!

Personal nomination for the actor who seems most at home in stage drawing room roles—Henry Stephenson.

* * *

Stage separations frequently surprise even friends of the principals. Among the latest is the friendly renunciation of double harness by Lenore Ulric and Sidney Blackmer, one of the theater's supposedly real romances. Blackmer and I frequently exchange chit-chat about mutual interests and always he has stressed adoration for the husky-voiced Miss Ulric. Similarily, Miss Ulric, at casual meetings, constantly chants a litany of admiration for her North Carolina husband. Then, like a fork of lightning, they go separate ways. It's all confusing.

* * *

But E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, those grand stars, have struck off an ideal companionship in marriage—approaching the sunset hand in hand. While they maintain an apartment at 290 Park, their visits have become increasingly rare. Most of their leisure is spent in Europe, wandering from one retreat to another. They gravitate chiefly to warmer climes where, in arbored cloister, Miss Marlowe likes to knit while Sothern, whose voice is still of magificent timbre, reads to her from the classics. To them, the footlights have lost their tug completely. They do not even go to the plays in New York, Paris or London.

Most of us, after 40, I imagine, dream of pleasant acreage off asphalt paths, but few achieve it. My reactions to New York's suicidal frenzy is for a porched auberge near the glades of Fontainbleau, where, to the diapason of crickets, I can rock, count my blessings and meditate upon the blessed promise. It is too much to ask, I suppose, to have someone scratch my back right between the shoulders now and then. But that would be elegant.

* * *

I note, a friend of early New York days, Francis Albertanti, is publicity director of Madison Square Garden. Francis is one of life's bright popinjays who added much to the turn-over of human comedy during my stretch of copy reading horror on the old Mail. As a fresh cub, he was a dynamo who spent some of his energy bringing "buckets of editorial" (lead linotype slugs placed in tin pails) to owl-eyed jokesters on the outer rim of the news slot. But now, with a whacking big cheroot, he's one of Fistiana's "smart mugs."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He's ambitious and his friends tell him he has "lots of talent." But he's terribly self-conscious. Which results in a confusion that he calls "an inferiority complex." Which leads him into all sorts of unhappy situations. Sometimes he's aggressive; often too submissive; a general mess.

He thinks he knows the cause. "Extraordinary conditions in early life." But can't I suggest a cure?

Yes, stranger, I can. And if you have the courage and the sense to use it, I can guarantee that it will work. But—have you? Well, that's up to you. But here's the prescription. The next time your affliction leaps upon you while you are facing people, say this to yourself:

"How do I get this way?

"Is it because I am afraid of these people? Have they ever done anything to harm me? Am I conscious of some menace in them?

"No. The truth is, I'm hardly conscious of them at all. I'm so overwhelmingly conscious of my own self. I am consumed with misery at the thought that I may not make a good appearance; that I may not do the clever thing; that I may make myself ridiculous.

"I am so concerned with this anxiety for my own welfare that it overshadows every other interest on earth. I can't think of anything else; can't give my energy to anything else. I feel as if I were wrapped about with chains which render me helpless; or as if I were locked in a tight cell, shut off from all the world. They call self consciousness 'the tortures of the damned,' and it is! No wonder I feel sorry for myself.

"And yet have I a right to feel sorry for myself? Isn't it the shameful truth that I AM DOING THIS THING TO MYSELF? Why am I self-conscious? Because I'm CONSCIOUS OF SELF, AND ISN'T THAT JUST ANOTHER NAME FOR EGOTISM?

"Isn't self-consciousness simply self-centeredness? I suffer horribly; yes. But don't I deserve to suffer horribly if I insist on making such a fuss over myself? Haven't I magnified the importance of myself, and the importance of my own acts, beyond all healthy relationship to the rest of the world?

"Suppose I do make a blunder. Suppose I do get laughed at, or fail in my plans. Is that so frightfully important that it should overshadow every other interest? Don't other people make blunders? Aren't they worried, too? Of course they are. Then why do I act as if my affairs were more important than any others?

"I know deep in my heart why I do, but I hate to admit it. The shameful, secret truth is that I'm stuck on myself. I feel that my affairs are more important than any other affairs on earth. I always think of them first, and I think of them all the time. I am so preoccupied with thinking about them that they have become sickly obsessions with me—a sort of cancer on my imagination that has eaten away all the healthy tissues of my imagination.

"I have no imagination left except for myself. I have no real sympathy left except for myself. And what's the result?

"I'm so absorbed in self that I have literally shut myself away from the rest of the world. I'm shackled—by self. So, when I have to face other people, I'm like a criminal released from solitary confinement. I'm lost with other people and other interests. I can't think of anything but myself.

"But that isn't some cruel affliction for which I should be pitied. Actually, it's a contemptible form of self-indulgence for which I should be kicked. It's nothing more or less than exaggerated conceit. And I deserve every bit of the misery I suffer."

There, stranger, is the cure for which you ask. Say that to yourself—and believe it—and act on it—and I'll guarantee that you'll be relieved of self-consciousness within a month. I'll also guarantee that you'll be well on your way to popularity, and power, and personal peace.

But will you have the courage? I wonder.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Magician

And days too dull to name;
Long days and slow days,
And many days the same.

Till there comes beaming
A day made all of gold,
Brimming with beauty,
More joys than the hours can hold.

Hiding the dark days
Behind its lovely light.

How does it happen,
This miracle so strange?
What is the reason

Only when love comes
Are days transmuted so;
Love, the magician,
Who sets the days aglow!

Britain Keeps HerWord

The Movement for Anglo-American Co-Operation Will Gain Impetus from Last Week's Events.

By B. C. FORBES

BLOOD tells.

Great Britain, though grievously harassed financially, economically, socially, has lived up to her historic reputation for maintaining her pledged word.

France, much less grievously harassed financially, economically, socially, by welshing on her war debt payment to us, cannot complain if the world regards her as having lived up to her historic reputation.

Momentous repercussions are bound to follow, repercussions destined to echo down the corridors of time.

If civilization is to be preserved, if mankind is to progress towards greater heights, world leadership must be entrusted to the most worthy, the most trustworthy, the most honest nations.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST has repeatedly urged a co-operative pact between the two great English-speaking nations, on the basis that they are best fitted to preserve the peace of the world and to insure the preservation and advancement of civilization.

France has subtly sought, since the World War, to use her financial strength for the purpose of bringing under her wing various smaller nations impoverished by the war, nations whose armaments have been multiplied by French funds. In addition to striving thus to become the dominating continental power in Europe, France has simultaneously contrived to inveigle the world's strongest nations, including the United States and Britain, into signing a treaty committing them to defend France against any and all aggression hereafter.

THE events of last week are little calculated to move other nations to enter into life-and-death pacts with France, pacts designed to raise France mightily towards world leadership.

The events of last week ARE calculated to give tremendous impetus to the movement for Anglo-American co-operation, Anglo-American unity, Anglo-American leadership of the world.

Britain's grim determination to avoid, at any cost, the stigma of defaulting, the stigma of welshing, cannot but draw the British and American peoples into better understanding, stronger sympathy, firmer trust.

Nor can the rest of the world fail to be profoundly impressed by the contrast between the action of France and the action of Britain. Each of these two nations has proclaimed its innate characteristics, its innate character, its qualifications for leadership, its claim upon the confidence of other nations.

FRANCE, by welshing, has saved two-thirds of one per cent of the gold reposing in her central bank. Britain, by fulfilling her obligation, loses more than 20 per cent of the gold in her central bank.

But which nation has actually lost more, which has gained more?

Mankind will have no hesitation in answering emphatically.

If, out of it all, the way has been paved for achieving Anglo-American co-operation and world leadership, the loss by this country of the relatively small sum repudiated by France will have proved an infinitesmal price to pay for so inspiring a consummation.

IN A JUNGLE

By Winifred Black

Jane lives in a jungle—she says so herself—and I never knew what was wrong with Jane before.

No, the jungle isn't in Africa, or South America, or even Central America. It's in Yonkers, N. Y., if you must know.

People misjudge her, says Jane. They're always saying mean things about her, and saying hateful things to her, and trying to make her look foolish or feel hurt.

Rich people and lucky people are the worst, says Jane, but poor people are hateful, too. And, oh, what Jane has suffered at the hands of women who pretended to be her friends.

Men? Well, men are not quite so bad, but men are selfish and scheming and inquisitive, too, says Jane.

Children are all right while they are children, but they grow up too fast and then they're like all the rest of the grown-ups—artful, scheming, stingy and suspicious.

You can't see the jungle around Jane, but you can feel it—a sad, deep, dark, almost terrifying jungle. And whenever I think of it I'm sorry—for Jane.

Jane is a fine girl, really. She has a good mind and a good heart; she's handsome and vigorous, and she could have a beautiful time living if she'd just move out of the jungle, and come out into the sunshine and get really acquainted with some real people—people who would love her and admire her, trust her and lean upon her, understand her and be glad that she and other women like her are alive.

Dear me, I wish I knew Jane better. I'd like to have a good, honest talk with her. I'd say:

Dear Jane, the world is full of sunshine, flowers, music and laughter if you'd just come out of the jungle of your dark, unhappy thoughts and see.

"There's a girl in the apartment right across the hall from you who needs just such a friend as you could be. She's lonely and scared and she's thinking of going into the jungle to live, too.

"Come on out, Jane! Open up your heart! Be the kind, honest, sympathetic Jane you were before you went to the jungle to live. What if somebody does hurt you once in a while? The hurt won't last long and you'll fill your life so full of friends, books, songs and laughter that no mortal hurt will amount to much.

"Come on out, Jane! The weather is fine. The world is full of kindly, honest, loving people, who are wholesome, too. Come on out and help them to stop being lonesome."

I wonder if Jane would listen, or would she just look a little sullen and a little sarcastic and go back into the deepest part of the jungle—and stay there?
